harles Fisher. Mr. F. was born in Ohio in 1819, and came with his parents to Madison County the following year. His father located where Fishersburgh now stands, and founded the town that bears his name. Consequently Mr. F. is one of the oldest settlers of his township. He was the first merchant in Fishersburgh; served as Postmaster as early as 1844; and it was through his influence that the post office was established there. Mr. F. served at Township Trustee for several years, and was a candidate for County Commissioner in 1872, in the Democratic Primary Convention. He was, however, defeated by G. W. Hoel. Mr. F. has always been an uncompromising Democrat, and has served his township on the Central Committee. He is a member of the M. E. Church at shersburgh, and was among the active movers towards building the present church. He is a director and stockholder in the Pendleton and shersburgh Turnpike. He owns a fine farm just east of Fishersburgh, on the banks of Stoney reek. He is the father of Dr. J. M. Fisher, of shersburgh, and Mrs. J. H. Harter, of Pendleton. Since writing the above, Mr. F. has shaken the dust of the farm off his feet, and become a zen of Fishersburgh.

Gaither is not interested in stopping construction at the building site if Gosnell has valid building permits, Davisson said, but she has been unable to verify all requirements have indeed been fulfilled.

"We're just asking that the city follow the law," said Davisson. "If the permits are in order, we will go away."

Frazee pointed out that City Council did not issue the new building permits, nor did it authorize them. Rock said issuing building permits is considered executive action, not legislative.

Lapel Fun Facts

■ The name of the town was spelled "Lapelle" at first and some of the addition plats had the name spelled that way, but it was apparently optional since some records in 1891 were "Lapel," while others, in 1901, were again "Lapelle."

■ Pendleton Avenue was called Washington Avenue in several of the plats. This, too, as late as 1903.

Lapel Board of Trustees

■ The first meeting of the Board of Trustees, after the incorporation of the town, was held Jan. 26, 1893.

■ The first town board included president O.C. Shatterly, E.R. Rambo, J.M.P. Armstrong, T.M. Busby, clerk-treasurer J.C. McCarty, town marshal James Conner. They were paid $100 per year.

■ The first meetings were held in Huffman & Bird's hardware store. For some time they were held in an upstairs room of the Klepfer building. Then meetings were moved to the Town Board room, upstairs in the Russell Block.

Highlights from Town Board Meetings

■ A curfew ordinance, passed May 28, 1900, has been enforced sporadically. This required children under 15 to be off the streets unless accompanied by a guardian after 9 p.m., under penalty of a $10 fine.

■ Aug. 11 1902, a claim of $5 was allowed to Aaron Manship, liveryman, for rigs used in taking prisoners to jail at Anderson.

Stony Creek Township--Benjamin & John Fisher 1820/3

Stony Creek Township is named after the little stream that runs through it. As related in several history books a group of families came in 1823 to the present site of Fishersburg: Benjamin and John Fisher, D.E. and H. Studley, John Anderson, and George Reddick. However, a 1903 Lapel newspaper credits Benjamin Fisher with arriving in 1820. This date would make Benjamin a contender for the second settler in the county. His rivals would be Jacob Hiday in Green Township and William Dilts in Union Township. John Rogers in Fall Creek Township is acclaimed the first in 1818. Other settlers to Stony Creek in the 1830s were James and Jesse Gwinn, W.A. Alred, Thomas Busby, Arbuckle Nelson, and John McDole and their families.

Stony Creek Township is fortunate to have had in 1938 a book written about its early development. Edith Cascadden compiled and published the hardcover, History of Lapel and Fishersburg (Indiana); it is subtitled "From Pioneer Days to August, 1938." An interesting picture from that book is the one above. Titled "First Hewed Log Church, built 1840," the drawing illustrates the dense, untouched forested wilderness in which Stony Creek pioneers carved the beginnings of civilization. Without question, the beginning of civilization for pioneer settlers was always the church, the first institution they organized. The church pictured above was originally located on the north side of what is now SR 32, just west of CR 925W. It sat on a little knoll and most of the foundation stones are still located among the old growth trees. Cascadden's history includes this description of the 1840 building, part of the Methodist Episcopal service, and the public school classes held within:

"The first church services were held in the round log school house, built in 1827... Some years later a hewed log church named--is buried near Strawtown, Hamilton County, where he met his violent death in 1821.

With the coming of the railroad in the 1870s near Fishersburg, the landscape around the village changed. The Anderson, Lebanon & St. Louis Railroad needed a station at the crossing of the Pendleton-Fishersburg Pike three-quarters of a mile southeast of Fishersburg. To that end, David Conrad and Samuel E. Busby laid out the town of Lapel April 27, 1876, and Lapel eventually became the larger, more developed community. The name of "Lapel" was given to the town by Samuel Busby because the strip of land between the railroad and the turnpike, where Lapel is located, was shaped like the lapel of a coat. Conrad and Busby are both buried at Brookside.

Stony Creek Township has four pioneer cemeteries on record today: Brookside/Lapel Town/Fishersburg/Old Lapel, Ellingwood/Fisher, Hidden (destroyed), and Woodward-Gwinn. This last one is the only one marked on the 1876 plat map below.

"One time four of five Indians came, one or two of them being the worse for liquor. Mrs. Fisher was sewing with the children playing about her. The Indians asked for food. She told them that she did not have any. At this one of the drunken Indians took hold of her hair and taking out his long knife, run the back of it around her head saying, 'me scalp white woman.' The two older children ran out to call in a man who was chopping nearby, while young Charles darted under the bed. When the man came in from outside, he reached up and took down one of the guns in the cabin, when the Indians run out, mounted their ponies and rode away."

Fortunately, attacks by Native Americans in the Madison County wilderness were actually rare, so much so that the one or two violent acts remained memorable in settlement history. As related in the Lapel newspaper article, happier times, although difficult by modern standards, were also part of the Fisher family frontier lifestyle in Stony Creek Township:

"As a child Charles Fisher remembered the place in the forest, about 150 yards from the house, where his mother went regularly twice a day in secret devotion. She took him with her leading him by the hand. Later, she...moved upon the 80 acres where David Conrad now lives. She still had a place by a big oak tree near the cabin, where she went twice a day to pray, as long as she lived. Mr. Fisher [Charles] says that this has left an impression upon his mind that has always remained.

"...After he became a young man he paid his respects to Lucy Jane Busby, and in September 1840 they were married by Lucien Emmons, a Methodist preacher, both of the young people being members of that church. They lived with Mr. and Mrs. Busby that winter. During which time Mr. Fisher cleared 7 acres of timber land...for which he received $14.

"In the spring they had one small horse, one cow, 2 hogs. They made about 200 pounds of maple sugar, which they sold for 4 cents a pound. They bought a cheap set of knives, forks and plates, one teakettle, one stew pot and one frying pan and with this modest outfit started housekeeping. They needed no stove--there were none in the country then, all the cooking done before the fireplace.

"Everyone was his own shoemaker in those days. They tanned their own leather and though the shoes were not fine to look at, they wore well.

"Mr. Fisher tells how the houses were lit up, as he first remembered it. The children would pull shell bark off the hickory trees, put it in the corner and light it. Later on they would take the top off a turnip, scrape the inside out, put in a stick with a rag wrapped all around it, then fill the turnip with coon oil. When the rag was lit it gave a very good light.

"Mr. Fisher early allied himself with the Democratic party... believes in respecting the political and religious opinions of others...and cast his first vote in 1844 for James K. Polk, who was running against Henry Clay, the Wing candidate.

"Besides the two children...he has four grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren...

"Mr. Fisher has a number of relics of the past, among them being a large powder horn that was carried by his grandfather through the Revolutionary War and later by his father in the War of 1812. Where it rubbed on their side, while being carried, it is almost worn through. It is made of a cow-horn, and has a wooden cork that screws in. On the horn is carved pictures of birds, etc., with his father's initials.

"He also has...a lock of his mother's and of his grand-mother's hair."

Mr. Charles Fisher--son of Benjamin for whom Fishersburg was named--eventually became Fishersburg's first merchant, postmaster, and one of the township trustees. He was proud of saying that he was the first person to drive a team and wagon over the Pendleton-Strawtown Road in 1832. He died in 1913 at ninety-three years of age and is buried at the Woodward-Gwinn Cemetery.

"Fishersburg is said to have set the pace as far as churches were concerned, since, in 1842, the hewed log church located there, was considered the best church in Madison County."

In such a building as this, Mrs. Benjanim Fisher worshipped, Charles Fisher studied, and Lucy Busby was married.

Today, Fishersburg and Lapel lie across SR 32 from one another. What with 20th century development, the once neighboring hamlets have the appearance of one contiguous community. However, Fishersburg, on the west bank of Stony Creek and adjacent to Hamilton County, was the first of the two villages to be laid out May 10, 1837, by Reverend Fletcher Tivis, and it was named for Benjamin Fisher who was a veteran of the War of 1812. Benjamin has the distinction of being one of the few white settlers actually killed by the Native Americans remaining in the area. An article titled "Early Settlers" from an unidentified Lapel newspaper published in October 1903 tells of the family's migration to Stony Creek and the events which brought about Benjamin's death:

"Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Fisher, from Clermont County, Ohio, in June of 1820...in a wagon came to Indiana. They drove through Winchester to Anderson, Indiana, the latter place being then merely an Indian Village, with no white people living there. The old chief Anderson, for whom the town was named, was living there at the time.

"They drove down the river...between Perkinsville and Strawtown and there settled in a round log cabin 16 feet square, in which was no floor but the dirt.

"In Strawtown...was one white family named Shintapper. This man kept liquor to sell to the Indians and when they bought the liquor and got drunk Shintapper would abuse them. He had a great fireplace in which logs six feet long could be burned and he once threw an Indian on this fire where he was burned to death. At another time he burned one until he was crippled afterwards.

"By such treatment the Indians were justly incensed and determined to be revenged and so ten of them went one day armed with their knives and tomahawks, intending to kill Shintapper when no one was about.

"That same day--in March, 1821--Benjamin Fisher, John Colip, and Jacob Hiers happened to go to Shintappers to grind their axes, he being the only one in that settlement who owned a grindstone. They had not been there long before the Indians arrived. Of course they could not stand by and see Shintapper killed so undertook to defend him.

"There was a five-rail fence around the cabin, outside of which were the Indians and inside were the white men. ... The battle then continued as at first, the red men retreating and the white men chasing them, then in turn being chased back. Finally one Indian hit Shintapper with a club and knocked him down, then jumped on the fence to get inside. At this Hiers struck the Indian on the head and killed him...Then the battle waged fiercer than ever. But when retreating from the Indians Benjamin Fisher fell and was at once tomahawked by the Indians, who then gathered up their dead Indians and went away. Mr. Fisher was not scalped as some accounts have stated but from the pieces of skull (now in possession of [son] Charles Fisher) it is evidenced that he was truck several times with the tomahawk.

"That same night Shintapper loaded his goods in a canoe and with his wife and child went down White River and was never heard of again. Benjamin Fisher was buried at Strawtown near where he was killed. His was the first grave in what is now known as Strawtown Cemetery."

The article also tells of another dangerous encounter with the local Native Americans which Benjamin's wife had some years later at the family's Hoosier frontier homestead:

"The Indians used to be daily visitors at their [Fisher's] house. His [son Charles'] mother had a large pewter basin that held about two gallons; in this she would put a generous quantity of milk, break in bread and putting down as many spoons as there were Indians, let them seat themselves on the floor around the bowl and eat.

Stony Creek Township is fortunate to have had in 1938 a book written about its early development. Edith Cascadden compiled and published the hardcover, History of Lapel and Fishersburg (Indiana); it is subtitled "From Pioneer Days to August, 1938." Monroe Township

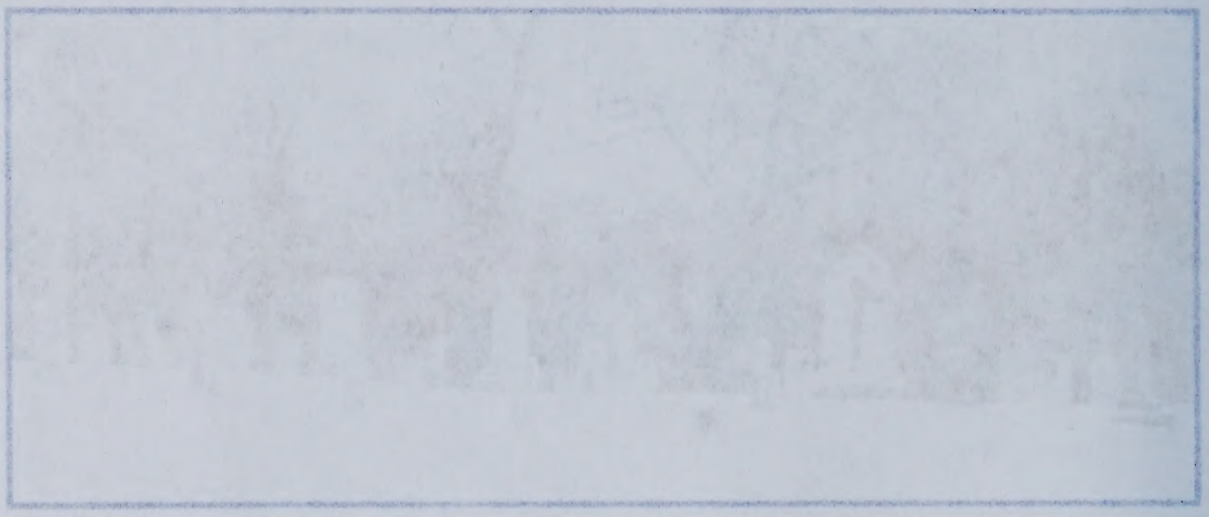
Location: west side of CR 200W, between SR 28 and CR 1300N

The Lily Creek Cemetery once surrounded one of the earliest churches in Monroe Township, the Lily Creek Christian ıurch organized in 1831 by area pioneers including Micajah Chamness, Sr., the first to enter the land that is now exandria. Church member, Mrs. Heritage, a granddaughter of Micajah, was interviewed in the early 20th century:

"They [the congregation] held meetings before the Lily Creek Church was built. They met from house to house. You know they ı not have tables in those days. They took a chair and turned it upside down and placed a Bible on it to read the scripture. They ɛt at the homes of Amelia Jackson's, Leah Stroud's and James Ellis...After the meeting they all shook hands and asked their friends me to dinner.

"No, there were not many [members], but I can tell all the charter members of this early church. They were Granny Jackson, mes Ellis and his wife Caroline, Moses Cole and his wife Jane, Daniel Black and his wife, William Cole and his wife, and Daniel anklin was the preacher."

When enough money was raised and volunteers enlisted, church members built in 1840 a log house of worship in the iddle of the present site of the cemetery. Evidently, from the death dates on several gravestones, the ground was ed for burials before the log church was built. Infant Hiron Cole died on February 21, 1839, less than two months old, ıd adult Susan Gorden was probably one of the earliest burials. She died in 1834 at fifty-four years of age. Perhaps, e owner of the land had already donated a portion to be used as a neighborhood graveyard. Mrs. Heritage continues:



"Why, I can remember the first time I went to the Lily Creek Christian Church [building]. I was three years old. Now this was in 44. My father [Micajah Chamness, Jr.] took me, and it was my grandmother's funeral, and Daniel Franklin preached the funeral rmon. I know about my...grandmother... It was very lonely here for my grandmother, and for three years she saw no white person sides her family. The Indians...were very friendly however."

The congregation steadily grew and in 1871 built a frame church more than a mile north of the cemetery. By 1880, e number of members had swelled to over 100. The cemetery also continued to grow, filling in where the log church ıce stood. Families, represented here who settled on the northwest sections of Monroe Township, have the names of ırden, Ellis, Davis, Black, Sutton, Oldfield, and Young.

Among these is an interesting area developer, Nathan Lowry, who died in 1880 at fifty-four years old. In 1876, Mr. wry owned the land where Chief Pipe's Delaware village had, according to tradition, been located. Perhaps pitalizing on the spot's fame, Nathan established a station as a point west of Alexandria for the Lake Erie & Western ilroad. At first he named the little town Lowry Station, and it appears on the 1876 plat map for the township as ch. However, shortly after that, the name was changed to Orestes. There are two theories as to the origin of the wn's name. One tale says that the name honors Orestes McMahan, a local farmer. Another says that Lowry, himself, named the village after the Greek character Orestes, son of Agamemnon, in Aeschylus's play Oresteia. If the latter is e truth, then Mr. Lowry was indeed extremely well-read for his time. (For more on Orestes, go to the Monroe Township ge; for more on Chief Pipe, go to the Pipe Creek Township page.)

Benjamin Fisher

Benjamin Fisher, whose son Charles Fisher had much to do in the building up of our two towns, came from Clermont County, Ohio, in June, 1820. His wife and three children comprised the family, the children being: John, Mary (married Sullivan Simmerman), and Charles, then six months old.

They came in a wagon, driving via Winchester and Andersontown, which was then a mere Indian village; old Chief Anderson living there at that time. They settled between Perkinsville and Strawtown, in a round log cabin sixteen feet square, in which was no floor.

Benjamin Fisher was killed by the Indians near Strawtown in March, 1821. This caused much commotion at the time, as the Indians had relinquished all claim to this land.

His son, Charles Fisher, told the writer that his father was not scalped, as many accounts have stated. But, from pieces of his father's skull, which he kept, it was evident that he had been struck several times with a tomahawk. Charles Fisher also had the tomahawk with which his father was thought to have been killed.

Benjamin Fisher's widow, Barbara, (there were two Barbara Fishers'), married Benoni Freel, and they lived in a log cabin, on land now owned by J. C. McCarty, at the west edge of Lapel.

ven years; Mary Hemper, who died in 1876 at seventy-seven years; Sarah Hoffman, who died in 1865 at seventy-eight ars; Mary Huffman, who died in 1862 at seventy years, and Christina Rhoad, who died in 1874 at seventy-seven ars. Their contributions to the Stony Creek community should also be recognized.

Among the prominent families in this area were the Fishers. Charles Fisher, whose tall stone is pictured at right, ed to be ninety-three, came to the area in 1820 with his father Benjamin (see Stony Creek Township page), remembered e pioneer existence very well, and was interviewed for an article entitled "Early ttlers," which appeared in a local Lapel newspaper of 1903. The pioneer way of ing in the Madison County wilderness of the early 1800s, which he relates, is a stark ntrast to the lifestyle of the 21st century:

.After he [Charles] became a young man he paid his respects to Lucy Jane Busby, and in ptember 1840 they were married by Lucien Emmons, a Methodist preacher, both of the young ople being members of that church. They lived with Mr. and Mrs. Busby that winter. During ıich time Mr. Fisher cleared 7 acres of timber land...for which he received $14.

"In the spring they had one small horse, one cow, 2 hogs. They made about 200 pounds of ıple sugar, which they sold for 4 cents a pound. They bought a cheap set of knives, forks and ıtes, one teakettle, one stew pot and one frying pan and with this modest outfit started housekeeping. They needed no stove-- ere were none in the country then, all the cooking done before the fireplace.

"Everyone was his own shoemaker in those days. They tanned their own leather and though the shoes were not fine to look at, ey wore well.

"Mr. Fisher tells how the houses were lit up, as he first remembered it. The children would pull shell bark off the hickory trees, t it in the corner and light it. Later on they would take the top off a turnip, scrape the inside out, put in a stick with a rag wrapped around it, then fill the turnip with coon oil. When the rag was lit it gave a very good light.

"Mr. Fisher early allied himself with the Democratic party... believes in respecting the political and religious opinions of ners...and cast his first vote in 1844 for James K. Polk, who was running against Henry Clay, the Wing candidate.

"Besides the two children...he has four grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren...

"Mr. Fisher has a number of relics of the past, among them being a large powder horn that was carried by his grandfather through e Revolutionary War and later by his father in the War of 1812. Where it rubbed on their side, while being carried, it is almost ırn through. It is made of a cow-horn, and has a wooden cork that screws in. On the horn is carved pictures of birds, etc., with his :her's initials.

"He also has...a lock of his mother's and of his grand-mother's hair."

Mr. Charles Fisher eventually became Fishersburg's first merchant, postmaster, and one of the township trustees. He ıs proud of saying that he was the first person to drive a team and wagon over the Pendleton-Strawtown Road (SR 38) 1832. He died in 1913; his wife Lucy died in 1886. They are buried in the fenced family plot with other members of eir family.

Not listed below on the record of gravestone transcriptions, by some oversight, the Huntzinger/Huntsinger and Graber ones are pictured above. From family genealogist Gene Majors in California, the Grabers and Huntzingers termarried. The Graber/Kroeper name is Bavarian, and the "M & E.E." on the infant's stone at right stands for Marion d Emma Elizabeth Cushman Graber. Marion Graber is mentioned in the section on Stony Creek Township in the 1880 ngman history of Madison County: "March 6, 1876, a post office was established at the Graber's Station, called Bruin, d Marion Graber appointed Postmaster..." While Marion and his wife lost a son "Sep. 2, 1882, aged 5m 14d," cording to Gene, they had a total of seventeen children, ten of whom grew to adulthood. Francis Marion (Marion) aber's parents were Sebastian Graber and Susanna Huntzinger. Susanna is listed below as dying February 9, 1851, at cty-five years old, making her birth date around 1786. Her parents were Gabriel Huntzinger and Mary Mason. bastian Graber had immigrated from Bavaria in 1832 along with his parents. Sebastian's father Andrew died in Wayne unty, Indiana, in the early 1800s. Sebastian's mother Mary Knoll later married another Huntzinger--Daniel.

The stone for Daniel and Mary Huntzinger is pictured left and middle. Daniel and Mary were among the settlers to ony Creek Township, and here they were married and helped establish a community. Their union produced one ughter Mary who later wed Samuel Wolfe. Mary, Daniel's wife, died September 26, 1878, "75y 5m"; Daniel died a onth later October 23, 1878, "81y 4m 17d." While Daniel and Mary and other Huntzingers lived out their lives here in e Hoosier state, the Graber family, according to Mr. Majors, moved to Alabama in 1884, leaving only one son buried xt to relatives Daniel and Mary at the Woodward-Gwinn Cemetery.

Stony Creek Township

he Woodward-Gwinn Cemetery in Stony Creek Township is in excellent condition. It contains many of the early pioneer settlers to his area including the Fisher family whose wrought iron fence can be seen in the near foreground of the picture above. The Gwinn mily section, also surrounded by wrought iron, can be seen in the middle. This cemetery has been in use from the 1830s through the Victorian era and into the modern day as evidenced by the Gwinn stone in the foreground.

The Woodward-Gwinn cemetery is one of the earliest burial grounds on the west side of the county. There are quite ew men, early pioneers to this area, who were born in the late 18th century and who departed this life, after helping establish the Stony Creek community, in the 19th century: William Anderson, who died in 1864 at sixty-five years; njamin Ford, who died in 1856 at seventy-nine years; William Gee, who died in 1861 at seventy-two years; Martin oss, who died in 1874 at seventy-six years; Philip Huffman, who died in 1855 at sixty-one years; John Huntzinger, 10 died in 1864 at seventy-nine years; William McGregor, who died in 1857 at fifty-nine years; and John Rhoads, who ed in 1873 at eighty-two years.

There are also a number of women who are in this category. These are worthy of note since the death rate among omen giving birth during this period was alarmingly high. Mothers who could survive delivery in a time before modern edical practices had a very good chance of living into advanced old age. Among the stalwart distaff members of the milies listed below are Mary Conrad, who died in 1879 at seventy-one years; Lizzie Gee, who died in 1876 at eighty-

Pioneer experience of the Fisher family

By Melody Hull
Madison County Cemetery Commission

The pioneer families of brothers Benjamin and John Fisher were among the very first to settle in Madison County.

They arrived in June of 1820 to what would become Stony Creek Township. Both brothers had the distinction of having served during the War of 1812, America's second fight for independence from England.

However, while John lived into old age, Benjamin died at 30, the only Madison County settler killed by native Americans.

Benjamin and John were two of nine siblings in the family of father Benjamin and mother Rosanna. This Fisher family illustrates the constant western movement of American society in search of land in both the 18th and 19th centuries.

In the mid-1700s the Fishers lived in New Jersey where older brother John was born in 1783. Later they spent some years in Bedford County, Pa., where Benjamin and three other siblings were born. After the Northwest Territory was opened for settlement, the family moved again, this time into Clermont County, Ohio, where Benjamin married Hannah Atherton in May of 1798 and where brother John wed Barbara Shetterly in 1809. The Shetterly family is also recorded among Madison County's pioneers.

Traveled in large group

When Indiana's central section, known as the "New Purchase," was ceded by the Delaware Native Americans in 1818, white settlers from Ohio began pouring into the territory even before it could be officially surveyed. While John Rogers has the distinction of being the very first settler — in 1818 in Fall Creek Township — the June 1820 date for the Fishers makes them rival the Dilts family in Union Township and the Hiday family in Green Township as the second to settle here.

The details of that early pioneer experience and of the death of Benjamin Fisher were provided by his son Charles, 1819-1913, for several articles in local newspapers in the early 1900s. From these we have interesting images of pioneer life. In the Fishers' migration west, Benjamin and Hannah would have traveled for safety and support in a large contingent of family and friends.

Charles's parents had driven in a wagon pulled by oxen from Ohio to Winchester in Randolph County, Ind. From that point the group followed the Wapihanne or White River to Andersontown. In 1820 Andersontown was still the village of Kikthawenund, also known as Chief Anderson, and his tribe of Delaware. There were not even white frontiersmen living there or traders bartering their merchandise.

The Fishers continued west into the forested wilderness, following the river until they arrived at a location they believed suitable for settling and farming. This site would later become Fishersburg.

Near Stony Creek, they built a 16-foot round log cabin. The floor was packed dirt. There would have been one door and at least one window. The coverings for these would have been split logs or the tanned skin of a large animal. A fireplace with an exterior chimney would have provided a place to cook food and supply heat in cold weather.

The relatives and friends traveling in the same wagon train would have settled on land in the vicinity and built similar shelters.

Shintapper's death

Having survived an Indiana winter by hunting and subsisting on what meager crops could be planted late in the year before, the men of the families began making plans for clearing more land for planting and pasture.

For this job, the ax was the most important tool. Since tools work best when in prime condition, Benjamin Fisher made a trip in March of 1821 to the nearest settlement that had a grindstone for sharpening axes — Strawtown.

In Hamilton County, Strawtown on the south bank of White River had been a village of Native Americans and was still frequented by them. In 1821, there was only one white family living at the location, the Shintappers.

Besides having a grindstone, Mr. Shintapper made his own liquor and sold it to the "Indians" that still resided in the area. Once they were drunk, Shintapper, according to Charles, would abuse and even torture them. Shintapper on one occasion burned an inebriated "red man" until the victim was crippled for life. In another instance, Shintapper threw a tribal member into a huge fire, and this victim burned to death.

The Native Americans were "justly incensed" reported Charles Fisher, and that spring ten of them armed themselves with knives and tomahawks and decided as revenge to kill Shintapper on a day when they thought he would be alone. Unfortunately, the day they chose was the same day that Benjamin Fisher and additionally Jacob Hiers and John Colip, settlers from Hamilton County, just happened to arrive to sharpen their axes.

The pioneer farmers had not been with Shintapper long before the warriors approached and made their intentions obvious with vigor. The whites banded together for defense with the Shintapper cabin at their backs. There was a sturdy five rail fence surrounding the small pasture around the cabin, and the natives took an offensive position outside the fence. The "red men" would attack over the fence, and the "whites" would chase them back in retreat. The warriors would then turn and charge again, making the settlers race back to the cabin. During one of these assaults, Shintapper was hit with a club and knocked down. Hiers struck the attacker on the head and killed him. This first death produced more rage in the natives, and so the back and forth maneuvering escalated. It was in a later retreat that Benjamin was killed. In running back to the cabin to elude the warriors, Benjamin stumbled and fell to the ground. Several Indians jumped him when he was down and using their tomahawks began pounding his head, breaking open his skull. Death was quick and inevitable. With energy spent and in shock from the loss of their comrades, both sides by unspoken mutual agreement stopped and gathered bodies and the wounded. The natives left the scene.

Son Charles pointed out in one of his interviews that his father was not scalped. He further explained that Benjamin was buried near the sight of the skirmish, and that Benjamin's was the first grave in what would become the Strawtown Cemetery. This burial ground is still in use.

Families remained

Problems between the pioneers and natives were actually rare so much so that the one or two violent acts remained memorable in settlement history.

As to the survivors, the Shintappers the night of the skirmish loaded up their belongings in a canoe and paddled off down White River. They were never seen again.

Hiers and Colip made a journey to the Fisher family to tell them of the tragedy and deliver Benjamin's ax and other possessions. Unlike some first settlers to central Indiana who would eventually keep traveling west, both of these men and their families remained in the neighboring county and can be found on later census records for that area.

As to the Fishers, Benjamin's wife Hannah eventually remarried. She and second husband Benoni Freel— who was the first land owner in Jackson Township to the north — raised Benjamin's four children. Hannah, herself, had a scary encounter with the natives several years later, but that is the stuff for another story. Benjamin's brother John stayed in Madison County; he and his wife raised ten children. Benjamin's son Charles in adulthood married Lucy Busby, and they also stayed and raised a family here. Charles became a successful leader in the frontier community. He was one of its first merchants, a postmaster, and a township trustee.

On May 10, 1837, the Reverend Fletcher Tivis surveyed the site for the first town in the Stony Creek area. Local histories assert that he named it Fishersburg in honor of Benjamin Fisher, the only Madison County pioneer casualty of the "red" versus "white" cultural conflict. Some Fisher family genealogist, however, maintain that the town was named for Benjamin's brother John Fisher, the patriarch who lived to help develop the area. Fisher descendants still reside in Madison County.

HISTORY

Fender skirts? Dog collars? Not in this generation

Jim Bailey

The English language, and more specifically the American language, is constantly changing. Phrases someone my age would instantly recognize draw a blank stare from those in the Wi-Fi generation.

For instance, when was the last time you heard of fender skirts? My first car, a 1950 Chevy, had them. For you whippersnappers, fender skirts were an insert that covered the rear wheel wells of cars. Apparently they were supposed to give them a streamlined look.

And if your car was really fancy it had a Continental kit. That's a rear bumper extension on which the spare tire was mounted with a cover, designed to make it look like an early-generation Lincoln Continental.

Same for curb feelers (an antenna sticking out from the fender that would scrape loudly when you got close enough to the curb). And steering knobs, a knob on the steering wheel that enabled you to drive with one hand; it wouldn't be considered very safe today.

And when's the last time you've been in a car with a clutch? You have to special order straight-stick transmissions today. And you didn't activate the dimmer switch with your hand; it was on the floor.

The really old models had something that's hard to imagine today. You could ride a short distance on the running board, a step on the outside of the doors. And before there were starters, there were cranks. When I was a kid, a friend of my dad's drove a car with no working starter. I loved it when he'd come over, because when it was time to leave he would stick the crank in the front, give it a violent jerk (usually more than one was necessary) and hope the engine started.

Fashions were different. We had A-lines (skirts), the Dior look (shapeless dress, later called the sack or the chemise) and Nehru jackets. And for a few months around 1953, dog collars were the in thing — and not for dogs. Girls wore them around their ankles. The tattoo age was yet to come, thankfully.

The bunny hop, the twist, the horse, the pony, the fly, the stroll and the mash (which metamorphosed into the monster mash) were dances. My wife recalls being disciplined once for doing the bunny hop with some other kids on the front walk.

Ever remember hearing that someone was in a family way? That was a bit more graphic than Victorian era expressions such as "she has cancelled all her appointments." Gradually euphemisms got more descriptive, alluding to a visit from the stork, or simply "expecting." Finally the word pregnant made its way into everyday speech, along with terms a little less polite.

Reading this in the afternoon? Pretty soon it will be time for supper. Oh, that's another obsolete word — somewhere along the line "dinner" moved from the noon hour to the evening meal.

BACK IN THE NEWS

10 Years Ago – 2002

Aug. 13 — The Madison County Health Department is urging residents not to panic concerning the mosquito-borne West Nile virus spreading into the Midwest. The first case in Indiana of a human contracting the disease was reported over the weekend in Wabash. Steve Ford, administrator with the Madison County Health Department, said the department is taking steps to limit the number of adult mosquitoes. "People are calling about dead birds," he said. "We only want to know dead crows, blue jays and hawks." Those birds are better indicators because they feed on other birds and accumulate more of the disease, he said.

Aug. 14 — The Anderson Community Schools board has agreed on a price to purchase property for the construction of an elementary school but, because of concerns in the wording of the contract, tabled the purchase motion until a special session. Kevin Brown, ACS business manager, said an agreement was reached with the Erskine family to purchase 44.4 acres at the southeast corner of 69th Street and Madison Avenue as the school's site. The proposed contract contained several errors, according to board member Irma Hampton Stewart, necessitating the motion's tabling.

25 Years Ago – 1987

Aug. 12 — The Anderson Economic Development Commission approved a request for $1 million in bonding for a private contractor. The money will be used to buy and renovate 43 houses in the city for rental to low- and moderate-income families. George W. Blakely and Larry J. Fitzjarrell, owners of Peoples Space Properties, 5115 Ridge Road, now must present their petition to the Anderson City Council. With city backing, Peoples Space Properties can arrange for $825,000 in low-interest loans to buy and work on the houses, most of which are vacant "eye sores" throughout the city.

Aug. 16 — A drive to raise $75,000 to erect a statue of slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. will officially kick off Aug. 30. The event will be at Wallace Temple A.M.E Zion Church, 1518 Forkner St. "We have already received commitments for approximately $8,000," said Odail Thomas, fundraising chairman. "I feel good that we are finally moving and about the kind of response we have had from the community" The status will stand in the new King Memorial Park, under construction at 22nd Street and Pendleton and Madison avenues.

50 Years Ago – 1962

Aug. 14 — A scissors-wielding inmate yesterday afternoon fatally stabbed a fellow prisoner at the State Reformatory in Pendleton. The victim was identified at Charles Kirby, 29, of Hopkinsville, Ky. The other prisoner was Nelson Johnson, 22 of Nashville. It was reported by State Correction Commissioner Arthur Campbell and Superintendent John Buck of the reformatory that the feud reached its tragic conclusion in the tailor shop of the prison. Superintendent Buck said Johnson reported that Kirby had threatened him. It was also noted that the victim had an "unruly" record.

Aug. 17 — First work for the construction of Interstate 69 through Madison County started this week with preparation for construction of an overpass on the Main Street Road, south of Anderson. A house and barn are being removed from the right-of-way in order that the Jay Fox Construction Company of Fort Wayne can begin work on the $146,000 overpass.

Aug. 15 — Andrew Mock, an employee of the Home Heating Company, was accidentally hit on the head with a sledge hammer by another employee yesterday afternoon. Mock was rendered unconscious, but quickly revived. A scalp wound was inflicted by the hammer, but luckily the skull was not fractured. The injuries are not believed to be of a serious nature.

Aug. 18 — "A Boy's Best Friend is His Mother" was the title of a song John Garrett, 65 years old, of South Lincoln, said he was singing when Captain Charles Williamson approached him shortly after 11 o'clock last night at the south steps of the courthouse, where Garrett had attracted several spectators. Garrett questioned the right of the officer to make him stop singing but when threatened with arrest he agreed to go home.

The Strawtown Cemetery in Hamilton County is the site of the skirmish between early settlers and Native Americans. Benjamin Fisher was killed somewhere in this general area. His was the first grave, 1821, at this location. If Benjamin ever had a grave marker, it probably would have been a rough "field stone" without a name or dates.

Superintendent Buck said Johnson reported that Kirby had threatened him. It was also noted that the victim had an "unruly" record.

Aug. 17 — First work for the construction of Interstate 69 through Madison County started this week with preparation for construction of an overpass on the Main Street Road, south of Anderson. A house and barn are being removed from the right-of-way in order that the Jay Fox Construction Company of Fort Wayne can begin work on the $146,000 overpass.

Aug. 15 — Andrew Mock, an employee of the Home Heating Company, was accidentally hit on the head with a sledge hammer by another employee yesterday afternoon. Mock was rendered unconscious, but quickly revived. A scalp wound was inflicted by the hammer, but luckily the skull was not fractured. The injuries are not believed to be of a serious nature.

Aug. 18 — "A Boy's Best Friend is His Mother" was the title of a song John Garrett, 65 years old, of South Lincoln, said he was singing when Captain Charles Williamson approached him shortly after 11 o'clock last night at the south steps of the courthouse, where Garrett had attracted several spectators. Garrett questioned the right of the officer to make him stop singing but when threatened with arrest he agreed to go home.

Denny's in Vegas to include chapel

LAS VEGAS — Denny's says its newest 24-hour diner in Las Vegas will feature a full bar and a wedding chapel.

The restaurant announced Thursday that it plans to open a flagship diner by the end of the year in downtown Las Vegas' Neonopolis shopping complex.

Denny's CEO John Miller says Las Vegas is ideal for the one-of-a-kind restaurant because it operates on the same 24-hour schedule as the diner itself.

The 6,400-square-foot eatery will include an interactive photo booth where patrons can take their photos with Vegas-themed props and share them on social media sites.

The restaurant will also offer a range of wedding packages at its on-site chapel, some including wedding cakes made of Denny's Pancake Puppies.

The Denny's chain includes more than 1,680 restaurants, including two locations on the Strip.

BIRTHDAYS

Haygood

Noah A. Haygood Sr., will celebrate his 80th birthday on July 14.

Noah was born July 14, 1927, in Lapel, and spent most of his life in the Madison County area except for a few years in Henry County. He was employed at Delco Remy Plant 10 for 34 1/2 years, retiring in 1983.

He was married for 40 years to Thelma K. (Clark) who died in 1994 and his first wife, Billie J. (Brown) died in 1952. He has six children, Jolinda Lich (deceased), Madonna (Paul) Wentworth of Spencer, Kathy (Ron) Dice of Knightstown, Nola (Bill) Martin of Anderson, Noah "Duke" Haygood Jr. of Fortville and Sandy Hendrick (deceased). He has 15 grandchildren and 24 great-grandchildren.

All of Noah's family and friends are invited to help him celebrate at the Meadowbrook Party House, located at the Meadowbrook Golf Course on Madison Avenue. The open house will be held from 2 to 5 p.m. on July 14.

Local residents participate in practicums

MUNCIE — Two Anderson residents completed their final semester bachelor of social work practicum through the Department of Social Work at Ball State University.

Practicums allow students to work full time with social services agencies to gain experience in the social work field. Responsibilities may include working with individuals, families, groups, organizations and the overall community.

Dawn Seal was a senior majoring in social work. She completed her practicum at Stepping Stones for Veterans Anderson.

Semi driver ruins yard

To the so called semi driver who was trying to back into Sloan Drive from 38th Street on Tuesday, April 10. I have no clue if you were tired or drunk, but anyone could have figured out that you couldn't get that semi backed onto that street. After you tore up our yard, hit the tree across the street in another person's yard then hit the telephone pole on the other side of Sloan Drive. I would have thought you could have figured it out! I asked you what you were doing and you said trying to get home, when I asked "Back there?" You said "Yes."

Well you evidentially don't live back there because after I saw the damage to our yard I went back there to try to find you. I asked a gentleman if he knew of any semi drivers who lived back there and he said "No." We just spent several hundreds of dollars fixing that part of the yard because of some idiot who didn't have insurance and now we have to fix it again. You could at least have the guts to come forward and pay for the damage that you caused. Then again, maybe you should take the money and spend on driving lessons or rehab!

Faith

I believe that people who work or volunteer in human services share a common value that we have a responsibility to help those who cannot help themselves. For me and the majority of those I know, that value is driven by faith, regardless of whether we work in a faith-based or secular organization. Many of the organizations that receive funding from United Way are faith-based organizations and as such are operated by persons who share a common set of values and beliefs. Key to the faith-based missions of these, however, is outreach to all in need, regardless of race, color or creed. As in mission work, faith moves the d but does not exclude th receiver of services.

A number of activities spring offer opportuniti put faith into action by h ing others: National Vol teer Week is observed A 15-21; Child Abuse Preve tion is a focus all month culminates in the Bids fo Kids activities with a gol outing April 24 and telev auction April 27 and 28; nation's largest food driv May 12 and involves ever one with a mailbox throu the support of the Nation Association of Letter Car ers; and the Play for Fam Peace Golf Outing is set f May 14.

In West Maplewood Cemetery in Anderson, the statues of children Charles and Gertrude Hilligoss are notable monuments. The grieving parents had an Italian sculptor carve the children's likenesses into marble and then mounted the statues at the graves of the children.

Cemetery dates back to 1902

scaped cemeteries. Instead of the squared lines and cleared ground typical of cemeteries, Maplewood was designed with gentle curves and stately vegetation.

Over the next 10 years, people in the area started refusing to be buried at Anderson City Cemetery because the grounds were not being well-maintained, Beth Oljace said. Oljace is a librarian in the Indiana Room at the Anderson Public Library and somewhat of a historian on Madison County cemeteries.

"The movers and shakers of the area raised $10,000 and asked Maplewood to become caretaker of the Anderson City Cemetery," Oljace said. Thus, Maplewood became East Maplewood and the Anderson City Cemetery became West Maplewood.

Most notable in West Maplewood is probably the statues of children Charles and Gertrude Hilligoss, Oljace

Noah A. Haygood Sr.

July 14, 1927 – Sept. 27, 2007

KNIGHTSTOWN — Noah A. Haygood Sr., 80, Knightstown, passed away Sept. 27, 2007, at Indiana Heart Hospital, Indianapolis, after an extended illness.

He was born July 14, 1927, near Lapel, the son of Leslie Alvin and Dorothy Etta Madonna (Hilligoss) Haygood. He lived in the Ingalls and Lapel area most of his life and had lived in Knightstown for the past 16 years.

He retired from Delco Remy Division of General Motors Plant 10 in 1983 after 34 1/3 years.

He served in the 371st Air Engineer Squadron in World War II. He was an avid hunter and fisherman all of his life and a lifetime member of the NRA.

On Feb. 14, 1954, he married Thelma K. Clark, with whom he had four children: Kathy, Nola, Noah Jr. and Sandy. He had two children, Jolinda and Madonna, by his first marriage to Billie Joan Brown, whom he married in 1948.

He is survived by his daughters, Madonna Sue (Paul) Wentworth of Spencer, Kathy L. (Ron) Dice of Knightstown and Nola Jeanne (Bill) Martin of Anderson; son, Noah A. (friend, Donna Freeman) Haygood Sr. of Fortville; two brothers, Jim Haygood of Ingalls and David (Sylvia) Haygood of Freedom; a sister, Martha Schoolcraft of Noblesville, 15 grandchildren and 22 great grandchildren whom he loved very much; and several nieces, nephews and cousins.

Also surviving are special friends, Carol and Raymond Inman, Mary (Bell) Savage, Dick Clevenger and Walt Mills.

The family would like to thank all those at the Indiana Heart Hospital and Hancock Memorial Hospital for the special care given to our loved one during this time, especially Dr. Blair MacPhail.

He was preceded by his wife, Thelma K. (Clark) Haygood, on Sept. 1, 1994; his first wife, Billie J. (Brown) Haygood, in 1952; two daughters, Jolinda S. Lich and Sandra K. Hendrick; his father, Leslie Alvin Haygood; mother, Dorothy E.M. (Hilligoss) Thompson; stepfather, Charles N. Thompson; sisters, Norma J. Denger and Clara M. Sewell; and brothers, Donald L. and Edward L. Haygood.

Services will be at 1 p.m. Monday at Robert D. Loose Funeral Homes & Crematory, South Chapel, 200 W. 53rd St., Anderson, with the Rev. Leonard Dice and his brother David Haygood officiating. Burial will be in Mendon Cemetery, Pendleton.

Visitation will be from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Monday at the South Chapel.

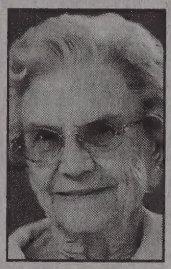
Mary M. Fisher

Jan. 7, 1924 - Dec. 28, 2012

ALEXANDRIA — Mary M. Fisher, 88, of Alexandria, died Dec. 28, 2012, at Saint John's Medical Center in Anderson after a brief illness.



She was born in Montpelier, Ohio, to Ralph Fattig and Vivian (Cortelyou) Fattig.

She has resided in Alexandria since 1947, having spent her early years in Connersville, Ind.

Mary was a graduate of St. Vincent School of Nursing as a Registered Nurse. She was office nurse for her late husband, Dr. Tony Fisher's dental practice in Alexandria for several years. She was a member of Delta Theta Tau Alumni and St. Mary's Catholic Church in Alexandria.

Survivors include a daughter, Colleen (Michael) Short of Fishers; three sons, Anthony "Chip" Fisher Jr. of Ligonier, and Jeff Fisher and Greg Fisher, both of Alexandria; 10 grandchildren, Andrea (Chris) Warner, Mindy (Jason) Closser, Trecia (Clint) Stafford, Eric Fisher, Sara Martin, Suzanne (Adam) Slyford, Jeff Fisher Jr., Valerie Bassett, Richard (Tracy) Bassett and Maribeth (Bradley) Randolph; 11 great-grandchildren, Gabriel Closser, Chloe Closser, Kenna Stafford, Michael Martin, Xander Warner, Zoe Warner, Emerson Slyford, Grant Slyford, Alyssa Clarke, Keira Marie Bassett, and Oliver Randolph; two stepgrandchildren, Kristin Bragg and Heather Lance; several nieces and nephews.

She was preceded in death by her parents; her husband of 58 years, Dr. Anthony W. Fisher, on May 26, 2004; brother, Ralph Fattig; and sister, Janis Becksted.

A Mass of Christian Burial will take place at 2 p.m. Monday in St. Mary's Catholic Church, 820 W. Madison St., Alexandria, with Father Dan Duff officiating.

Interment will follow in Park View Cemetery in Alexandria.

Friends may call at the Noffze Funeral Home, 501 N. Harrison St., Alexandria, from 5 to 8 p.m. on Sunday. A Prayer Service will take place at 6 p.m. Sunday at the funeral home.

Memorial contributions are suggested to the Building and Renovation Fund of St. Mary's Catholic Church through the funeral home.

arises, Williams added.

Though the military-green paint job remains on the transport vehicle, the three Humvees were repainted black and have a sheriff's office logo on them so that people can easily identify them as civilian law enforcement vehicles. Williams also admitted that the office likes showing them off, as well.

"People love seeing them," he said. "They've been a big hit when we've taken them out places."

Williams said that the vehicles will be available for situations around the area, if the need arises.

"The Evansville Police Department knows, the suburban fire departments know, our neighboring counties know, if they need them, they just call us and they're theirs," he said. "We'll get them to them."

Fridley says he's not sure how it spread

By Jack Molitor
The Herald Bulletin

ANDERSON — Fire tankers blocked off the entrance to a subdivision to battle a fire outside the home of an Anderson University coach Friday night.

Fridley

Firefighters responded to a call at the home of Scott Fridley, the AU men's soccer coach, in the 100 block of Canterbury Court about 7 p.m., Chesterfield Fire Chief Jamey Burrows said.

Fridley said he believes the fire started in the family's fire pit near the rear of the house, but he's unsure how it escalated. He said they have been lighting the pit regularly recently and have had no problems.

"I have no idea how it got this bad," Fridley said. "We were just having a normal fire in the fire pit."

Fridley said he was having dinner with his family when they started noticing more and more smoke coming from the direction of the outdoor pit.

"Luckily, my sister-in-law came in and told us she saw a lot of smoke coming out, so to be safe I called

BIRTHDAY

Fisher

The children of Katherine Fisher wish to invite family and friends to come celebrate her 95th birthday on Sunday, Dec. 30, from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Eagles in Lapel.

Katherine was born Dec. 21, 1917, to the late Percy and Lorene Duncan. She married the late Vernon Fisher on March 27, 1937, and together they had three children, Linda (Bill) Hormell of Lapel and Robert (Lynn) Fisher and Liz (Steve) Reddick, both of Anderson. She has been blessed with 18 grandchildren, 21 great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild.

Katherine spent many years selling Avon in the Anderson area and is a member of the Ford Street United Methodist Church in Lapel.

Please omit gifts — your presence will be gift enough.

SARAH Fisher

Mrs. Sarah Fisher, wife of John W. Fisher, died at the family home in Richland township, northeast of Peru, at 6:13 o'clock Wednesday morning after a period of invalidism of about six years with paralysis. She was born in Peru on Sept. 3, 1848, daughter of Thomas and Maria (Kunkle) Skillman, and lived in the county her entire life. She was in her seventy-fourth year when death called her. She was married to her surviving husband in October, 1866, and to this union there were born five surviving children, three sons and two daughters, who are Otto L. Fisher and John A. Fisher, residents of Miami county, and Albert M. Fisher of Atlanta, Ga. And Mrs. Louis Fouts and Emma L. Fisher, also of this county.

The funeral services were held on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Church of the Brethren at Mexico, of which organization she was a member and Rev. Frank Fisher had charge of the services. Interment took place in Greenlawn cemetery.

Oct. 5, 1922 - March 5, 2008

Darrel Daniel Reel, 85, Anderson, died March 5, 2008, at Ball Memorial Hospital in Muncie.

He was born Oct. 5, 1922, in Bone Gap, Ill., the son of David and Laura Ruth (Ganong) Reel. He moved to Anderson at an early age, graduating from Anderson High School in 1940. During high school, he worked for Mr. Winkler's grocery, driving the delivery truck at the early age of 15. In later years, he worked for Ples Mathews and Bud Contos as a meat cutter.

In December 1940, he began work at Delco Remy of Anderson as an apprentice blueprint engineer.

He married his special love, Katherine Redick, on Sept. 25, 1942, at First Church of the Nazarene with the Rev. Fred Thomas officiating.

In 1945, he took his basic training in Fort Leonard Wood as a combat engineer. He served the U.S. Army in the Philippines with the topographic unit making maps for the invasion of Japan before the dropping of the bomb.

He retired from Guide Lamp of Anderson on March 1982 where he was a tool designer.

He and Katherine were treasurers of Guide Travel Club traveling to Hawaii in 1965 and 1969. They also traveled to prederby every year and on several

He retired from Guide Lamp of Anderson on March 1982 where he was a tool designer.

He and Katherine were treasurers of Guide Travel Club traveling to Hawaii in 1965 and 1969. They also traveled to prederby every year and on several cruises.

He built grandfather clocks and large rocking horses for his great-grandchildren and loved to refinish antiques. He worked jigsaw puzzles and framed them to give to special people.

Darrel was a member of First Church of the Nazarene for 60 years. He served his church well with all his volunteer work. He helped build a parsonage and was always available when the new sanctuary was being built. He was custodian for several years.

Survivors include his daughter, Jeannine Sears, of Anderson; a grandson, Jeffrey (Jan) Sears, of Anderson, a granddaughter, Stephanie (Alan) Reismiller of Vero Beach, Fla.; a great-grandson, Riley Sears, and a great-granddaughter, Kelli Sears of Anderson; two great-granddaughters, Katelyn Reismiller and Kyleigh Reismiller of Vero Beach, Fla.; his special niece, Kim Buchanan of Manlius, N.Y.; and his friend from boyhood, Bob Bronnenberg.

He was preceded in death by his lifetime love of 62 years, Katherine (Redick) Reel in 2005; his father, in 1941 and his mother in 1982; two sisters and brothers-in-law, Esther and Cecile Buchanan and Corlene and Obid Woodruff; and a niece and nephew, Nancy Ruth Buchanan and John David Buchanan.

The members of his family were the most important people in his life. His daughter, granddaughter and great-granddaughters were his angels. He was a father to his grandson Jeff and was so proud of his great-grandson.

We will miss his smiling face and his stories at our family dinners.

Services will be held at 11 a.m. Monday at Rozelle-Johnson Funeral Service with Pastor Gary Cable officiating. Burial will be in Anderson Memorial Park Cemetery.

Visitation will be 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday at the funeral home.

Memorial contributions may be made to the First Church of the Nazarene.

Also, the regular sale continues to include DVDs, audio books, children's books and gently used fiction and non-fiction books. Proceeds from the sales support library programs.

FOURTH OF JULY BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

Don Knight / The Herald Bulletin

Lena Wyant of Lapel will be celebrating her 100th birthday today. Her family is hosting an open house from 2 to 5 p.m. today in Lapel.

'My work here's not done'

Lapel woman celebrates 100th birthday today — and she doesn't want a fuss

By Abbey Doyle
The Herald Bulletin

LAPEL — Lena Wyant doesn't want anyone to make a fuss. It's just another birthday; no different than the previous 99.

"I don't want anything too big," she said simply. "I'll get too tired anyway."

The small-framed woman sat straight up in her easy chair speaking softly, but with strength, about her life.

"I didn't have a spectacular life or anything; I just tried to be a good mother and a good wife," Wyant said. "And I enjoyed my grandchildren very, very much."

While she's shared her birthday with the country all these years, this year family and friends want to be sure she gets her own celebration, even if it isn't "too big."

Family is hosting an open house from 2 to 5 p.m. at 908 Main St., in Lapel so she can visit with family coming in from across the country as well as friends. She has 10 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

And the community will help wish her a happy belated birthday as she will be riding in the community's parade for the Lapel Village Parade July 14. She'll be riding in her nephew's "taxi" golf cart which is painted yellow and seats nine.

"I don't really understand why I'll be in the parade, but I guess it is because I'll be 100," Wyant said with a smile.

Even at nearly 100, she is very independent. Her son Eddie Wyant stays with her — although he still has his own home — but she still cares for herself even cooking many of her own meals. And she gets around "OK," she says, with a cane.

"She's remarkable," sister-in-law Lillie McClintock said of Wyant. "Her son lives with her to make sure she gets what she needs but she is in very good health and is doing very well."

"I'm just like everyone else, I've had heartaches and disappointments. But I've lived a good, long life."

Lena Wyant

Wyant is "just like a sister to me," McClintock said, describing her as "so kind and good" and someone who helps everyone.

"When she tells me, 'I don't want people to make a fuss over it,' I tell her, 'We probably aren't going to live to be 100. Not many do,'" she said. "Everybody loves her, brings her things. She's worked in the church for so long and helped everyone. Now they are paying her back."

Wyant joked that she doesn't know the secret of living to 100. She's just tried to live the best she can.

"My work here's not done," she said, matter-of-factly. "I don't know what that work is. God will let me know though. I'm sure he has a reason to keep me here. He's always been good to me. So someday I'll understand."

She was raised on a farm in Madison County north of Lapel, went to school at Lapel High graduating in 1930. She's the only living member of her class. Wyant worked for five years at Remy helping to assemble car horns.

In 1935 she married Edgar Wyant and the couple had two children — Eddie and Wilma. She was a stay-at-home mom and housewife until 1961 when she went to work at the Fair Store in Anderson as a clerk and then at Singer in Anderson as the fabric manager. In 1967, Wyant went to work for Fort Benjamin Harrison Army Financial Center in Indianapolis for 13 years before retiring in 1980.

While she worked in the professional world for about 24 years, Wyant has worked with Trinity United Methodist Church since she joined in 1921 working with the women's society, in the kitchen, with the children or wherever they needed her help.

Over the years it has been hard to say goodbye to family and friends, outliving many of them. Her husband passed away 1973 after 38 years of marriage. She said the losses have been hard, "but I've learned they are just part of life."

"I'm just like everyone else, I've had heartaches and disappointments," she said. "But I've lived a good, long life."

During the last century Wyant's seen a lot of change, some she's been happy to see, others she just doesn't understand.

"When I was raised up we didn't have electricity, no water in the house, we had a horse and carriage and there was no bathroom, just an outhouse," Wyant said. "You see life like it is on 'Little House on the Prairie,' well it wasn't quite that bad, but it was close."

She talked about helping the family on their 80-acre farm where they farmed oats and corn and raised cattle, horses, hogs and sheep. They also had a large garden that required a lot of weed-pulling.

"And we went through the Depression," Wyant said, pointing out that it is nothing like what people are calling a depression in recent times. "It was rough. We had no money. It was terrible."

While Wyant enjoys many of the comforts progress has brought over the years, one technological advancement has her scratching her head and frustrated — computers.

"I can't keep up with the world without a computer," she said. "The younger people don't understand that not everybody has the computer and (the Internet). And so often there is no alternative."

But at the end of the day, Wyant said she's happy.

"I've seen a lot," she said. "I don't remember it all, but I know it's been good."

Unattended fires during drought a recipe for disaster

Jim Bailey

In the wee hours a couple of weekends ago, daughter Rachel and husband Rob were awakened by a bright light shining in the window of the bedroom of their Monroe, Ohio, home.

They got up and peered out the window to discover that a neighbor's house across the street was in full blaze. Needless to say they got very little sleep the rest of the night.

The Monroe Fire Department rapidly contained the fire, which threatened a home next door when one of the walls collapsed. Thankfully nobody was hurt, including their cat, which was rescued from the home. But the home was pretty well gutted.

The blaze, it turned out, resulted from a fire in their fire pit behind the house that had been left to burn itself out. As you may have guessed, it has been just as dry in southwestern Ohio as it has here.

Drought warnings have been spreading, and the risk of sparks from campfires, fireworks and the like obviously is much greater when the ground and surrounding vegetation hasn't been able to soak up enough moisture to prevent burning embers from spreading to tinder-dry stuff.

I imagine the fire departments in this area are getting a bit nervous about the possibilities tonight when privately incinerated Fourth of July fireworks typically will be going off at random, possibly getting into trees and bushes and dry brown grass. I'm entertaining the idea of keeping a hose at the ready in case our neighbors get a little too rambunctious in celebrating the holiday.

Wildfires have torn through Colorado this year, and they are an annual occurrence in California. Lightning strikes are responsible for some of them. But human carelessness and indifference too often is a factor in fires that get out of control in dry conditions.

Even backyard grills are the subject of frequent warnings as people decide their leftover charcoal doesn't need to be monitored, even after it is poured out of the grill. That stuff burns forever, you know. While I like the flavor of charcoal-grilled meat, it's a good argument for gas grills, which turn off instantly.

As for Rachel and Rob's neighbors, it isn't a question of locking the barn door after the horse has been stolen. The fire took its toll, and they will be forced to rebuild without many of their precious keepsakes.

Of course, Rachel and Rob discovered a silver lining. Their son, Cameron, 8, who goes to school with one of their children, came home from church the next morning and said they needed to pray for the family. Rob suggested he might want to pick out some of his toys to help the little girl replace some of what she lost in the fire. Promptly he came downstairs with seven stuffed animals, which they took over to the neighbors.

Sounds to me as though Cameron has learned a thing or two about compassion.

Library event focuses on dreaming, planning

NEW CASTLE — New Castle-Henry County Public Library, 376 S. 15th St., will offer a hands-on workshop designed to walk participants through how to take the steps needed to make dreams become reality. "How Ya Gonna Do It, Dude?" begins at 7 p.m. Tuesday, July 10, in the library's auditorium. Find out how to overcome excuses to create real change. Mark Herbkersman hosts this time of dreaming and planning.

"There are times people just need to start doing something — anything — towards their dreams," Herbkersman said. "It all falls into place when the motion begins, and nobody is going to hand anything to you on a platter — you gotta fill your own plate."

'My wor

Lapel woman celebrates

By Abbey Doyle
The Herald Bulletin

LAPEL — Lena Wyant doesn't want anyone to make a fuss. It's just another birthday; no different than the previous 99.

"I don't want anything too big," she said simply. "I'll get too tired anyway."

The small-framed woman sat straight up in her easy chair speaking softly, but with strength, about her life.

"I didn't have a spectacular life or anything; I just tried to be a good mother and a good wife,"

Anderson firefighters were called to the former Philadelphia Quartz facility Tuesday to extinguish a blaze that started under a pile of scrap metal near the front of the property. Demolition crews have been working at the site for several months tearing down the buildings.

Fire extinguished at demolished factory

By Sam Brattain
The Herald Bulletin

ANDERSON — Firefighters responded to a fire at the former Philadelphia Quartz factory Tuesday afternoon.

The factory is no longer in operation and, according to Battalion Chief Gary Condon, a demolition crew has been working at the site for the last several months.

Condon said the fire started under a pile of scrap metal near the front of the property, which firefighters were able to quickly extinguish upon their arrival.

No crew members were at the scene. However, Condon said it appears they were there earlier in the day.

Condon said it was possible the crew was welding, as equipment was found near the scrap pile, and that the hot embers caught the pile on fire after they left.

Condon said investigators were trying to contact the workers in an effort to officially determine the cause of the blaze.

GARY — A Chicago woman has been charged with neglect of a dependent after allegedly leaving her four children alone in a car while she was inside a Gary casino.

Kathleen C. Walker, 26, is accused of leaving the children, ages 1 to 9, alone for about six hours.

Two patrons alerted a security officer working at the Majestic Star Casino parking garage that there were children in a car and that they had been there for a while. The children were found asleep and half-clothed.

The officer had the children's mother paged, and 15 minutes later she responded and told authorities she'd only been inside the casino for 15 minutes to use the restroom. Walker indicated she had brought her mother to the casino to cash in her mother's promotion cash. The security officer could not find the woman's mother.

Surveillance footage showed Walker arriving at the parking garage at about 9:42 p.m. June 24. She entered the casino at 9:46 p.m. and left the children in the car.

She left the casino at about 11:43 p.m., went to the restaurant and at 12:08 a.m. went to the car with food before leaving the children in the car and returning to the casino. Walker then left the casino and walked inside the garage at 3:38 a.m. after the casino paged her.

Each of the charges is punishable by a maximum three-year sentence.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF
SHARON CARROLL CLARK
6/17/43 – 5/31/04

Forever In Our Hearts
We thought of you
with love today,
but that is nothing new.
We thought of you yesterday,
and days before that too.
We think of you in silence,
we speak your name with pride,
and we relive our memories
of living side by side.
You memory is our keepsake,
with which we'll never part.
God has you in His keeping -
we have you in our heart.

Sadly missed by,
Loving Family and Friends

In 2005, the state studied the impact that riverboat casinos had on Hoosier communities. Here are some findings, though the research is based on riverboat casinos and not the land-based sites as at Hoosier Park.

Overall, benefits exceeded the costs by a minimum of $717 million. The social costs included bankruptcy, crime and regulatory costs; however, benefits included tax and consumer benefits.

The opening of new casinos puts more Hoosiers within the range of being a problem gambler.

The additional number of problem gamblers attributable to Indiana's riverboat casinos was estimated at 6,178 and 12,356 for pathological gamblers who exhibit rs and worses' in 70 years of marriage during growing season, he mows and disks the big farm yard.

"Weeds aren't allowed to grow in their yard," daughter-in-law Virginia Keesling says. "Never were."

Herb and Nellie will have been married 70 years next September. They were high school sweethearts. Nellie was a freshman, Herb a senior in the same high school when they met. They sat at opposite ends of the assembly hall each morning with their own class. Herb told a friend he'd like to meet "that girl," and the friend arranged it by having a party and inviting the two of them.

"But I was only 15, not old enough to go with boys," Nellie says. (1990s parents, take note: people used to tell their kids they weren't old enough to date — and mean it!) "So we'd go to the library, sit side by side and whisper."

They began going out together when she was 16.

"She's the only girl I ever dated," Herb says. In good weather, he drove the family car to her house for visits. In bad weather, he walked to town and took the streetcar in the yard through the years, she just threw it away. "I didn't know it was going to be valuable."

Herb says the old barn was built with wood pins rather than nails. That's still what holds it together. He remembers helping with its construction in small ways every day when he got home from school.

"No one around here could frame a barn like that anymore," he says.

The inevitable questions come up. How have they managed to live so long? And so well?

Nellie thinks it's because "we do things regular." Due to Nellie's diabetes, they have a rigid eating schedule. "But we go to bed when we're sleepy," she adds.

Herb, on the other hand, says, "I eat anything that doesn't eat me first." He just comes from a long-lived family.

They don't discount walking as a factor in their good health — miles of it to school, to town, working fields, doing farm chores and housework.

"That was before we knew walking was good for you," Nellie says. "There wasn't a fat kid in that school!"

YW to present Scrabble tourney

The YWCA, a United Way agency, will host a Scrabble Tournament on Friday, March 16, from 3:30 p.m. to completion.

An annual YW membership is required, in addition to class fees. (Youth 11 and under/$7.50; teens 12-16 years/$12.50) The fee is $3.

Do you enjoy this board game, but have a hard time finding other players? Here is your chance to play this challenging game and exercise your word skills, and earn prizes while exhibiting your knowledge of spelling.

Prizes will be awarded to first- and second-place finishers in each age division. The divisions are 9-10 years, 11-12 years, and 13-15 years. Minimum of six players in each division is required, and participants are to bring their own game board.

Pre-registration is required by calling or stopping by the YW desk.

St. Patrick's Day dance set at union auditorium

The Anderson Summer Festival Committee is urging everyone to get green dance shoes and Leprechaun hats ready for a St. Patrick's Day dance at the U.A.W. Local 662 Auditorium Saturday, March 17.

The party will begin at 8 p.m. and will last until 2 a.m.

Admission is $2 per person. Free hors d'oeuvres will be provided, and music from DJ Buddy Patterson will span the decades from the '50s to what's playing now.

The event is sponsored by U.A.W. Local 662 and the Anderson Summer Festival Committee in order to raise monies for the publication of the festival brochure that is sent throughout the state. More than 50,000 brochures were distributed last year in order for all Indiana residents to enjoy festival events such as the Gaslight Festival, the Riverfest and the many activites at the Anderson Airport, to name a few.

Tickets may be purchased from Local 662 Union Hall, WLHN/WHUT, and the Anderson Chamber of Commerce office. Summer Festival President Linda Wallace urges everyone to attend this fun dance where "everyone is Irish for a day!"

Herb and Nellie survive many 'better

By CAROLE CARLSON

Semi-retired Herb and Nellie Keesling don't get up as early as they used to. They loll in bed until 5:45 a.m. in their farm house near Pendleton. Then they have breakfast and share the dishwashing chores.

One morning, with his hands deep in suds, Herb heard on the radio that some restaurant workers were going to refuse to do dishes because they didn't have a contract.

"Well," he joked, "I'm not gonna do dishes anymore either, because I don't have a contract."

"Sure you do," Nellie said. "You have a marriage contract that says 'for better or worse,' and this is the worse."

They've probably cracked a lot of jokes and laughed off a lot of unwanted chores in their nearly 70 years of better and worse. Like the time when they were all dressed up to go to town and Herb accidentally hit one of the chickens on the head. Killed it on the spot. Herb and Nellie survive many 'betters and worses' in 70 years of marriage

H-B staff writer

Semi-retired Herb and Nellie Keesling don't get up as early as they used to. They loll in bed until 5:45 a.m. in their farm house near Pendleton. Then they have breakfast and share the dishwashing chores.

One morning, with his hands deep in suds, Herb heard on the radio that some restaurant workers were going to refuse to do dishes because they didn't have a contract.

"Well," he joked, "I'm not gonna do dishes anymore either, because I don't have a contract."

"Sure you do," Nellie said. "You have a marriage contract that says 'for better or worse,' and this is the worse."

They've probably cracked a lot of jokes and laughed off a lot of unwanted chores in their nearly 70 years of better and worse. Like the time when they were all dressed up to go to town and Herb accidentally hit one of the chickens on the head. Killed it on the spot. Nellie certainly wasn't going to waste food, so she went right back into the kitchen in her best dress, boiled water and dressed the chicken.

Nellie always had about 300 chickens. "I raised as many as I could get the hens to set," she says. "I'd almost tie them to the nest, I wanted chicks so bad!"

Not that they always did her a lot of good. Nellie remembers trying to sell her eggs to a grocery store in town one day during the Depression. The store was already glutted with eggs, because townspeople were so poor they couldn't afford to buy them. So Nellie just walked down the street, handing out her eggs free to anybody who needed them.

The Keeslings say they lived on their farm during one lean six-year stretch without any money. But in those days, they baked their own bread, churned butter, gathered eggs, butchered meat, kept a big garden and pulled dandelion greens in the front yard for cooking. So who needed the cash anyway?

Busy, always busy. They still are.

Nellie china paints or quilts for hours every day — took up china painting when she was past 50 and quilting when she was past 80. (She fires her china work in her own kiln.)

She's made 12 quilts so far and plans to make enough for all the women in the family.

"Well, after that, I guess I should do some for the grandsons, too," she says. (She and Herb have three children, 11 grandchildren, 12 great-grandchildren and six great-great-grandchildren.)

That's a lot of quilts, but Nellie says, "I've got to stay busy . . . I can't believe I'm 88 years old."

Herb, at 91, has trimmed the farming some. In the old days, he says, he kept six or eight milk cows, six brood sows and three or four field and buggy horses.

"I sold my last horse in 1941," he says. "I quit the milk cows 32 years ago."

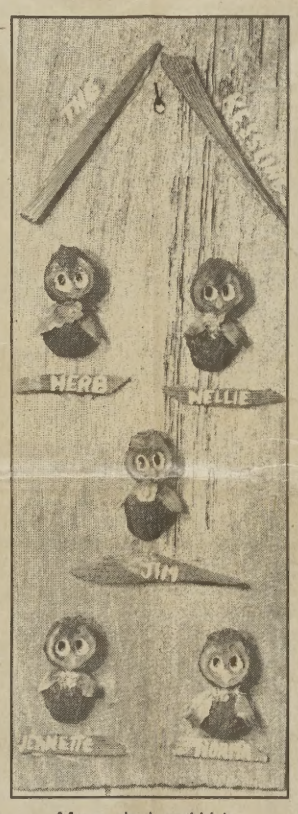
When he sold his last eight milk cows, he wouldn't turn them over to the new owner until about 7 in the evening, after one last milking. They were good milk producers, he says, and he didn't want them damaged by going long past their regular milking time.

Herb raised beef cattle — black angus — until 1976 when he broke his leg. After that, he wasn't supposed to climb around the barn or over fences, so he gave them up.

He still grows crops — wheat, beans, corn — with the help of only son James and younger brother Everett. Interstate 69 took a little slice of Herb's land, but he still has about 100 acres. Everett has another hundred or so just down the road. The two men have always farmed in the old family way — together.

"I'm the kid of this outfit," 68-year-old James, a Delco retiree, says with a smile. "I told him I'd help with the farming, if he'd keep the books. I didn't want to mess with buying the seed and all that stuff."

So Herb takes care of business matters. He also goes out to the barn every day, and during growing season, he mows and disks the big farm yard.



Mom, dad and kids

"Weeds aren't allowed to grow in their yard," daughter-in-law Virginia Keesling says. "Never were."

Herb and Nellie will have been married 70 years next September. They were high school sweethearts. Nellie was a freshman, Herb a senior in the same high school when they met. They sat at opposite ends of the assembly hall each morning with their own class. Herb told a friend he'd like to meet "that girl," and the friend arranged it by having a party and inviting the two of them.

"But I was only 15, not old enough to go with boys," Nellie says. (1990s parents, take note: people used to tell their kids they weren't old enough to date — and mean it!) "So we'd go to the library, sit side by side and whisper."

They began going out together when she was 16.

"She's the only girl I ever dated," Herb says. In good weather, he drove the family car to her house for visits. In bad weather, he walked to town and took the streetcar from there.

They were married Sept. 12, 1920. And they've lived it all — depressions and boom times and wars — in their big white farm house north of Pendleton on old 132 (Lapel Pike).

Herb was born in the house. His grandfather bought the land in 1892. It was all woods then except for one little cleared area where there stood a two-room house of undetermined age. Herb's father (then 15) and grandfather set the little house on poles and hauled it with a steam tractor from a spot down the road. Rooms were added to the front later, and then plumbing and then plumbing and electricity. Now it's the two-story, seven-room house Herb and Nellie have always lived in. Most of the wood to build it came from their own land.

Nellie says she wishes she'd kept the gingerbread that used to adorn the house. As she found wind-blown pieces of it lying in the yard through the years, she just threw it away. "I didn't know it was going to be valuable."

Herb says the old barn was built with wood pins rather than nails. That's still what holds it together. He remembers helping with its construction in small ways every day when he got home from school.

"No one around here could frame a barn like that anymore," he says.

The inevitable questions come up. How have they managed to live so long? And so well?

Nellie thinks it's because "we do things regular." Due to Nellie's diabetes, they have a rigid eating schedule. "But we go to bed when we're sleepy," she adds.

Herb, on the other hand, says, "I eat anything that doesn't eat me first." He just comes from a long-lived family.

They don't discount walking as a factor in their good health — miles of it to school, to town, working fields, doing farm chores and housework.

"That was before we knew walking was good for you," Nellie says. "There wasn't a fat kid in that school!"

Since Nellie broke each hip on separate occasions, long-distance walking bothers her. She uses a wheelchair at shopping malls. She had a heart attack years ago, but it doesn't seem to trouble her now.

Herb still drives a car to places he's familiar with — to a grocery store in Anderson, to the doctor's office, to church every Sunday and restaurants.

They host Christmas each year for their three children, their families and a few friends.

"But," Nellie is quick to point out, "it's really a pitch-in. All I make is the chicken and dumplings."

They had 37 at their house for the 1989 Christmas dinner. Let's see. If each guest limited him/herself to just five dumplings, that's —

But then, you probably couldn't limit people on dumplings when the cook's had 70 years of experience.

Herb heads out to the barn every day. (John Cleary photos)

70 years of changes

From buggies to supersonic flight, from bucket-down-the-well to electric freezers — the Keeslings have seen a lot of changes in their 70 years, even contributed to some of them.

Nellie says Falls Park at Pendleton "was a dirty place, just a pit" until the early 1920s. Then Herb and other farmers hauled dirt to the old stone quarry for three days to create the beautiful park and falls. They bored holes in the rock so tree roots could grow. It was all donated time.

The Keeslings remember when people used to ford the creek where Thomas Bridge is in Pendleton. They also washed their buggies there. And when the metal rims on wooden buggie wheels got loose, they would drive the vehicles back and forth through the water, saturating and expanding the wheels' wood so it fit tight against the rims again.

Herb remembers some time-consuming farm methods. He used to walk a plow hitched to three horses, making one 14-inch furrow at a time. "You had to scurry to do an acre in a day," he says. He also shucked corn and milked cows by hand.

Their first "refrigeration" was a bucket down the well, followed by an icebox cooled with chunks of ice purchased in town.

Nellie made her own soap and hominy. The ingredients for soap were meat grease, commercial

About FamilySearch Pedigree Resource File:
The Pedigree Resource File is a new lineage linked database of records available on compact disc containing family history records submitted by individuals through FamilySearch Internet Genealogy Service. Family information is organized in family groups and pedigrees and includes submitted notes and sources. Many charts and reports can be printed from this data. Each disc contains about 1.1 million names. With the publication of every five discs, a master index for those discs will be published and packaged with that set of discs. With the publication of every 25 discs, a master index for those discs will also be published and packaged with that volume of discs. Discs may be purchased as sets or volumes.

EMILY A. FISHER

Lydia and Lawrence Irwin, 1941

nois. The two were married prior to 1902 at which time the young couple set out to establish a home somewhere in the great northwest. They travelled by horse drawn vehicle from North Dakota, settling at Milo, Al[ber]ta for a time.

They left the Milo home behind and moved to Arrowwood around 1916 where they purchased a farm. . . . As time marched on a family of eight grew up around the home, arriving in the following order: Lela Mishler—now living in Calgary, Dorothy Jordon—living in Pamono, Calif., Paul Irwin—owner and operator of Irwin Motor Inn, Banff, Al[ber]ta, Grace Schneider—residing in Cupertino, most likely a preventive station with an immigration officer from October 1911. There was also an immigration inspector at a border crossing of unknown location called Twin Lakes. It may have been within Waterton Lakes National Park, across the border from Glacier National Park in Montana.

IT IS NOT KNOWN whether any records survive of immigrants who entered Canada at the prairie border entry places before 1908. Extant records for many ports of entry begin in 1908 or 1909. The Report of Admissions used by the immigration officers evolved over the years; however, the one used in 1910 at North Portal is a good example. The sheets were divided into columns as follows: 1.

JOHN AND IDA FISHER

by Ruth (Fisher) Shatto

John and Ida Fisher were both born in Indiana, John in 1864 and Ida in 1869. They were married in 1888.

About 1896 they felt "the call of the West" and with their son, Eldon and daughter, Florence, they immigrated to Devil's Lake, North Dakota where another daughter, Ruth (Shatto) was born. They lived there until they took up a homestead in 1897 near Perth, N.D. . . . Another daughter, Mary was born here on Aug. 17, 1900.

Eldon took a trip to Alberta [after 1905] and . . . encouraged his folks to move to Medicine Hat. . . . After trying to farm for six years . . . they moved into [town]. There John worked in the Ogilvie Flour Mills and in a grocery store.

In 1921 they moved to Arrowwood where . . . Ruth Shatto was living and . . . Mary was teaching school. For awhile John was janitor of the school there and they lived in the upstairs quarters and boarded two teachers. Then he built his home, and continued in carpenter work, was village constable for a time and helped in the re-building of the Church of the Brethren.

They lived in Arrowwood until John died in 1933. Mrs. Fisher . . . rented the house and lived in California, Indiana[,] and then in Ohio with Mary . . . until her death in 1956. She was buried in her father's family plot at North Manchester, Indiana.

PERKINSVILLE RESTS AFTER BRISK PERIOD

Friendship Unshaken While Time Enforces Sharp Contrast With Past

FIRST SETTLERS IN 1820

Town Founder Won Barefoot Bride—Pioneers' Cabins —Reunion is Near

The little village of Perkinsville nestles serenely on the north bank of White river, thirteen miles northeast of Anderson, on the Hamilton-Madison county line, in Jackson township, Madison county.

There are fewer residents homes, and business houses at Perkinsville than there were less than thirty years ago. The old timer who visits Perkinsville reluctantly notes these facts. In an earlier day Perkinsville boasted of a population of four hundred, while now there are only one hundred and seventy-five residents.

At one time the streets of Perkinsville were always designated by names from west to east as Hamilton, Mulberry, Washington, Madison and Walnut street, while from north to south were Montgomery Center, and Water streets.

On the second Sunday in August, 1930, the beauiful Gentry Grove will be the scene of the seventh annual Perkinsville Home coming. The officers are Charles N. Branch, president; Beecher Willets, of Elwood, treasurer; and Mrs. Charm Carpenter, secretary. Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Gentry have always let social gatherings be held in their grove and it is much appreciated by community folk.

Jackson Township First Settlement

Jackson township was one of the first five townships to be organized in Madison county, being named after General Andrew Jackson. Zenas Beckwith and family arrived in 1820. Daniel Wise came here from Ross county, Ohio in the spring of the year 1822. In October of the same year Mr. Wise entered four hundred acres of land on the south side of the river. It is disputed whether or not Benoni Freil was the first settler in these parts.

Among the first settlers were two men, Mr. Kinser and Mr. Dewey. Kinser built a cabin one and one half miles up the river while Dewey had his cabin directly opposite Perkinsville. These men both moved on soon.

First Perkins Farm, Etc.

In the fall of 1825 William Perkins leased a tract from Daniel Wise and before Christmas, 1826, he had built a log cabin and he, his wife, and seven children had moved into it. Among other early settlers were Lemuel Auten, Joseph Lee, and Alexander and George McClintock.

William Perkins was evidently religious as he preached the first funeral sermon ever heard in this community, for a young man whose name is unknown. His death followed an accident in which he was hit by a falling tree while clearing land.

First Brick House

Robert Blair erected the first brick house in Jackson township on his farm opposite Perkinsville in 1827.

Bicknell Cole helped lay out Perkinsville in 1837. The town was named after James Athia Perkins who was born in 1808 and came to Perkinsville in the early 30's. Mr. Perkins was the maker of pottery.

The Pioneer Cabins

The log cabin of the pioneer was very crude, the size usually being 18x20 feet, story about 8 feet. The furniture in the cabin was usually made from poles and sections of logs. The settlers joined forces, helping each other build cabins and clear land. These cabins were built upon a tract of forty, eighty, or one hundred and sixty acres of heavily timbered land, with not a stick amiss, except what had been taken for buildings. The early settlers also had to contend with wild animal menaces. After the settler built his cabin, he planted a patch of corn, tobacco, and a garden. His possessions, few and simple, were usually a cow, a yoke of oxen, a hog, chickens, an axe, maul, wedge, auger, a plow, a gun, and a few household goods. The pioneers were great hunters.

Many were the hardships endured by the pioneer. Labor was hard and wages were low; John McClintock is said to have worked on the Fort Wayne road for 25 cents per day, and on the old canal wages were equally low.

Hospitality was unbounded and helpfulness was the common rule.

Some of the amusements of the people were, weddings, dances, fox chases, house raisings, log rollings, or apple and quilting bees.

Married While Barefoot

Mrs. Mary Gunn, age 85, relates the incident of the marriage of her cousin, Harriett Webb, and James Athia Perkins for whom Perkinsville was named, as happening when she was a child. The first wife of Mr. Perkins, a Miss Montgomery didn't live long. He afterwards courted Miss Webb and they decided to be married, but they set no date as they did not know when they could procure a circuit rider to marry them. Miss Webb lived with an uncle, William Webb. One day she was scrubbing, being barefooted and wearing her long full skirt pinned up from the hem to the waist, when James and the preacher arrived. This did not plague Harriet; she merely unpinned her dress, took her sunbonnet off, brushed her hair back and was married barefoot. It was not uncommon then to see men and women barefoot, as shoes were hard to get.

Anne Anderson and Jacob Zellars were married March 22, 1892, by Justice of the Peace Stephen Fisher, of Lapel, while sitting in a buggy.

LAPEL.

5-27-06

LAPEL, Ind., May 26.—Mrs. Stephen Fisher died of congestion of the stomach at 7 o'clock yesterday morning after a day's sickness. Mrs. Fisher is about 35 years of age. Her husband was one of the first blacksmiths in Lapel. The funeral will take place Sunday morning from Prairie Baptist church. Interment in Brookside cemetery.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Stanford Baugher, of east of Lapel, was buried in Pendleton cemetery yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Baugher is in a critical condition.

The funeral of the late Mrs. S. E. Fisher was held yesterday morning in Prairie Baptist church, west of Lapel. The Lapel band, of which Mr. Fisher was formerly a member, met the funeral cortege just outside of the town and led the way to Brookside cemetery, where the took place.

Home. No cause of death was immediately available.

Childs set a number of world records for non-irrigated corn yields, including 442 bushels per acre in 2002. He was a six-time winner of the National Corn Growers Association's contest.

His achievements were featured in several publications, including The Wall Street Journal.

Besides farming, Childs also liked tractor pulling and snowmobile racing. He owned a snowmobile shop for more than 20 years, according to an obituary published by the funeral home.

Kathryn Ish

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — Kathryn Ish, an actress and voiceover talent whose career spanned off Broadway theater to "Laverne & Shirley" alongside her late husband, actor Richard Stahl, has died. She was 71.

Ish died Dec. 31 at her home in Santa Barbara after an almost three-year battle with cancer, her daughter said.

Richard Stahl, whose screen credits include Mel Brooks' 1977 spoof "High Anxiety" and TV's "The Odd Couple," plus "Laverne & Shirley," died in 2006.

They went on to perform in a variety of nightclub and cabaret acts, and moved in the 1960s to San Francisco and joined improv comedy group The Committee, said Ish's daughter.

The pair settled in Santa Barbara in 1975.

Ish's TV and movie credits include "WKRP in Cincinnati," "The Love Boat," and 1995's comedy-drama "The American President."

Edward LeRoux

TUFTONBORO, N.H. — Edward "Buddy" LeRoux, former part owner of the Boston Red Sox and real estate baron, has died. He was 77.

He died Monday in a New Hampshire hospital, according to the Lord Funeral Home in Wolfeboro.

LeRoux started as a trainer for the Red Sox from 1966-74. He served as the team's vice president from 1978-79, then became an owner as part of a group that included Haywood Sullivan and Jean Yawkey, widow of longtime team owner Tom Yawkey.

He was forced to sell his share of the team after a failed attempt to wrest control from Sullivan and Yawkey.

The "Le Coup LeRoux" occurred June 6, 1983, on a support from the team's partners to take control of the team. The announcement turned the Conigliaro celebration into an afterthought.

Red Sox fans were outraged by the timing, and Sullivan and Yawkey later took LeRoux to court, where he lost. Yawkey purchased LeRoux's piece of the Red Sox in 1987.

Ken Nelson

LOS ANGELES — Ken Nelson, a longtime talent scout at Capitol Records who produced dozens of No. 1 country music hits and helped push Buck Owens and Merle Haggard to country stardom in the 1960s, has died. He was 96.

Nelson died Jan. 6 of natural causes at his home in Somis, his daughter, Claudia Nelson, told the Los Angeles Times.

A co-founder of the Nashville-based Country Music Association who spent more than two decades in charge of Capitol's country music division, Nelson produced upward of 100 No. 1 country hits, including Hank Thompson's landmark 1952 hit "The Wild Side of Life," which spent 15 weeks at the top of the charts and sent Thompson's popularity skyrocketing.

In Loving Memory Of
6/17/43 ~ 5/31/04

Forever In Our Hearts
We thought of you
with love today,
but that is nothing new.
We thought of you yesterday,
and days before that, too.
We think of you in silence,
we speak your name
with pride,
and we relive our memories
of living side by side.
Your memory is our keepsake,
with which we'll never part.
God has you in His keeping -
we have you in our heart.

Sadly missed by,
Loving Family and Friends

Ainge mum on Oden

BOSTON – Celtics basketball boss Danny Ainge, already fined $30,000 over contact with a potential draft choice, remained mum Friday after Ohio State star Greg Oden said he would enter the NBA draft.

"I can't comment until it's official," Ainge said at Fenway Park before a ceremony to honor late Celtics patriarch Red Auerbach.

The Celtics finished with the second-worst record in the league, giving them a good chance at drafting either Oden or Texas star Kevin Durant. Both have said they are going pro, but Ainge said he could not comment until May 3, when the league confirms that their paperwork has been filed.

Ainge was fined last month after the Big 12 tournament, when he sat next to the mother of Texas star freshman and likely lottery draft pick Kevin Durant. The league said Ainge violated rules demanding that contact be kept to a minimum between team executives and potential NBA draft picks, until college players officially declare for the draft.

Riley to return next year to coach Heat

ORLANDO, Fla. – Last summer, it wasn't until late August that Pat Riley officially announced he was returning to coach this season after an offseason of uncertainty.

The delay in response sparked speculation that this season would be his last, as Riley has stated he wouldn't make decisions on his future that far in advance.

But Riley now sounds like a coach who not only will return for remain as the Heat coach as long as Shaquille O'Neal is under contract.

"My plans are to come back," said Riley.

Celtics' Telfair jailed on gun charge

YONKERS, N.Y. – Boston Celtics guard Sebastian Telfair was arrested early Friday after police stopped him for speeding and found a loaded handgun under a seat in his SUV.

Telfair, 21, of Brooklyn was stopped at about 4 a.m. on the Bronx River Parkway in Yonkers, N.Y. after being clocked at 77 mph in a 45-mph zone in his Range Rover, Westchester County police spokesman Kieran O'Leary said.

Neither Telfair nor passenger Al Eden Fuentes had a valid driver's license, so Telfair's SUV was set for impoundment and searched by an officer, O'Leary said. The officer quickly noticed the butt of the handgun sticking out from under the passenger seat, O'Leary added.

Telfair and Queens resident Fuentes, 28, said they knew nothing about the gun, O'Leary said. Police still were investigating whether the gun was registered.

Jane A. Parks

June 14, 1930 - Nov. 4, 2007

LAPEL — Jane Ann Parks, 77, passed away Nov. 4, 2007, at her residence, following an extended illness.

She was born on June 14, 1930, in Lapel to Francis and Dortha (Montgomery) Howell.

She graduated from Lapel High School in 1948.

Jane retired in 1987 from Riverview Hospital after 30 years of employment.

She was a member of Ford Street United Methodist Church, the United Methodist Women, Circle One, the Helping Hands and, for many years, sang in the church choir.

Survivors include her husband, Everett Leroy Parks; three children, Donna Kay and husband Richard Clouse of Lapel, Philip and wife Carmie Parks of Campton, Ky., and Gary and wife Janice Parks of Rushville; two brothers, Jack and wife Jackie Howell of Lapel, Dick and wife Judy Howell of San Antonio, Texas; one sister, Peggy and husband David Pritchett of Frankton; four grandchildren, Matthew and wife, Sandra Clouse of Lapel, Andrea and husband Eric Jakubiak of Chicago, Ill., Cory Parks of Rushville, and Vincent and wife Jennifer Parks of Lexington, Ky; and four great-grandchildren, Jordan and Jenna Clouse and Tia and Alex Benefiel.

Jane was preceded in death by her parents.

Graveside services and burial will be conducted at 10:30 am Thursday at Brookside Cemetery in Lapel, officiated by the Rev. Mark Helm.

There will be no visitation.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to the children and adult volunteer choirs at Ford Street United Methodist Church, P.O. Box 626, Lapel, IN 46051-0626.

Arrangements have been entrusted to Scott E. Hersberger Funeral Home, Lapel.

Post online condolences at www.hersbergerfuneralhome.com or www.theheraldbulletin.com.

Hulda M. Fisher

Oct. 29, 1912- Nov. 3, 2008

Hulda M. (Urbahns) Fisher, 96, Anderson, died Nov. 3, 2008, at Community Northview after a brief illness.

She was born Oct. 29, 1912, in Columbus, Ind., and lived in Anderson for more than 70 years.

She was employed for 18 years for Anderson Community Schools as school secretary at Southside Elementary, North Side Middle School, then Hiawatha Elementary.

She was a member of Christ Lutheran Church, Pink Lady at Community Hospital, AARP, Conservation Club and a lifelong member of Democratic Party.

Survivors include four children, Robert (Elaine) Fisher of Muncie, Carol (Charles) Carlson of Anderson, Janice (Warren) Brown of Osage Beach, Mo., and Scott (Linda) Fisher of Germantown, Tenn.; a brother, Leonard Urbahns of Bolivar, Ohio; eight grandchildren, Susan Fisher, Samantha Fisher, Elizabeth Brown, Christopher Brown, Chuck Carlson, Craig Carlson, Loren Fisher and Nathan Fisher; five great-grandchildren, Kurtis Carlson, Kyle Carlson, Morgan Brown, Macey Brown, Madison Brown; and several nieces and nephews.

She was preceded in death by her husband, whom she married Aug. 26, 1934, Kenneth Fisher, on June 25, 1995; and several brothers and sisters.

The family wishes to thank Community Northview Health Care and Southern Care Hospice for all their loving care for mom.

Services will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday at Christ Lutheran Church with Pastor Gary Carstens officiating. Burial will follow in Anderson Memorial Park Cemetery.

Visitation will be 3 to 7 p.m. Friday at Rozelle-Johnson Funeral Service, 229 S. Rangeline Road, Anderson.

Memorial contributions may be made to Christ Lutheran Church.

E-mail condolences to RJFuneralSvc@aol.com or post them at www.theheraldbulletin.com.

About FamilySearch Pedigree Resource File:
The Pedigree Resource File is a new lineage linked database of records available on compact disc containing family history records submitted by individuals through FamilySearch Internet Genealogy Service. Family information is organized in family groups and pedigrees and includes submitted notes and sources. Many charts and reports can be printed from this data. Each disc contains about 1.1 million names. With the publication of every five discs, a master index for those discs will be published and packaged with that set of discs. With the publication of every 25 discs, a master index for those discs will also be published and packaged with that volume of discs. Discs may be purchased as sets or volumes.

Please Note:
Submitter information is provided to help in the coordination of personal family history research. Use of this information for any other purpose, including marketing, advertising, or commercial solicitation, is strictly prohibited.

William Castor Dies Wednesday

William Lucian Castor, 89, Rt. 1, Pendleton, died Wednesday evening at home. He had been a farmer in the Prairie Baptist community, Hamilton County.

Mr. Castor was a member of Victory Chapel Wesleyan Methodist Church.

Survivors include: the widow, Stella Snowden Castor, with whom he celebrated their 62nd wedding anniversary Jan. 27; one son, Orville of Altadena, California; two daughters, Mrs. Floyd Propps, Rt. 1, Pendleton, with whom he made his home, and Mrs. S. Floyd Garrison, Noblesville; a half-brother, Ross Petrie of Miami, Florida; four grandchildren.

Friends will be received after 7 p. m. today in the Fisher Brothers Funeral Home, Lapel. Arrangements for services are pending.

Stella A. Castor, 80, Dies Sunday

Mrs. Stella A. Castor, 80, who had been making her home with a daughter, Mrs. Myrl Propps, R. 1, Pendleton, died at 1 p. m. Sunday at St. John's Hospital at Anderson after a short illness.

Mrs. Castor, who was born in Indiana, had resided for 25 years in the Prairie Baptist community, west of Lapel. She was the daughter of Francis and Alice Snowden. Her husband, Lucius, died last June. Mrs. Castor was a member of the Victory Chapel Church and the WCTU.

Surviving in addition to the daughter at whose home she died are a son, Orville Castor, Altedena, California; another daughter, Mrs. Ruby Garrison, Noblesville; five grandchildren; eight great-grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. Mary Williams, Lapel, and two brothers, Marion Snowden, Anderson, and Arlie Snowden, Howell, Michigan.

The body was taken to the Fisher Brothers Funeral Home at Lapel where services were conducted at 2 p. m. Wednesday at the Victory Chapel Church with the Rev. A. L. Duncan officiating. Burial was in the Brookside Cemetery in Lapel.

e headquarters of Madison conscription board No. 1 the riotism of some people as well disposition of others to let ne else whip the Kaiser is inds, the number of apparently ul women there are in the whose husbands think they are id that they could not possibly ng in the world and subsist if sband were not at home to min- o their wants. Many of those ave claimed exemption have their reason for the claim on eakness of the wife, making it sible for her to live if the hus- were to go to the front. they tter From Patriotic Woman.

while there are some, as is fre- y said, who want to "hide be- skirts," there are some women are willing to make almost any ice to let their sons go to the in defense of American civiliza- nd ideals. A letter came to the yesterday that sets out the real osim that is found in many places is country.

in J. Llewellyn, a machinist, 1426 ut street, had claimed exemption e ground that he is the only sup- of his mother and sister. The rs were sent to the mother, Mrs. h J. Llewellyn, Henryville, for her ature. Yesterday her reply came he board as follows:

am mailing these papers back to unsigned, as there are some ements in them I can not truth- y approve. My daughter and I willing to drop the claim for ex- ption for my son, Irvin Llewellyn. e is needed in the military service are both willing to make a strong rt to live without his support."

Llewellyn was placed in class No. y the board.

MAY APPEAL TO THE PRESIDENT

DISTRICT BOARD AGAIN SHOWS MADISON COUNTY BOARD NO. 1 IS CORRECT.

ANOTHER PLANNING FOR WEDDING

One registrant in the conscription draft appealed because he was placed in class two, feeling sure that the board here had made a mistake in classifying him. The return yesterday indicated that the board had made no mistake, for the appeal board placed the applicant in class one-A. Now, as a last resort, he is threatening to appeal to the president.

Another applicant who was placed in class one, did not object to his classification if the appeal board would let him remain at home until after the first of May. On that date he is arranging to be married and he does not feel that his services are so much needed at the front until that time as he is at home. Using his own language: "I would rather disappoint Uncle Sam than the girl."

The classifications yesterday follow:

About FamilySearch Pedigree Resource File:
The Pedigree Resource File is a new lineage linked database of records available on compact disc containing family history records submitted by individuals through FamilySearch Internet Genealogy Service. Family information is organized in family groups and pedigrees and includes submitted notes and sources. Many charts and reports can be printed from this data. Each disc contains about 1.1 million names. With the publication of every five discs, a master index for those discs will be published and packaged with that set of discs. With the publication of every 25 discs, a master index for those discs will also be published and packaged with that volume of discs. Discs may be purchased as sets or volumes.

About FamilySearch Pedigree Resource File:
The Pedigree Resource File is a new lineage linked database of records available on compact disc containing family history records submitted by individuals through FamilySearch Internet Genealogy Service. Family information is organized in family groups and pedigrees and includes submitted notes and sources. Many charts and reports can be printed from this data. Each disc contains about 1.1 million names. With the publication of every five discs, a master index for those discs will be published and packaged with that set of discs. With the publication of every 25 discs, a master index for those discs will also be published and packaged with that volume of discs. Discs may be purchased as sets or volumes.

THOMAS M. BUSBY, the son of Silas and Elizabeth (McAllister) Busby, was born in Madison County, Indiana, December 1, 1843. The parents were both of English descent, the father being born in 1821, in Indiana, and the mother in Virginia in 1820. The mother came to Indiana when a girl where she was married in 1841. To this union were born five children, viz.: Thomas, John, Isaac Vinton, Hester and Elizabeth, all of whom are now living. Mr. Busby, the subject of this sketch, was raised on his father s farm in Madison County, received a good education for that day of log school houses and puncheon floors. On the 11th of December 1864, Mr. Busby was married to Eliza Ellen Morris, daughter of Ephraim and Mary (McAllister) Morris, the former of Scotch and the mother of Irish descent, the father dying in 1844. Mr. Busby is a member of the I.O.O.F. They began life in Madison County, Indiana, and in February 1874, moved upon the farm on which he now lives in Section 13. To this marriage were born the following children, viz.: Augustus, born September 23, 1865; Silas, born September 15, 1870, and Hester, born October 8, 1881; all of whom are living. Beginning life a poor boy at the age of twenty-one, Mr. Busby has worked hard and has by dint of industry and perseverance gained a fine farm of 108 acres of well improved land in Section 13. As his early life was spent on a farm he has adopted it as a profession and is now an industrious, enterprising young farmer and a number one citizen.

Frederick M. Busby

Oct. 1, 1943 - Nov. 20, 2007

Frederick M. Busby, 64, Anderson, passed away Tuesday, Nov. 20, 2007, as a result of an automobile accident.

He was born on Oct. 1, 1943, in Anderson, to Leonidas and Maxine (Haas) Busby Curnutt. He graduated from Lapel High School in 1962.

Fred retired in 1992 from Delco Remy after 27 years of employment. He was also an ordained minister and had served as minister of music at many churches, including Fishersburg Wesleyan Church.

He attended Old Country Full Gospel Church in Pendleton and was a member of the Global Harvesters and the United Auto Workers Local 662.

He is survived by his wife, Linda G. Busby; one daughter, Kathleen Singer of New Palestine; two sons, Ronald Busby of Palm Harbor, Fla., and Royce (wife, Amber) Busby of Anderson; one brother, Royce (wife, Julie) Busby of Anderson; one stepbrother, Don (wife, Melanie) Curnutt of Richmond; three stepchildren, Tammy (husband, Everett) Crose of Anderson, Edwin (wife, Rita) Drews of Anderson, and Shannon (husband, Mark) Clough of Charlotte, N.C.; 13 grandchildren, Randy, Shane, Alex, Austin, Adam, Seth, Tiffany, Ben, Savannah, Lindsay, Travis, Branden and Ali; and a special friend, Gus Bubenzer of Anderson.

Services will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday at Scott E. Hersberger Funeral Home in Lapel with the Rev. Rick Craig officiating. Entombment will follow in Brookside Cemetery, Lapel.

Visitation will be from 4 to 8 p.m. Friday at the funeral home.

Memorial contributions may be made to Old Country Full Gospel Church, 1 Plaza Drive, Suite 18, Pendleton, IN 46064.

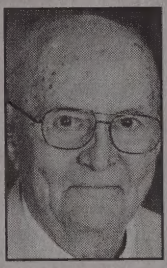
Charles E. Conrad

Feb. 11, 1924 - Feb. 20, 2013

ANDERSON — Charles E. Conrad passed to his Heavenly life after a long struggle with Alzheimer's on Wednesday, Feb. 20, 2013, at 12 a.m.



Born Feb. 11, 1924, son of Harold and Vern (Stinson) Conrad of Lapel, he graduated from Lapel High School in 1942. He married his high school sweetheart, June Heiny, in 1944.

He was preceded in death by his wife, June (Heiny) Conrad; parents; and siblings, Louise Hutton, Loris Conrad, Montrue Williams, George Conrad, Mary Wilson, William Conrad and Don Conrad.

He is survived by his four children, David (Karen Coffey) Conrad of Anderson, Dale (Carolyn Stanley) Conrad of Alexandria, Jill (Henry) Branscum of Anderson and Anita (Ed) Blankenship of Alexandria; six grandchildren, Jennifer (Dan) Taylor of Russiaville, Dallas (Cassie Lindner) Conrad, Julie Prichard, Kimberly (Curt) Head, Ben Blankenship and Adam Blankenship, all of Alexandria; six great-grandchildren, Alex and Lee Taylor of Russiaville, Alaina, Austin, Ashton and Amelia Conrad of Alexandria; two brothers, Robert (Wanda Smith) Conrad of Anderson, Calvin and Pam Kirkendoll) Conrad of Joplin, Mo.; four stepgrandchildren; and many nieces and nephews.

Charles spent his life farming. He hosted the Anderson Farm City Tour twice. He served Bethany Christian Church as Sunday school teacher and superintendent, elder and church board chairman. He attended East Side Church of God and was a member of the BYKOTA Class. He served as a member of the USDA-ASCS Board, Madison County Co-op Director, Highland High School Board, Metro School Board, Richland Township Advisory Board and Madison County Planning Commission. He loved watching basketball and spending his winters in Florida near North Fort Myers. He enjoyed participating in the sports of volleyball, bicycling and shuffleboard. He also loved to play cards, dominoes and board games with friends and family.

Services will be at 10 a.m. Monday at Rozelle-Johnson Funeral Service with Kent Stookey officiating. Visitation will be on Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m.

Rozelle-Johnson Funeral Service handled the arrangements.

Memorial contributions may be given to Bethany Christian Care Ministry.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 43-year-old single mom with three young boys. I am also a veteran and getting ready to go back to school. I have been dating a gentleman for two months now, and we get along great. He's three years older than I am and good with my kids and family.

I like him a lot and we seem to have a LOT in common – more than most. I really want him to kiss me, but I don't want to seem pushy. He's a real gentleman. We have gone from hugs to holding hands while sitting on the couch watching television. I don't mind taking things slow, but ...

How do I find out if he wants to kiss me or not? Sometimes it seems like it, but then he seems afraid to. How do I let him know it's OK? Sorry I seem like a teenager. – CONFUSED IN IDAHO

DEAR CONFUSED: This man isn't taking things slow. Glaciers have been known to move faster. Two months is a very long time to wait for a first kiss.

The next time you find yourself sitting on the couch and holding hands with him, you have my permission to turn to him and say, "I'd love it if you kissed me." If that doesn't do the trick, then face it – his feelings for you are only brotherly.

DEAR ABBY: You have written about children in grocery stores before. Would you please address the risk to children by allowing them to stand in grocery shopping carts? I see it all too often, and I don't think the parents/grandparents realize that if the child falls out and lands on his or her head, neck or back, the child could end up paralyzed or dead. The adult must be the rule setter and protect the child. But too often it's the child setting the limits, and the results can be tragic. – CONCERNED SHOPPER IN NEW YORK

DEAR CONCERNED SHOPPER: I'm glad to oblige. Many markets equip their shopping carts with seat belts to secure tiny passengers and avoid this problem. That way, any liability that might stem from a child falling would lie directly where it belongs, with the adult who should have been using common sense.

DEAR ABBY: My oldest friend owes me a lot of

Mrs. Cleveland:

Mr. Cleveland said you liked Historical writings So, I am mailing you this copy of "Early Settlers", which you may keep. It was written in 1903 by my husbands great-grandfather. I have the original 1903 Lapel Review paper from which it was taken.

There are so many historical things to learn about. At this time, I am learning about my ancestors, as I am very much interested in genealogy. I had a letter from Ronald McDole, of Iowa and his great-great-grandfather owned the land, at one time, where my new home is now located. My maiden name was McDole. So history repeats itself,

Sincerely,

Lucille Woodward

McDole Family

John McDowell (who in 1840, owned the land, where in the angle of Pendleton Ave. and Maple Sts., eighty-four years later, his grandson George McDole, had his filling station), married Delilah Fullhouser. They were the parents of Uriah McDole, whose wife was Elizabeth Huffman and who have many descendants in Lapel. Their children were: MARY, who died young;

ISAAC, who married Medora Beach. Children: Vytalis, Melinda (Mrs. Wm. Green), Della (married Joseph T. Green), Ollie (Mrs. George Foust), Julia (Mrs. Fred Anderson), Elizabeth (Mrs. Amos Foust), Rose (Mrs. Ernest Castor).

SAMPSON, married Mary Jane Fisher. Children: Lizzie (Miller Stern), Cora (Mrs. Oren Nicholson), Maudie, Albert and Allen (twins, Allen dying in infancy), William and Orval.

MORRIS, married Kizzie Fry. Children: Nora (Lane) and Andrew.

GEORGE, married Georgiana Johnson. Children: Ida (Sylvester), Eli, Ernest, Raymond, Pearl, Jennie (Bodenhorn), Effie (Cohee), Bessie (Sellers), Maudie (Sylvester), and Charles.

was a descendent of James Fisher, one of the early settlers at the site of Fishersburg. (He was a half-brother of Addison Fisher). He married Lydia Miller and their children were Walter, Jesse and Arthur. The two first always lived in Lapel.

Walter was in the clothing and dry goods business in Lapel for many years. His wife was Fannie Valentine. Their children: Layall, Juanita (Mrs. Ralph Musselman), Merwyn, Arnold and Basil.

Jesse married Roxy Busby. Their children: Lois (Mrs. Hobartson), and Kathleen.

Library week celebrated this week

This week, schools, campuses and communities across the country celebrate National Library Week, (today through Saturday) a time to remind the public about the contribution libraries, librarians and library staff make to their communities everyday.

Libraries are the places where everyone — regardless of age, race or income — can come together, whether it's for entertainment, self-help or to find their place in the community.

Students come to the library to learn critical research skills and find a place to study with friends. Parents and guardians introduce their child to his first books and videos and stay for a family-centered program. Seniors keep in touch with family across the country using free Internet access, job seekers get connected with resources to help them land their next interview, and researchers and medical professionals tap into the databases, journals and other resources they need to make breakthroughs and to impact the lives of their patients.

What makes the library unique is that everyone has access to trained professionals — librarians — to help them find and interpret the information they need to make a difference in their lives. We encourage everyone to take a moment Tuesday to thank our library staff for the services they provide. The Anderson/Lapel public libraries work because the library staff does!

How can the library help transform your life? National Library Week is the perfect time to find out. Come together at your library.

The American Way Attracts Canadian Company

BY Temple Miller

Mary Sullivan of First Industrial Realty Trust and Diana Priser, an economic development specialist, worked together in finding Mancor a home in Anderson

Anderson's American Way recipe: Combine a competitive market with Hoosier hospitality. Sweeten with incentives and training dollars. Mix with a committed team and a ready-to-go workforce. Pour into the well-equipped American Way building, and set the timer for October. Before long, the delicious aroma of a new enterprise, Mancor Indiana, is wafting through the community.

That's when it becomes clear: Mancor and Anderson go together like baseball and apple pie.

Last May, Mancor executives determined that Anderson suited their highly successful company as the site for their new plant. The factors concerning their decision included location, incentives, appropriate facility, and ample workforce. Craig Sloan, vice president and general manager of Mancor Pennsylvania, attributed the state, the community, the building, and the economic development team with making their decision easy. In addition, the state and local emphasis on training seemed to match the philosophy of Mancor CEO and President Art Church.

Lean Manufacturing

Mancor Industries structures its plants on a lean manufacturing model. This high-quality approach is based on continual improvement and focuses on helping customers to succeed. With Mancor, quality starts at the top. Church requests a list every day of any part that was not shipped on time. He recently spoke to the House of Commons Standing Committee on Industry, Science, and Technology regarding Mancor's success.

Q & A with Dr. Glenn Falls

Namesake of the Falls School of Business and the Falls Report magazine reflects on his history with AU and Madison County

BY Stacey Jaracz

What brought you to the community of Anderson?

When I came in 1946, it was in response to what I considered a call to ministry. However, I didn't know just what kind of ministry that was! I came to Anderson College, majored in business, and minored in Bible and English.

As a senior, I went to the dean and let him know that the business department wasn't really strong and suggested he ought to do something about it. He smiled back at me, and asked if I was saying I'd like to help him do that. I said, "Sure." Upon receiving my graduate degree from IU, I returned to Anderson College as an accounting professor.

Dr. Glenn Falls, namesake of the Falls School of Business, Anderson University

What has your career meant to you?

When I approached retirement, my parents came to visit me while they were in their 90s and I was nearly 65. When I took them back to the airport, I remember thinking about the fact that I had maybe 39 or so more years to live, and what I could do to make those memorable. The next day I talked with my students, and I said, "You might be interested to know that just as you all are thinking about what you are going to do with the rest of your lives, so am I." I hope that was useful to them because people should know that life doesn't end when you hit 65.

What has been your fondest memory thus far?

Those of us involved at the Falls School of Business try to be the kind of people we want the students to emulate. One of the teachers, Dr. Michael Wiese, said to me once, "I want to be just like you." I thought that was wonderful. If teachers live the kind of lives that represent what the school should be, then the students will want to be like them.

What can Madison County gain from AU?

I believe the potential for securing employees from among the graduating students or securing internships with students is a great resource the community should utilize. The students who are here now are just as good as when I was a student. However, I believe that students are now better prepared to enter the business world than they used to be. The primary reason is the programs that are being offered, such as AMG and SIFE, that help students connect with business and to feel at home in the business environment.

What do you want the community to think about when they hear the words, The Falls School of Business?

I want them to feel that here is a place where people are serving God and preparing their lives to do just that. Or think that professors are teaching with that particular goal in mind. And also I want them to think academically, this is the best place for learning business in the whole country.

For the last eight years,

RICK BRAMWELL

Early morel hunting has pretty much been a bust this spring because of cold weather, but that doesn't mean they aren't being found. Most who brave the cold, are coming up empty-handed, but there is evidence to encourage those of us waiting for warmer weather.

Go to: morels.com and click Indiana. One hunter found morels in Yellowwood State Forest and even gave specific directions. Closer to home, a Pendleton claims to have found a few near home.

My friend Chris Mathe started hunting morels in Georgia late February. He found 155 one day about two weeks ago near Knoxville, Tenn., and is now hunting the Penneyrile National Forest in Kentucky. Mathe plans to be at the Mansfield, Ind., Mushroom Festival in a couple of weeks. He has a great morel Web site: morelmushroomhunting.com.

Mathe believes the morels, especially those most desirable yellows, will run late this spring. Avid local hunter Garry Cloud thinks the find will be spread out over a longer period of time. "This early cold weather is good for them," he said. It is my belief that a winter with heavy snow brings on more morels in the spring.

A must-read on morels is in the April issue of Indianapolis Monthly. The article is written about Lafayette biologist Stewart Miller. He has been awarded a patent for commercially growing morel mushrooms. Miller believes we have about a three-week window for good morel hunting.

He tells of the mycelia spreading out underground in search of nutrients. To reproduce, a part of the mycelia (morel) pops through the soil to send out spores that are carried by the wind. Unfortunately, this is not necessary every year, but there is a triggering device, according to Miller.

We all know a real hot spot for morels is under a dead or dying elm. Miller's research reveals that the mycelia sends out a long-haired hyphae toward tree roots and actually penetrates the root system. He has planted an acre of seedling elms and found the trees grow faster where he put morel cultures next to them. He calls this a symbiotic relationship; in layman terms, they benefit each other. As long as the tree is healthy, the mycelia is fine and may not produce all that many morels.

If the tree is damaged or dies, the morel fungus is triggered to find a new and more suitable habitat, thus sending up an abundance of what we find so delicious to eat. This explains to me why professional morel hunters flock to where there have been extensive forest fires the previous year.

The late Larry "Tree" Lonic told me of burns producing 70,000 pounds of morels. He showed, in one of his videos, morels as far as the eye could see, popping up through a charred forest floor. I think Miller does a good job of explaining how this happens.

Miller has 1,200 elm trees he has planted on one acre in Clinton County. In seven years, he plans to put bags over some of the trees to slow their metabolism and thus encourage the morels out of their roots.

Miller is also offering for sale morel-inoculated elm trees at $12 each.

My thanks to Martha Green of the Anderson Public Library for putting me onto this magazine article written by Evan West. Indianapolis Monthly can be found at the library or purchased at most magazine outlets. I bought mine at CVS. This is a must-read.

Next weekend will surely be a good time to spend hours in the woods looking for morels.

GOOD FISHIN': Fall Creek Valley Bassmasters fished Lake Lemon on Saturday, March 31. Twenty-three anglers fished the event with only 12 anglers bringing bass to the scale.

The team of Dave Ashley and Brian Harris took first place honors with four bass totaling 11.80 pounds. Darrel Poore and Mike Hampton came in second with four bass going 8.86 pounds, and third place went to Rick Holford and Bill Steele with three bass weighing in at 5.17 pounds. Dan Wise caught the "big bass" of the day weighing in at 4.65 pounds. A total of 20 bass were weighed and released. Average weight was 2.50 pounds. The bass were hitting on small crankbaits, rattlebaits, jigs and jerkbaits.

WFMS-FM is hosting a fishing tournament (I think all kinds of fish are accepted) on Sunday, April 22 at Geist Reservoir. FCVB will be providing the technical aspects of the tournament.

On Saturday and Sunday, April 28-29, the Indiana Bass Federation Regional is scheduled. This Top 8 tournament will be held on Geist and Morse. Organizers put 40 boats on each lake, fishing one each day.

RACCOON EPIDEMIC: While in the Florida Keys, I read about a die-off of raccoons. These critters have no enemies, and the Keys are too populated to allow hunting. As is often the case, nature is not kind when it culls. The raccoons have distemper. Bad news for the raccoons, but very good news for ground-nesting birds and iguanas. Without the raccoons raiding nests, many other species will flourish.

For the last eight years, I've come across several sick raccoons. They were disoriented and would often walk in circles. They never tried to run away.

This past week, I received pictures from Jeremy Fisher of recent catches of tarpon and permit he's been finding for clients of his guide service: fisherguide.com.

I'm looking for a way to get down there before the end of June. My plan would be to fly to Fort Lauderdale, take a rental car to Key Largo and turn it in for another rental car (cheaper there) fish with Fisher for two or three days and head home. Such a trip for two would not be very expensive.

Miller leads Pacers 40th anniversary team

Indiana's Mr. Clutch compiles over 30,000 votes from fans

For The Herald Bulletin

INDIANAPOLIS – Three generations of Pacers players headlined the 40th anniversary Team announced by the Indiana Pacers and voted on by more than 40,000 fans. The 40th anniversary team will be honored during a special halftime ceremony today when the Pacers host the New Jersey Nets at 3:30 p.m.

Reggie Miller, the franchise's all-time leading scorer who, in 2000, led the Pacers to their only NBA Finals appearance, topped all vote-getters with 31,513 votes. Mel Daniels, the anchor of the teams that won three ABA championships, was second with 22,585 votes, while current Pacers forward Jermaine O'Neal finished third with 22,277.

The 40th anniversary team is listed below with the total of votes received per player:

Reggie Miller	31,513
Mel Daniels	22,585
Jermaine O'Neal	22,277
Rik Smits	20,786
George McGinnis	19,961
Dale Davis	18,629
Mark Jackson	17,460
Billy Keller	13,592
Antonio Davis	13,143
Roger Brown	13,131
Billy Knight	12,314
Clark Kellogg	10,856

Fans who voted for the 40th anniversary team were able to select up to 12 players from a list of 40 players. After voting, fans could choose to enter to win a customized 1967 Chevy Camaro.

Fans were also eligible to win an authentic autographed jersey of a current Pacers player and two Lower Level tickets to a game.

The customized 1967 Chevy Camaro will be given away on Fan Appreciation Night Wednesday as the Pacers host the Washington Wizards at 8 p.m.

The 1967 Chevy Camaro represents the first year of the Pacers franchise, as well as the first year that Chevrolet produced the Camaro. The 1967 Chevy Camaro was also the pace car at the 1967 Indianapolis 500.

Q: Do you think the existence of God can be proved through science? I have a science teacher who is very skeptical about religion and says we ought to believe only what we can prove. — P.F.

A: DEAR P.F.: No, the existence of God cannot be proved by science — and neither can it be disproved by science. Science, by definition, is limited to the physical world. But God is a spiritual being, and the spiritual realm is outside the scope of science. (Incidentally, there are other things a scientist cannot prove either because they are outside the scope of science — things like love and beauty).

...es this mean there is no ... for God's existence? ...

Mrs. Sarah Valentine

Mrs. Sarah Valentine, who now lives with her daughter, Mrs. Fannie Fisher, is a remarkable woman. Although 95 years of age, she is as active, mentally and physically as many women of half her age. In her 89th year, she took an airplane ride and says that she never enjoyed anything so much in her life, and wishes that she could go again. Her parents were John and Emma Druley Brattain. Her husband, Alfred Valentine, was baptized by Rev. R. C. Jones, when on his death bed, but the others of her family had been lifelong Methodists. For the past thirty-one years she has been a Christian Scientist. Their children were: Grace (Mrs. Harry Ervin) and Fannie (Mrs. Walter Fisher).

James R. Woodward

Feb. 15, 1928 – June 19, 2007

FORT MYERS, Fla. — James R. "Jim" Woodward, 79, Fort Myers, Fla., unexpectedly passed away June 19, 2007.

He was born Feb. 15, 1928, in Madison County, the son of Lowell and Mary (Williams) Woodward. He was a longtime resident of Michigan and had resided in Fort Myers, Fla., for the last 22 years.

He graduated from Lapel High School in 1946 and received a bachelor's degree in 1950 from Anderson College (now Anderson University), where he played basketball for four years.

Jim loved spending time with family and friends and would often drop in on them while taking long motorcycle rides. He was known as "Mr. Fix-It" to friends and a practical joker to all. Jim enjoyed boating, basketball and pitching horseshoes. His careers included teaching and sales.

He is survived by his wife of 57 years, Charline (Valentine) Woodward; three children, Annette Whiting of Okemos, Mich., Kerry (husband, Bill) Crook of Rockford, Mich., and Philip (wife, Jill) Woodward of Howell, Mich.; two grandchildren, Ryan (wife, Jane) Woodward of Decatur, Ga., and Caitlin Woodward of Howell, Mich. He is also survived by one brother, Kenneth Woodward of Lapel; a nephew; and four nieces.

He was preceded in death by his parents.

A graveside service will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday at Grovelawn Cemetery in Pendleton with the Rev. Evan Lash officiating, burial will follow.

There will be no calling hours.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Church of the Cross, 13500 Freshman Lane, Fort Myers, FL 33912-1808.

Arrangements are being handled by Scott E. Hersberger Funeral Home in Lapel.

Post online condolences at www.hersbergerfuneralhome.com or www.theheraldbulletin.com.

Lapel took shape from a man's coat

By Stephen T. Jackson
Madison County Historian

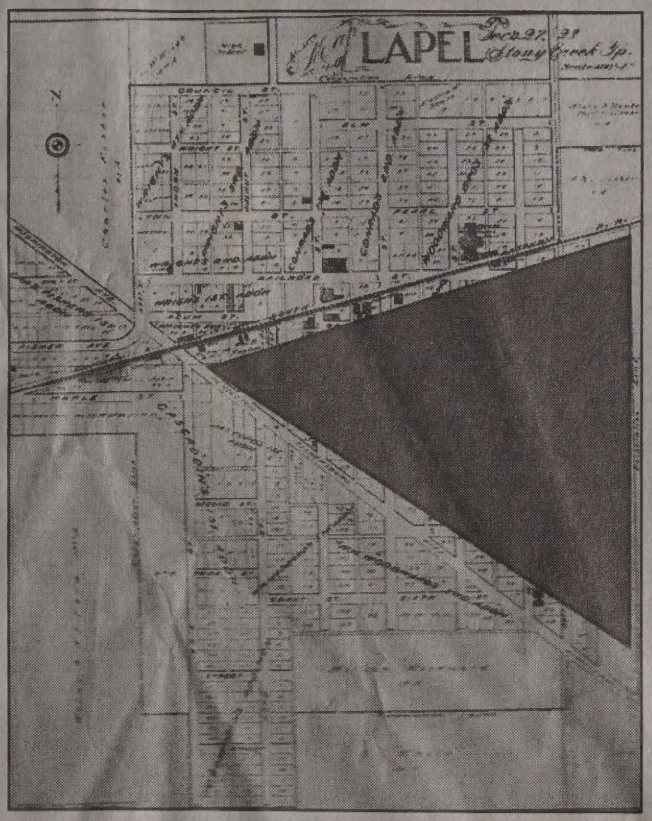
The Anderson, Lebanon & St. Louis Railroad provided the town of Lapel with its initial start.

And, it was the route the railroad followed through the town that was responsible for its rather unusual name.

That occurred in 1875 when the newly-laid tracks left a strip of land between the railroad and the Pendleton & Fishersburg Turnpike (Ind. 132) that, when viewed from the air, was thought to resemble the shape of a man's coat lapel.

Samuel E. Busby, one of the railroad directors and town founders, is attributed with first suggesting the name. He and David Conrad platted the town in 1876.

In the beginning the name was spelled Lapelle. Some early plat records show the spelling to be the original way while others are spelled the current way. Apparently the spelling was optional for a brief period of time.



Submitted photo

The shaded portion of the map indicates the area of the original town plat of Lapel. It encompasses the area between the railroad and Ind. 132, and resembles the lapel of a man's coat, hence the name.

Lapel has another unusual distinction. Geologists have determined that Lapel rests on one of the 60 or 70 coral reefs that have been found in Indiana. Indiana University geology professors examined fossils found at the Cascadden limestone quarry to make the determination.

Lapel and its next door neighbor, Fishersburg, are the only two communities in Stony Creek Township. Fishersburg actually predates Lapel as it was platted May 10, 1837.

Initially it seemed as if Fishersburg would be the larger community, until the railroad was built giving Lapel the advantage. Actually, the railroad was to pass through Fishersburg but a surveyor error routed the railroad through Lapel instead.

Old Jumbo

Lapel's first resident was Benoni Freel who built a cabin in 1828 in the area that is now Lapel. Over the next 50 years the town grew slowly with the addition of a general store, a flour mill, and several houses. The town began to grow in the late 1880s after the discovery of natural gas.

"Old Jumbo" was the name of the first gas well drilled in Lapel in 1889. It was located in the heart of the town. This well, and many other wells in the area, resulted in the construction of another flour mill, a planning mill, a flint bottle factory, a pump and gas regulator factory, several tile mills, and other minor industries. In less than 20 years after the initial planning and naming, Lapel was incorporated in 1893.

When the gas supply ran out many of the businesses were discontinued, but one firm remained, the Sterling Glass Company. The company was incorporated in 1914 by Arthur Woodward. Over the years the company has changed hands several times and is today the Owens-Brockway Glass Container.

The grain elevators, so prominent in Lapel today, had their beginning in 1886 when James and William Woodward built the first one. Now there are two elevators towering over the town like book ends keeping watch over the community they serve.

Recruiting Rock

During the Civil War, recruiting officers stood upon a particular rock to address prospective recruits. The rock became known to the residents as "Recruiting Rock." For years after the war, the rock could be located just inside a field on the north side of Ind. 132, east of the bridge over Stony Creek between Lapel and Fishersburg. A recent examination of the site revealed the rock was no longer there.

Looming large on the northwestern edge of the town is an abandoned stone quarry. The site had been the farm of Eli Passwater and in 1893 a deep vein of sandstone was thought to be below the surface. The Midland Railroad Company ran a spur of track to the pit from town. A crusher was installed and sand was shipped beginning in 1893-94. However, the sandstone vein was shallow and work soon came to an end.

Limestone was also quarried there and used in laying building foundations. It proved to be too difficult to remove and therefore did not pay. For a number of years an old sand car remained on the track which overhung the pit. Its position was tempting for locals and eventually some boys pushed the car into the pit where it remains today covered with water.

West of the old quarry is a 46-acre nine-hole golf course. The northeast corner of the course is the site of the former Hidden Cemetery which dated to 1821 making one it of the oldest in Madison County. At one time there were slab markers of Niagara limestone at the graves containing names of some of the earliest settlers in the area such as Opdike, Gwinn, Huntzinger and others. The cemetery no longer exists but is marked by a sign several hundred yards east of the site on the south side of SR 32.

Buried treasure

There is another burial that has been the subject of discussion and speculation for many years. Long before there was a Lapel, or even a thought about Lapel, there was man by the name of John Castor who had a farm in the area. It was sometime around 1848 when he is supposed to have buried thousands of dollars in gold somewhere on his property.

The tale took hold and continued to persist through the years to the extent that even well into the 20th century people searched his land for the elusive treasure. Divining rods were used from time to time, but to no avail. By now Mr. Castor's farm has been thoroughly searched, but the buried gold has eluded everyone and remains a mystery.

The real treasure in Lapel is a trip through its streets where the past mixes well with the present and where its rich history is evident in the several old buildings along Main Street — buildings that have witnessed the growth and development of this unique Madison County community.

For more information visit the Madison County History Center, 15 W. 11th St., Anderson, Monday-Wednesday-Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Phone 683-0052.

release the children's names, said the 1-year-old was wearing nothing but a T-shirt, while the 3-year-old had on pants but no shirt. It wasn't immediately clear if the older toddler was wearing shoes.

Wednesday's high temperature was 34 degrees.

Police found the two and contacted the Madison County Department of Children's Services, who took them into custody.

Officers then canvassed the neighborhood and ultimately found the 1-year-old's mother, who lives in the 1700 block of Jefferson, said Sandefur, Anderson Police Department spokesman.

He said the 21-year-old mother is the older toddler's sister. Her name was not released.

She told police she works third shift and has a baby-sitter to watch the children while she sleeps during the day, Sandefur said. She told police the baby-sitter said she was leaving the home, but the mother fell back asleep and didn't realize the children were gone. The 3-year-old's mother works days.

'I love those old photographs'

This 1909 postcard photograph shows the James M. Fisher family in front of their residence at 215 W. 12th St. in Anderson.

The Madison County Historical Society has many assets in its collection but none more extensive than the hundreds, if not thousands, of old photographs we have accumulated over the years.

They are the windows to our past and thereby have revealed a great deal to us about who we are. Each one has a story to tell. By researching these valuable treasures we have been able unlock some of their stories;stories that have long been waiting to be discovered and enjoyed.

We exhibit them at the history center in our Historic Photos Gallery. Every year, beginning in January and lasting for three months, a new display is featured on some aspect of our history; then again at the beginning of each April, July, and October.

This year, beginning last week and continuing through March 29, the society will be presenting a photo exhibit which features a subject we have more photographs of than anything else — local, ordinary people. We are blessed with many photographs taken of people in all kinds of situations. Sadly, many of the people in the photographs were not identified.

Mixed in with the unidentified photographs in the exhibit are some excellent photographs of people about whom we do have some information. Part of the fun we have with these identified photographs is learning the story behind the picture.

One photo's story

A picture post card was brought in with the name J. M. Fisher on the back. The scene on the front shows a woman seated in a horse-drawn carriage with two small children. One child is a small boy and the other is a girl who appears to be several years older than the boy. Standing beside them in the street is a man. In the background is a house with two women and a man seated on the steps of the front porch. Above them is a house number that reads "215."

The card was postmarked Anderson, Ind., Oct. 21, 1909.

With that information we began to unlock the story behind the picture. This is what we found.

In the Census of 1910, James M. Fisher, age 45, was residing at 215 W. 12th Street in Anderson. Living with him was his wife May L. Fisher, age 39, and their two children daughter Helyne, age 9, and son James, age 5. No other names were listed as living at that address.

According to the Anderson City Directory for 1912-13, Mr. Fisher was the proprietor of Fisher's Music Store located at 931-933 Meridian St. But, who were the other three people in the photograph?

The answer was found in the Census of 1900. During that census James and May Fisher were living at the same address. The census taker listed three additional people residing at the Fisher home: Ivy E. Brown, age 32, was listed as being married with no occupation and a sister-in-law to James; Catherine I. Daggy, age 20, and Ota Bartlett, age 28, were both listed as being single and their occupation was given as school teachers.

We have concluded the photograph was most likely taken in 1909, the same year the card was postmarked. The ages of the children appear to be appropriate for that year as well.

Home still there

Incidentally, if you go looking for the old Fisher home at 215 W. 12th St., it's still there. The Fishers continued to live there until the early 1940s.

However, if you are trying to find his music store at 931-933 Meridian St., you won't. It disappeared when the Anderson Banking Company building was erected at that location in 1927. But don't be disappointed, we have a great photograph taken of that area before the bank was built showing all the little business locations that were once at or near that corner, including his.

We invite you to come in and see if you recognize either the people or in some cases, their location. Plan to spend some time examining all fifty-eight photographs in this exhibit as some are quite fascinating. Perhaps you too will discover something new.

The topics for the remaining exhibits this year have been chosen and photograph selection is underway. Beginning April 1 and running through June 28 will be an exhibit of parade scenes taken in various Madison County communities spanning quite a number of years. The variety of parade scenes range from humorous to serious with everything else imaginable in between.

Running from July 1 through Sept. 27 we will feature the first of several planned exhibits displaying our vast collection of post cards. Not only are they very interesting to see, they are quite colorful and a number of them offer a humorous look at our past.

Rounding out 2013 and running from Sept. 30 through Dec. 20 will be one of the most requested photograph topics we have. The ever-popular school children of Madison County photographs will be on display. These photographs have been taken at various times in our past with some being over a century old and represent the entire county.

As always, we invite anyone who has old photographic scenes taken in Madison County to bring them to the Madison County Historical Society located in the Madison County History Center and allow us to make copies. Or, if you wish you may donate them to us. In either case, they will be given a good home and, who knows, they may end up being part of a future exhibit.

Plan to attend any or all this year's exhibits. We have many who come in on a regular basis and leave saying, "I love those old photographs." We think you will too.

For more information visit the Madison County History Center, 15 West 11th St., Anderson, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The phone is 683-0052.

Remain optimistic while looking for upswings in both your personal and financial affairs in the year ahead. Adopting some positive convictions is one of the quickest ways to attract good things in ways you might never suspect.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Your enthusiastic nature is exceptionally contagious, and it won't take much to get others involved in whatever interests you. However, you'll be selective as to whom you enroll.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — This could be one of those strange days when you might not do much right, yet everything will turn out OK. Work on something big while Lady Luck is with you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) — What makes you so effectively persuasive is your ability to isolate a key person and turn him or her into your ally. This person will convince others to join your cause.

LAPEL HIGH SCHOOL CLASS OF '41 TO MEET

By JUSTIN SCHNEIDER
justin.schneider@heraldbulletin.com

Few relationships, it seems, last more than a few years.

Some linger on a decade or two.

But only in very rare cases does a relationship persist a lifetime.

That is the case with the Lapel High School class of 1941. That year, 45 seniors graduated and now, 65 years later, a few will gather for what has become an annual reunion.

On Sept. 9, 11 class of '41 graduates and their guests will assemble at Woody's Diner in Lapel to celebrate their lives 65 years on.

"I send out the invitations and they respond to Mr. (Henry) Herron in Lapel," said Anna Louise Loomis, one of the '41 graduates and co-organizer of the reunion with Harry Herron. "We're just a small group that's left."

A few years ago, Loomis said, the remaining members of the group decided to forego 10-year or even five-year intervals and meet annually. The 2005 get-together yielded eight '41 graduates.

"As the class has dwindled, we started hood growing up. I'm bringing the cow kickers that we used to put on the cows before we milked them. I'm raised on a farm between Lapel and Anderson and I went to Lapel High School, and then to Purdue."

Loomis taught home economics for 30 years. She said the Lapel class of 1940 will also meet on Sept. 15 in Noblesville.

"There are only a few that I have contact information for," Loomis said. "There are some others out there that we're not aware of. Harry (Herron) has been the one that's kept track of the graduates. We've lost contact with Leland Sparks, and we lost contact with Chase Lawson. We haven't been in touch with him for a couple of years."

If 65 years of reunions have taught Loomis anything, it's that history repeats itself.

"We were at Lapel when they did participate in the state finals basketball tournament back in 1940," Loomis said. "That's our one name of renown. Last year they were able to repeat that victory."

A BLAST FROM THE PAST

LAPEL HIGH SCHOOL CLASS OF '41 TO MEET

By JUSTIN SCHNEIDER
justin.schneider@heraldbulletin.com

Few relationships, it seems, last more than a few years.

Some linger on a decade or two.

But only in very rare cases does a relationship persist a lifetime.

That is the case with the Lapel High School class of 1941. That year, 45 seniors graduated and now, 65 years later, a few will gather for what has become an annual reunion.

On Sept. 9, 11 class of '41 graduates and their guests will assemble at Woody's Diner in Lapel to celebrate their lives 65 years on.

"I send out the invitations and they respond to Mr. (Henry) Herron in Lapel," said Anna Louise Loomis, one of the '41 graduates and co-organizer of the reunion with Harry Herron. "We're just a small group that's left."

A few years ago, Loomis said, the remaining members of the group decided to forego 10-year or even five-year intervals and meet annually. The 2005 get-together yielded eight '41 graduates.

"As the class has dwindled, we started meeting every year for anyone who can make it," said Loomis, who won the popularity award in 1941. "Last year we had eight classmates."

The engagement on Sept. 9 is more of a luncheon and gab session than a formal reunion.

Recent years have seen the loss of a few '41 graduates. William Byer, an Anderson attorney, graduated with the group and recently passed away. Loomis said the class of '41 used to assemble at his lakeside summer home.

Loomis said most of the attendees still live in and around Lapel, though one classmate from Texas attended the 2005 reunion.

"Most of the rest of them live in and around Lapel or in Anderson," Loomis said. "Last year we met at Lapel in the church, Trinity Methodist, in the social room there on Main Street, diagonally across from where the bank is located.

"It's more of a social visit. We meet as a group and share experiences. We did ask if they would bring along a memory or an item from childhood growing up. I'm bringing the cow kickers that we used to put on the cows before we milked them. I'm raised on a farm between Lapel and Anderson and I went to Lapel High School, and then to Purdue."

Loomis taught home economics for 30 years. She said the Lapel class of 1940 will also meet on Sept. 15 in Noblesville.

"There are only a few that I have contact information for," Loomis said. "There are some others out there that we're not aware of. Harry (Herron) has been the one that's kept track of the graduates. We've lost contact with Leland Sparks, and we lost contact with Chase Lawson. We haven't been in touch with him for a couple of years."

If 65 years of reunions have taught Loomis anything, it's that history repeats itself.

"We were at Lapel when they did participate in the state finals basketball tournament back in 1940," Loomis said. "That's our one name of renown. Last year they were able to repeat that victory."

SHETTERLY HELD ON TWO CHARGES

County Auditor Gives Bond to Appear In Court.

A warrant charging Ward Shetterly, county auditor, with intoxication and operating an automobile while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, was placed in the hands of city police at 5 p. m. yesterday by Charles E. Smith, prosecuting attorney.

Advised that the warrant had been issued Shetterly voluntarily appeared at police headquarters where he furnished bond. He was required to post $250 bond on the charge of driving while under the influence of liquor and $100 bond was exacted on the intoxication charge. He was then released to appear before City Judge Ralph Daly this morning.

Shetterly was arrested at Ninth and Main streets last Thursday night after he was alleged to have operated his automobile in a manner that endangered traffic on state road 67. A motorist followed the county official into Anderson and complained to Patrolman Harry Ray, who made the arrest. Shetterly was taken to the county jail where he was held for three hours. The prosecutor's office has since been investigating the case.

CEMETERY IS CLEANED BY MR. AND MRS. KISSLING
Locate Graves of Parents in Old Cemetery

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Kissling, of St. Louis, Missouri, are in Shelbyville, placing gravestones at the graves of Mrs. Kissling's parents, who were buried in a small cemetery four miles north of Fairland, over forty years ago.

Her parents were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Fisher, who have children, grandchildren and great grandchildren in several states, including Washington, California, Colorado, Kansas, Missouri, Mississippi, Louisiana, Illinois and Indiana.

The cemetery is being cleaned with the thought in mind that it may have perpetual care.

They located the graves by a stone placed by the war department over seventy-four years ago at the grave of Henry Fisher, a son.

City of Shelbyville,
County of Shelby, State of Indiana
Book 7 ~ pages 317, 318 & 319
11 June 1918

I, Joseph Fisher, of the City of Shelbyville, in Shelby County, in the State of Indiana, do hereby make and publish this my last will and testament, hereby revoking all former wills by me made.

Item 1. I do hereby give and bequeath all of my household goods to my wife, Cecelia K. Fisher.

Item 2. It is my will and I direct that all my just debts be paid, and I do hereby expressly direct and provide that the property by this will given to my sons, Henry P. Fisher, Alvin R. Fisher and Riley B. Fisher, shall be and it is hereby charges with the payment of my said debts, the one third part of such debts to be charged against each of the said properties.

Item 3. I do hereby give and devise to my son, Henry P. Fisher, to be held by him in fee simple, subject to the provisions of Item 2 of this will, all of the following described real estate in Shelby County, in the State of Indiana, to-wit:-

> Thirty (30) feet off of the entire East side of Lot Number Thirty (30) on the South Side of Mechanic Street, in Montgomery's Fourth Addition to the City of Shelbyville, Indiana.

Item 4. I do hereby give and devise to my son, Alvin R. Fisher, for and during the term of his natural life, and for such term only, the following described real estate in Shelby County, Indiana, to-wit:-

> Commencing at the South-east corner of Lot number Four (4) in Block Number Three (3) on East Pennsylvania Street, the same being on the North side of said Street, in Ray and McFarland's Addition to the Town now City of Shelbyville, and running thence West Twenty-four (24) feet more or less, to Mr. Cage's East line; thence North Ninety-nine (99) feet more or less, to an alley; thence East Twenty-four (24) feet more or less, to an alley between said lot Number Four and lot number One (1) on said street; thence South along the West line of said alley ninety-nine feet to the place of beginning.

The remainder interest in said real estate I do hereby give and devise to the child or children of said Alvin B. Fisher, if any there be, and if the said Alvin R. Fisher shall have no issue surviving, then the said remainder interest in said real estate is hereby given and devised to my remaining children share and share alike, in fee simple, all subject however, to the provision of "Item 2" of this will.

Item 5. I do hereby given and devise to my son, Riley B. Fisher for and during the term of his natural life, and for such term only, the following described real estate in Shelby County, in the State of Indiana, to-wit:-

> Commencing Fifty-Four (54) feet East of the South-west corner of Lot Number One (1) in Block Number Three (3) on East Pennsylvania Street, in Ray and McFarland's addition to the Town now city of Shelbyville, Indiana and running thence east Twenty Five (25) feet along the North side of Pennsylvania Street; thence North to the North side of Lot Number Four; thence West along the North line of said Lot twenty five (25) feet; thence South ninety (90) feet more or less to the place of beginning.

The remainder interest in said real estate I do hereby give and devise to the child or children of the said Riley B. Fisher, in fee simple, all subject however to the provision of "Item 2" of this will.

Item 6. I do hereby given and devise to my wife, Cecilia E. Fisher, for and during the term of her natural life, and for such term only, the following described real estate in Shelby County, in the State of Indiana, to-wit:-

> Lot Number Twenty-eight (28) on Walker Street in Fletcher and McCarty's Addition to the Town, now city of Shelbyville, Indiana.

The remainder interest in fee simple in said real estate I do hereby give and devise to my daughter, Iris E. Fisher, subject only to the life estate therein in this item of my will given to my said wife, Cecilia E. Fisher.

Item 7. I do hereby give and devise to my wife, Cecilia E. Fisher, for and during the term of her natural life, the following described real estate in Shelby County Indiana, to-wit:-

Thirty-three (33) feet off of the entire West side of Lot Number Sixty-four (64) between John and Walker Streets in Fletcher and McCarty's Addition to the Town, now city, of Shelbyville.

Provided however, that it is my will, and I do hereby expressly provide and stipulate that in the event, my said wife shall need to sell, incumber or otherwise dispose of the said real estate, or any part thereof, for the purpose of providing funds for her maintenance and support, she shall have, and is given full power and authority to sell, incumber or otherwise dispose of the said real estate for such purpose, and to that end, she is hereby given the power to mortgage the said real estate and to convey the fee simple title thereto for the purpose aforesaid, and if in her judgment such necessity exists, it shall not be necessary to procure any order of court to authorize the execution of such mortgage or deed of conveyance.

If my said wife shall die without disposing of the said real estate, then the said real estate shall go, and the same is hereby given, to my children Henry P. Fisher, Alvin R. Fisher, Riley B. Fisher and Iris E. Fisher, share and share alike in fee simple.

Item 8. I have given nothing to my sons Frederick L. Fisher and Charles E. Fisher, under this will, for the reason that I have heretofore given to them a fair and reasonable share of my estate.

Item 9. It is my will then, in the event that any of the beneficiaries under this will shall object to the terms of this will and attempt annul or set the same aside then such person so objecting shall take nothing under this will, and the part of my estate given to such person under this will shall go to my children who do not object, share and share alike.

Item 10. I hereby appoint my wife, Cecilia E. Fisher as executrix of this my last will.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal at the City of Shelbyville, Indiana, this 4" day of May, 1918

Joseph Fisher, {Seal}

The above and foregoing will was signed, sealed and acknowledged by the said Joseph Fisher, as his last will and testament in our presence, and at his request and in his presence, and in the presence of each other, we do now subscribe our names hereto as witnesses thereto, and for the purposes of indentification we also writing the initials of our names on each page of the said will, this 4" day of May, 1918.

JAMES H. PAYNE

(deceased), was a prominent citizen of Franklin Township, and was born in Clark County, this State, June 25, 1815, being the seventh child in a family of ten children born to Jeremiah and Sarah (McCoy) Payne, who were natives of Pennsylvania, and who came to this State from Kentucky in the year 1812, and settled in Clark County. Six years later they moved to the vicinity of Harristown, where they ever afterward lived. Our subject remained at home and assisted his parents on the farm until he attained the age of twenty-four years. He received what was for those days a pretty good education. October 10, 1839, his marriage with Sophia Blades was solemnized, and to their union eight children were born, of which these four are now living: James C., who married Lucy Howell; Isaac L., unmarried; Jeremiah E., unmarried, and Jacob D., who married Anna Tilford. His occupation was always farming, and he was very successful in that pursuit. At the time of his death he owned 160 acres of improved land. About a year prior to his death he made a division of some of his property among his children, thus enabling them to get a start in the world. January 21, 1880, he died, and in his death the community in which he lived lost an honored and respected citizen, one whose memory will be revered by those who knew him for years to come. The old homestead is now owned by Isaac L. and Jeremiah E., and their mother lives with them. In politics he was a Democrat, and he served the people as Township Trustee and Township Clerk. He was of Irish descent.

WILLIAM S. WALKER, SR.

A prominent old citizen of Franklin Township, is a native of Virginia, where he was born in January, 1804, being the third in a family of four children born to William and Jane (Burton) Walker. When our subject was about three years of age his father died and his mother moved to Kentucky, and married a second time. When William S. had attained the age of twenty-two, he removed to Indiana, and settled in the township in which he now lives, of which, since that time, he has been a constant resident.

WILLIAM B. WALKER, SR.

A prominent old citizen of Franklin Township, is a native of Virginia, where he was born in January, 1804, being the third in a family of four children born to William and Jane (Burton) Walker. When our subject was about three years of age his father died and his mother moved to Kentucky, and married a second time. When William B. had attained the age of twenty-two, he removed to Indiana, and settled in the township in which he now lives, of which, since that time, he has been a constant resident.

In early life he had very limited opportunities for obtaining an education, receiving scarcely any. In March, 1824, his marriage with Louise Lefler was solemnized, and to their union eighteen children have been born, of which these are now living: Mary J., now Mrs. Benjamin Brim; Thomas, who married Julia May; Sarah A., wife of Benjamin F. Smith; Nancy E., unmarried; James, who married Phoebe A. Goss; William S., whose consort was Melissa Robinson; Elizabeth, now Mrs. James Williams; Lucinda, wife of Richard Elrod, and Benjamin, whose present wife is Lydia A. Nelson. Our subject's occupation has been principally farming, and he has been quite successful in that pursuit. He now owns 160 acres of land. Mr. and Mrs. Walker are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In politics he is a Democrat.

GEORGE WILLIAMS

A prominent citizen of Franklin Township, was a native of North Carolina, where he was born August 1, 1815, being the third in a family of nine children born to Thomas and Lydia (Norman) Williams, who were also natives of North Carolina, and came to this State about the year 1823, and first settled in Washington Township, about one and one-half miles south of Salem; after which time, with the exception of three years when they lived in Harrison County, they were residents of this county until the date of their death. George remained at home and assisted his parents on the farm until he attained the age to twenty-two years. He received a limited education in the primitive log schoolhouses of his day. January 17, 1839, his marriage with Sarah A. Hall was solemnized, and to their union eleven children have been born, of which these eight are now living: Elizabeth, now Mrs. John S. Rutherford; Amanda, wife of James Bridgewater; Henrietta, consort of Wesley Rutherford; Francis M., who married Susanna Weller; Eliza J., now Mrs. Solomon Garrison; Erastus, whose wife was Emma Brim, and Martha E., wife of Henry Ashabrenner. His occupation has always been farming. He superintended the county farm for a period of fifteen years. He has been very successful in life. He now owns 475 acres of improved land, raising stock quite extensively. Mr. Williams belongs to the Masonic and Odd Fellow fraternities, and himself and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In politics he is a stanch Democrat, and he

HON. JOHN A. BOWMAN

Was a native of Blount County, Tenn., where he was born April 7, 1818, being the next oldest in a family of eleven children born to John and Catharine (Bowerman) Bowman, who were natives respectively of Virginia and Pennsylvania, and they emigrated to this State about the year 1830, and first settled on the Walnut Ridge, in Monroe Township, and remained there until the death of Mr. Bowman, Sr., which occurred some fifteen years later. Our subject remained at home and assisted his parents on the farm until he attained the age of eighteen years. He then started for Louisiana on a flat-boat, remaining there a period of two years, then returned to Washington County, and purchased a farm in the vicinity of his parents' abode. Prior to reaching the age of eighteen he was apprenticed to learn the cabinet-making trade for two and one-half years. He placed his widowed mother and her two children upon the farm, and engaged in trafficking and dealing in stock between here and New Orleans, in which business he remained until the breaking out of the civil war. Since the war he has made several trips South, but he does not make them with any regularity. January 17, 1881, his marriage with Mary J. (Davis) Howell was solemnized. By her former marriage Mrs. Bowman had one child--Flora E. Mr. Bowman is a member of the Masonic fraternity. He owns 924 acres of land, all situated in Washington County, and is one of the stockholders in the Salem, and is also stockholder in the New Albany, Banking Companies. He served the people as a member of the State Legislature in the Lower House for two terms, and eight years in the State Senate.

JOHN ELLIOTT

When a young man learned the blacksmith's and wagon-maker's trade of George Smith, at Mill Point, with whom he afterward worked in partnership until 1868. He then spent a few months in Holt and Jasper Counties, Missouri. In March, 1869, he returned to Washington County and bought the farm of 180 acres where he now lives. He now has 480 acres in Monroe and Jefferson Townships. He also still continues to work at his trade when it does not interfere with his farming. In July, 1863, he enlisted in Company C, One Hundred and Seventeenth Indiana Volunteer Infantry, with which regiment he served mostly in Tennessee, until mustered out at Indianapolis in February, 1864. Mr. Elliott was born in Monroe Township, July 17, 1836, being one of four children born to John and Mary (Stuart) Elliott, the latter a native of Virginia, and the former of South Carolina, from which States, when young, they came with their parents to Washington County, Ind., where they lived the remainder of their lives. He died September 27, 1864. John Elliott, the subject of this sketch, chose for his companion Margaret Haley, daughter of David and Catharine (Persinger) Haley, to whom he was married February 18, 1870. They have two children--David and Kate.

Benjamin Fisher was killed by the Indians near Strawtown in March, 1821. This caused much commotion at the time, as the Indians had relinquished all claim to this land.

His son, Charles Fisher, told the writer that his father was not scalped, as many accounts have stated. But, from pieces of his father's skull, which he kept, it was evident that he had been struck several times with a tomahawk. Charles Fisher also had the tomahawk with which his father was thought to have been killed.

Benjamin Fisher's widow, Barbara, (there were two Barbara Fishers'), married Benoni Freel, and they lived in a log cabin, on land now owned by J. C. McCarty, at the west edge of Lapel.

Charles Fisher

Charles Fisher's name will be found in connection with various enterprises and happenings in this book. He was married to Lucy Jane, daughter of Thomas Busby, September, 1840. They had four children: (Dr.) John Madison, Melinda (married Dr. Jacob Harter), William (married Florence Vaterman), and Thomas (married Charlotte Rambo. Thomas was a soldier in the Civil War).

His wife died in 1886. He was married in 1903 to Miss Elizabeth Thompson.

To use Mr. Fisher's own words, he was "a Thomas Jefferson Democrat," casting his first vote in 1844 for James K. Polk. He held a number of public offices; was constable for twelve years; trustee of Stonycreek township one term, and postmaster of Fishersburg for five years. He lived to the age of 93.

Dr. J. Madison Fisher

Dr. J. M. Fisher was first married to Martha Taylor. They had two children: Hervey (married Bessie Mowrey), and Grace (married Dr. H. H. Stanford). Dr. Fisher was married a second time, to Addie Bishop. He was a practising physician in Fishersburg and Lapel, accumulated considerable property and lived to be 90 years of age.

Hiram G. Fisher

whose name is found often in these pages, was a son of William and Lydia Opdike Fisher, and a grandson of the John Fisher for whom Fishersburg was named. He was a Lieutenant in Co. E, 34th Ind. Vol. during the Civil War. Was a Justice of the Peace, blacksmith, and physician.

He married Emily A. Huston and their children were: Stephen E. (noted elsewhere), John A. (married Gertrude Wertz), Hiram Vinton, and Edythe (Mrs. Harry E. Wilcox).

Mrs. H. G. Fisher's sister, Margaret Huston, married John Gwinn, also of Co. E, 34th Ind. Vol. They had three children: Etta (Bechtel), William R. and Lula.

Allen Fisher

was a descendent of James Fisher, one of the early settlers at the site of Fishersburg. (He was a half-brother of Addison Fisher). He married Lydia Miller and their children were Walter, Jesse and Arthur. The two first always lived in Lapel.

Walter was in the clothing and dry goods business in Lapel for many years. His wife was Fannie Valentine. Their children: Layall, Juanita (Mrs. Ralph Musselman), Merwyn, Arnold and Basil.

Jesse married Roxy Busby. Their children: Lois (Mrs. Hobartson), and Kathleen.

Mrs. Sarah Valentine

Mrs. Sarah Valentine, who now lives with her daughter, Mrs. Fannie Fisher, is a remarkable woman. Although 95 years of age, she is as active, mentally and physically as many women of half her age. In her 89th year, she took an airplane ride and says that she never enjoyed anything so much in her life, and wishes that she could go again. Her parents were John and Emma Druley Brattain. Her husband, Alfred Valentine, was baptized by Rev. R. C. Jones, when on his death bed, but the others of her family had been lifelong Methodists. For the past thirty-one years she has been a Christian Scientist. Their children were: Grace (Mrs. Harry Ervin) and Fannie (Mrs. Walter Fisher).

EUNICE

now back in town where the Dickerson Motor Company has the Ford agency.

He married Alta Mills. There are five children: Clyde (married Irma Kramer), Neil, Dorothy, Alberta and Eugene.

James Lewis Elsten

mentioned elsewhere in these pages, was born in New Jersey in 1804 and came to Fishersburg in 1856. He was twice married. His first wife was Miss Wene. Their children were: Stephen Arnold and Paul, Mary (Mrs. Elias Huffman), Harriett (Mrs. John Snell), and Betsey Ann (Mrs. Christian Bodenhorn). His second wife was Rebecca McGrew. In later years, in her widowhood, she was known in Fishersburg as "Grandma Elsten." She lived to be 94 years of age and for a number of years her niece, Ella Armstrong, a deaf mute, lived with her. Another niece, Bertha McGrew (Aiman), made her home there from childhood.

Mr. Elsten was one of the early blacksmiths; also had a store at Fishersburg. His two sons Stephen A. and Paul worked with him in the blacksmith shop, then Stephen A. married Martha Studley and moved to Ohio, where she died and he married Elizabeth Peacock, later coming back to Lapel. There were three children (by the second wife): Harry, Walter, and Nellie.

Paul Elsten married Sarah Anshutz. They had six sons; two of whom died in infancy. The others: John (died young), Charles, Grant and William. Charles married Alice J. Sears; Grant married Mary Forbes, William married Clara Finney.

After Paul Elsten's death his widow married James Bruce. She was always a church worker; taught many Sunday School classes, and always gave her class a handkerchief apiece at Christmas time.

Charles Elsten

has lived in Fishersburg and Lapel all of his life. He clerked in the old Bodenhorn store at Fishersburg for twelve years, and has been clerking in clothing and hardware stores in Lapel since, at present being with James Sears in the hardware store.

WILL ELSTEN was also a clerk in the Fishersburg store for many years.

GRANT ELSTEN, who lived in Lapel for some time, operated the hotel for a while.

Harry Elsten

carpenter and contractor, has always lived in Lapel. He married Herma Critser. They have one son, Clarence.

WALTER ELSTEN'S home is also in Lapel. He married Kate McClintick. They have three children: Dr. Wayne Elsten, Donna and Ruth.

NELLIE married Harley Shoaf and lives at Noblesville, Ind.

James A. Ellison was a son of Joseph and Prudence Busby Ellison, who came from Virginia in 1833, when Joseph Ellison entered the land south of Fishersburg now owned by Mosbaugh Linkinhoker. He died in 1840.

In 1855 James Ellison, his mother and four others of the immediate family were members of a colony that left Fishersburg for Minnesota. The Ellisons pre-empted land near Byron, Minn., where James A. married Helen A. Williams. In 1872 he was elected sheriff, serving three terms.

In 1891 Mr. Ellison with his wife and son Frank moved to Lapel. Further mention of J. A. Ellison will be found on other pages.

Children were: Clara D. (Fisher), Bertha A., George W., Francis W. (married Jessie Woodward) and James W.

Frank Ellison died in 1908; Clara D. Fisher in 1936.

Benjamin Fisher

Benjamin Fisher, whose son Charles Fisher had much to do in the building up of our two towns, came from Clermont County, Ohio, in June, 1820. His wife and three children comprised the family, the children being: John, Mary (married Sullivan Simmerman), and Charles, then six months old.

They came in a wagon, driving via Winchester and Andersontown, which was then a mere Indian village; old Chief Anderson living there at that time. They settled between Perkinsville and Strawtown, in a round log cabin sixteen feet square, in which was no floor.

The Hidden continued in use until the 1880s; however, by the early 20th century the headstones and boundary arkers had long since disappeared, and the cemetery grounds were unrecognizable. In the 1940s and 50s a golf course vered the area and later a residential development was added. While the golf course, itself, had to give way in the cond half of the century to further progress, the private homes, of course, remained.

Since the cemetery was in danger of being completely forgotten, the MCCC, in 1976 on the strength of its archives d research at the time, decided to place a commemorative sign for the cemetery north of the burial site of Mary eel, 1804-1847. Mary was noted as "buried across the road [what is now Main Street] on higher ground" in an apple chard. This would have been to the east of the Hidden which was flooded at the time of Mary's death.

While the sign for the Hidden Cemetery remains, at this point, a little distance from the general area in which the iginal graveyard once existed, a few of the members of Stony Creek Township's earliest settlers can be memorialized, least, at this web site. The MCCC, with the help of historians and descendants, plans in the near future to reopen the vestigation as to the Hidden Cemetery's original location.

The commemorative sign for the Hidden Cemetery is truly hidden along one of the busiest highways in Madison County, SR 32. The sign, pictured here, is behind a few old growth naples in tall grass on a little knoll. It is on the south side of the highway and is positioned 0 yards or so north of Mary Freel's burial site. It is believed, at this point, that the Hidden Cemetery's original location was to the west of this sign across Main Street near the Lapel edical Center. The cemetery, destroyed in the early 20th century, held some important first oneers to the county including Hannah Freel and John and Barbara Fisher, all born in the 18th century.

State Road 32 between Anderson and the Lapel/Fishersburg area was once lined with important places for Stony Creek pioneers: not only this cemetery but also an early log school and the most admired church building of its time in the county.

The burial list below is incomplete.

Somewhere in is general shot, the Hidden Cemetery once received the remains of Stony Creek Township's first settlers. It should be noted that the medical center is not responsible for the cemetery's destruction.

The Hidden Cemetery is the resting place for the very first family to enter Stony Creek Township. The Fisher others John and Benjamin arrived with "kith and kin" in 1820. Older brother John, c. 1781-1850, is buried here along th his wife Barbary/Barbara, c. 1785-aft. 1870, and their son William. Younger brother Benjamin was a veteran of the ar of 1812 and has the distinction of being one of the few white settlers to be killed by Native Americans still in the ea at that time. His violent death occurred during the Strawtown Massacre in March of 1821. Fishersburg was named honor of Benjamin. While he is buried in the Strawtown Cemetery in Hamilton County, his widow is buried at the dden. Her first name was Hannah, c. 1798-c.1833; she was one of the first white women in the county and the other of area leader Charles Fisher, etc. She, herself, had a frightening encounter with Native Americans several ars after Benjamin's death, and their son Charles would later chronicle these stories for local newspapers. entually, Hannah married Benoni Freel, the first to settle land in Jackson Township just to the north.

While this earliest of Stony Creek Township cemeteries holds the remains of some of the first families to the entire unty--Fishers, Freels, Gwinns, and Huntzingers/Hunsingers, etc.--its original location is still in question. Some facts e evident from published histories. The very first death in Stony Creek Township, according to the 1880 Kingman story of Madison County, was a George Shetterly in 1830. He was the son of Henry and Mary Shetterly and from that iblication "was buried on the Charles Fisher farm." George's death actually began this early settlers' graveyard. In oking through old plat maps of the area and other historical documents, the location of the Hidden Cemetery "on the iarles Fisher farm" would be in the general area of the southwest corner of the intersection of SR 32 and Lapel's Main reet as pictured above.

There are so many historical things to learn about. At this time, I am learning about my ancestors, as I am very much interested in genealogy. I had a letter from Ronald McDole, of Iowa and his great-great-grandfather owned the land, at one time, where

Charles Fisher's name will be found in connection with various enterprises and happenings in this book. He was married to Lucy Jane, daughter of Thomas Busby, September, 1840. They had four children: (Dr.) John Madison, Melinda (married Dr. Jacob Harter), William (married Florence Vaterman), and Thomas (married Charlotte Rambo. Thomas was a soldier in the Civil War).

His wife died in 1886. He was married in 1903 to Miss Elizabeth Thompson.

To use Mr. Fisher's own words, he was "a Thomas Jefferson Democrat," casting his first vote in 1844 for James K. Polk. He held a number of public offices; was constable for twelve years; trustee of Stonycreek township one term, and postmaster of Fishersburg for five years. He lived to the age of 93.

EARLY SETTLERS.

ANDERSON PUBLIC LIBRARY
ANDERSON, INDIANA

Charles Fisher is probably the oldest settler in Madison County. He came with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Fisher, from Clermont County,Ohio in June, 1820, when he was about six months old. He was the youngest of three children and the only one now living. The other two children, John and Mary(Mrs. Simmerman, mother of Sullivan Simmerman) died a number of years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Fisher left a little farm of 33 acres on the Litt Abanyon, one and a half miles from Goshen, Ohio, and in a wagon came to Indiana. They drove through Winchester to Anderson Indiana, the latter place being then merely an Indian village, with no white people living there at all. The old chief Anderson, for whom the town was named, was living there at the time.

They drove down the river to within half mile of the Flanders farm, between Perkinsville and Strawtown and there settled in a round log cabin 16 feet square, in which was no floor but the dirt.

In Strawtown, an Indian village named after the chief Strawbridge who then lived there)was one white family named Shintapper. This man kept liquor to sell to the Indians and when they bought the liquor and got drunk Shintapper would abuse them. He had a great fireplace in which logs six feet long could be burned and he once threw an Indian on this fire where he burned to death. At another time he burned one until he was crippled afterwards.

By such treatment the Indians were justly incensed and determined to be revenged and so ten of them went one day armed with their knives and tomahawks, intending to kill Shintapper when no one was about.

That same day--in March, 1821- Benjamine Fisher, John Colip and Jacob Hiers happened to go to Shintappers to grind their axes, he being the only one in that settlement who owned a grindstone. They had not been there lon before the Indians arrived. Of course they could not stand by and see Shintapper killed so undertook to defend him.

There was a five-rail fence around the cabin,outside of which were the Indians and inside were the white men.Being so far apart they could only throw stones, clubs, etc. at each other.The white men could throw better than the red men and the latter would back away, when the white men would go over the fence and follow them when, after going a certain distance the Indians would turn back on them. After a time the Indians went away but no to stay,as the others thought,for they returned with their arms full of clubs from 15 inches to 2 feet long.

The battle then continued as at first,the red men retreating and the white men chasing them, then in turn being chased back.Finally, one Indian hit Shintapper with a club and knocked him down, then jumped on the fence to get inside. At this Hier struck the Indian on the head and killed him, when he fell back on the outside of the fence.Then the battle waged fierce than ever. But when retreating from the Indians Benjamin Fisher fell and w at once tomahawked by the Indians, who then gathered up their dead Indian and went away. Mr. Fisher was not scalped as some accounts have stated but from the pieces of skull(now in possession of Charles Fisher) it is eviden that he was struck several times with the tomahawk.(Charles Fisher also ha the tomahawk supposed to have killed his father).

Henry Shetterly was the first on the scene of action after the death o Mr. Fisher. The same night Shintapper loaded his goods in a canoe and with his wife and child went down White River and was never heard of again. Benjamin Fisher was buried at Strawtown near where he was killed. His was the first grave in what is now known as Strawtown cemetery.

Charles Fisher well remembers the early days, and tells many interesting things about them. The Indians used to be daily visitors at their house. His mother had a large pewter basin that held about two gallons;in this she would put a generous quantity of milk, break in bread and putting down as many spoons as there were Indians, let them seat themselves on the floor around the bowl and eat.

One time four or five Indians came, one or two of them being the worse fo liquor. Mrs. Fisher was sewing the children playing about her. The Indians asked for food. She told them that she did not have any. At this one of the drunken Indians took hold of her hair and taking out his long knife, run the back of it around her head saying,"me scalp white woman!"The two older child ran out to call in a man who was chopping near by, while young Charles darte under the bed. When the man came in from outside, he reached up and took dow one of the guns in the cabin, when the Indians run out, mounted their ponies and rode away.

As a child Charles Fisher remembered the place in the forest, about 150 yards from the house, where his mother went regularly twice a day in secret devotion. She took him with her leading him by the hand. Later, when she by saving had accumulated $ 100 and with it purchased and moved upon the 80 acr where David Conrad now lives.She still had a place by a big oak tree near th cabin, where she went twice a day to pray, as long as she lived. Mr. Fisher says that this has left an impression upon his mind that has always remained

His mother was married about four years, after his fathers death to Benoni Freel. She sent by her husband to the land office to buy the 80 acres mentioned above. And as was the common practice in those days when everything that belonged to one belonged to the other, the title was made ou in Mr. Freel's name. After his mothers death, which occurred when Charles Fisher was about 12 years old,his other brother and sister having married,he went out into the world to take care of himself. His mother was buried in th cemetery,now in the George Wright addition at the north edge of Lapel.

Charles Fisher's schooling was limited, one or two months in each year constituting the length of his learning. He never saw inside an English Gram -er until his last term at school when he was 16 years old, and he was the only scholar that the teacher could get to undertake it. It is not to be inferred, however, that Mr. Fisher is not an educated man.Far from it. His mother, a well-educated Yankee woman, had taught him much and he profited by all he heard. As soon as he earned money he spent what he could spare for books, and today is a well read, well educated man.

We come now to speak of another family, that of

Thomas Busby

Thomas Busby and his wife Isabel Gwinn,(an aunt of the late James Gwinn drove from West Virginia in 1833. They settled first on Fall Creek above Pendleton and after living there for four years,bought the half section of land north east of Lapel,now owned by the Woodwards, and moved thereon. Mr. and Mrs. Busby were prominent members of the Methodist Church, highly respected people and ever ready to help the sick and afflicted. Charles Fisher lived within three-quarters of a mile of this place and became acquainted with them.After he became a young man he paid his respects to the eldest daughter Lucy Jane Busby, and in September 1840 they were married by Lucien Emmons, a Methodist preacher, both of the young people being members of that church. They lived with Mr. and Mrs. Busby that winter .During which time Mr. Fisher cleared 7 acres of timber land on "Father Busby!s" farm, leaving the timber ready to roll, for which he received $14.

In the spring they had one small horse,one cow,2 hogs. They made about 200 pounds of maple sugar, which they sold for 4 cents a pound.They bought a cheap set of knives,forks and plates,one teakettle,one stew pot and one frying pan and with this modest outfit started housekeeping. They needed no stove--there were none in the country then, all the cooking being done befor a fireplace.

They rented 80 acres of land from James Gwinn and moved in the cabin that stood near where Silas B. Lee's house now stands on Pendleton Avenue ir Lapel. Mr. Fisher had been saving money from the time he was 12 years old and the next year he bought and moved on the 80 acres now owned by Edward Johnson.

To Mr. and Mrs. Fisher were born five children: Thomas L., John M., Melinda S.,William L.,and Laban. Mrs. Melinda Harter and Dr. John Madison Fisher are the only ones now living.

Laban was buried on the Busby farm, having died before the Woodward cemetery was established, in which cemetery his two brothers,Thomas and William , his brother Madison's first wife wife and their daughter, his brother William's daughter, and also his wife, Mrs. Charles Fisher, whose death occurred Sept. 16. 1886. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Busby are also buried in Woodward cemetery.

The first Methodist preachers, circut riders,used to hold meetings at the cabin of Charles Fisher's father and later at Benoni Freel's. Some of these preachers were--Bond, "Old Jimmie Scott",and Rev. Fairchilds. Local preachers were: Perkins,of Perkinsville, John Allman and Jonathan Carey. The circut embraced Lafayette, Indianapolis, Richmond and Logansport. The preacher made the rounds on horseback every four weeks.

To illustrate the scarcity of money in those days Mr. Fisher tells an anecdote of "Father D.E. Studley." One year Thomas Busby had a field of heav wheat blown down by a high wind and Mr. Studley and Mr. Fisher went out to help cut the fallen wheat, which had to be cut with a sickle.They reaped all day as hard as they could and Mr. Studley received 25 cents for his days work. This was considered good wages in money at that time.(Wheat sold for 35 and 40 cents and sometimes but 25 cents).The 25 cents earned by that hard day's work was paid by Mr. Studley to the preacher for his quarterage, thus proving that he was a good Christan man or he would not have labored so hard that day and then paid the little he did earn to the preacher.

Everyone was his own shoemaker in those days. They tanned their own leather and though the shoes were not fine to look at, they wore well.

Mr. Fisher early allied himself with the Democratic party and, to use his own words, is a "Thomas Jefferson Democrat," though he believes in respectin both the political and religious opinions of others and says that he has just as good Republican nieghbors as Democrat ones.He has lived under 21 Presidents,and cast his first vote in 1844 for James K. Polk, who was running against Henry Clay, the Wing candidate.

He has held several public offices, having been constable for 12 years, trustee of Stonycreek Township one term and postmaster of Fishersburg for 10 years. When the postoffice at Fishersburg was established, through the influence of William Shanklin, Mr. Fisher became the first postmaster.

Mr. Fisher tells how the houses were lit up, as he first remembered it. The children would pull shell bark off the hickory trees, put it in the corner and light it. Later on they would take the top off a turnip, scrape the inside out, put in a stick with a rag wrapped all around it,then fill the turnip with coon oil. When the rag was lit it gave a very good light. Still later, were the open lamps of sheet iron (called in some localities cruse) shaped like our gravy boats, at the small point of which the wick protruded. Many years after, came the lamps such as we have today.

Mr. Fisher says that he never called for a drink or a drop of spirituous liquor's for himself or anyone else, never was inside a saloon in his life, never chewed tobacco or smoked a pipe, cigar or cigarette.

He is today a well preserved man of nearly 83 years, one of the prosper--ous, highly respected men of the community.For the past two years he has no been so strong, but is quite active, though troubled with his left eye, ove which a cataract is growing.

Besides the two children mentioned, he has four grandchildren and six great-grandchildren living. The grandchildren are: Rose M. Woodward, daughter of his eldest son, Dora Leatherman, daughter of Mrs. Harter, Hervey Fisher and Grace Stanford, son and daughter of J.M. Fisher.

Mr. Fisher has a number of relics of the past, among them being a large powder horn that was carried by his grandfather through the Revolutionary war and later by his father in the war of 1812. Where it rubbed on their side, while being carried, it is almost worn through. It is made of a cow-horn, and has a wooden cork that screws in.On the horn is carved pictures of birds,etc. and his father's initials.

He also has a reticule that is over 100 years old and belonged to his great- grandmother, also a piece of one of her calico dresses. He has a lock of his mother's and of his grand-mother's hair.

For more than a quarter of a century they have maintained a Sunday school during the summer months.

The Asbury M. E. Church was organized about 1832, by Joseph Barnes and Elias Hollingsworth, in the south end of this township, on the edge of Union Township. On the 16th of August, 1833, Elias Hollingsworth, Samuel Sprinkle and Joseph Barnes were constituted a Board of Trustees, with the view of building a house of worship, and, on the 28th of December following, Joseph Barnes and wife deeded to the said Trustees one and a half acres of land on Section 28, on what is now known as the John Nelson farm, and soon afterward they built a small log church, and continued for many years to hold their meeting in it. Elias Hollingsworth was a local preacher in the church, and did good service in attending funerals, performing marriage ceremonies, etc. In 1870, while Rev. William Jordan had charge of the church, a meeting-house was built by the society on the bank of Killbuck, about eighty rods west of the old site. This house is 34x46 feet, and cost about $1,500. Dedicated September 13, 1870, by Rev. Dr. Bowman. Present membership is about twenty-five. Among the very early members may be mentioned the names of Samuel Spinkle, Joseph Barnes, Elias Hollingsworth, David Tappin and wife, and Daniel Goodykoontz and wife. The present Pastor is Rev. J. H. Jackson. This church has a flourishing Sunday school.

The Chambers' Christian Church was organized about 1854 with seven members, as follows: Hiram Chambers and wife, John Chambers and wife, Susan Chambers, Nancy Scott and Mary Chambers. Hiram Chambers deeded the society a tract of ground on Section 27, and, in 1869, they built a house on it 34x40 feet, that cost them near $1,500. For several years, this church

About 1838, Matthew Pennell [illegible] southwest corner of the township, and, soon thereafter, William Curtis James Barnes built a grist-mill near by it. They both used the same but divided the water between them.

The grist-mill afterward fell into the hands of R. Adams, and, about 1 was turned into a woolen-mill, but at this time they have all gone down, e some of the frame timbers.

At an early day, Benjamin Walker built a saw-mill on Killbuck, on tion 28, and, in 1840, attached a carding machine to it, which he operate a few years.

Soon after this, John B. Purcell built, near the same site, a small w factory, and, after operating it a few years, sold out to Stephen Broadbent has continued the business ever since.

MOONVILLE.

About 1839, Messrs. Williams & Adams opened a small country sto the land of Zimri Moon, on Section 15, where Joseph Hancock now This store was afterward run by Trimble & Swaar, Trimble & Moore lastly, by Samuel & Joseph Pence, who discontinued it about 1860.

Soon after the store was started, Hiram Stanton set up a blacksmith and Mr. Moon a hotel. There was also a post office here called "Moon

There was never any town plat laid out, and at this time all trace of ness has disappeared.

William Curtis, above mentioned, was the first physician in the tow and Isaac Jones was the first Justice of the Peace.

STONY CREEK TOWNSHIP.

THE above township was formerly a part of Jackson Township, but was organized into a separate civil township, and named Stony Creek after the principal creek that flows through it. It is situated in the western part of the county, adjoining Hamilton County, and contains twenty-eight square miles. The soil of this township is rich. The eastern and southeastern parts are very level, while the west and north parts are more broken, and susceptible of easy drainage.

Stony Creek is a beautiful little stream, flowing across the northwest part of the township and into Hamilton County. Sand Creek, in the south part, is made up principally of neighborhood ditches, and passes out into Green Township.

Notwithstanding the fifty-one years of continuous chopping, there is a large quantity of good timber still standing, such as oak, ash, elm, beech, poplar, etc., the worth of which is now beginning to be realized by its owners.

EARLY SETTLEMENT.

In 1823, several families settled on Stony Creek, near the present site of Fishersburg, among whom were Benjamin Fisher, — Busby, D. E. Studley, John Anderson, George Reddick and H. Studley. In April, 1828, Henry Shetterly and Benoni Freel, both from Ohio, settled near the banks of the creek, the former on what has since been known as the Hoffman farm, on Section 28, and the latter on Section 21, near the present residence of David Conrad. Here Mr. F. built a small log cabin, which was the first house erected in the township. Mr. Freel was the step-father of Charles Fisher, Esq., who was at that time a lad of some eleven summers, and who still has very vivid recollections of many exciting scenes in early pioneer life.

John Fisher, from Clermont County, Ohio, came in during the year 1831, and settled on the Charles Fisher farm, that lies between the present sites of Fishersburg and Lapell.

In June, 1823, John Anderson, from Hamilton County, Ohio, settled on the west bank of Stony Creek, about a half a mile above Fishersburg. Here he lived but a few years, when he moved just across the line into Ha County, where he still resides.

About 1835, James and Jesse Gwinn, from Virginia, moved in and on Section 23, where James still lives.

In 1836, W. A. Aldred settled in the neighborhood.

In 1837, Thomas Busby, from Virginia, after spending a few years i Creek Township, came in and settled on Section 22, where his son S still resides. About this time, Arbuckle Nelson settled the Bodenhorn on Section 35.

In 1837, D. E. Studley and John McDole, from Ohio, settled on th now occupied in part by the village of Lapell.

When Messrs. Shetterly and Freel settled, they at once began to cl farms, so that the Hoffman and Conrad farms were the first opened i township.

The First Road.—Early in the year 1832, a road was laid from town, in Hamilton County, to Pendleton, in Madison County, and by fa been made passable most of the distance for teams. Mr. Charles claims to have been the first person to drive a team and wagon over the The Pendleton & Fishersburg pike now occupies the same route.

EARLY EVENTS.

The First Marriage.—On the 8th day of July, 1834, Samuel Sh and Jane Freel were united in marriage by Ancil Beach, Deacon of the Church, at the residence of the bride's father, Benoni Freel. In due of time, a daughter was born unto them, and christened Sarah Jane.

The above important events are said to have been the first of the kin occurred in Stony Creek Township.

The First Death.—George Shetterly died some time about 1830, a buried on the Charles Fisher place.

First School.—The first schoolhouse in the township was built about near Stony Creek, a little south of the Fisherburg tollgate. It was a sm cabin, daubed inside and out with mud. The ceiling was secured against the cold by laying split puncheons on the upper joists, and covering them a foot thick with earth.

About 1838, this schoolhouse was converted into a blacksmith-shop by Mr. Z. Rogers, who started therein the first shop of the kind in the township.

At this time, there are nine comfortable, well-seated schoolhouses in the township, in all of which the schools are well attended, under the management of their Trustee, Benjamin Wise, Esq.

CHURCHES.

Methodist Episcopal.—The Fishersburg Methodist Episcopal Church had its beginning so far back in the dim past, and with such an humble birth, as to make it very difficult to arrive at the exact facts in relation to its first organization. Suffice it to say, however, that some time previous to the year 1838, a small class was organized, that soon afterward became one of the out-preaching stations of the Noblesville Circuit.

For several years, their meetings were held either in private houses, or in the Fishersburg schoolhouse.

About 1843, their congregation having become larger, they built a small log house of worship in Fishersburg. This they occupied about thirteen years, when again their old quarters becoming too straitened, the church arose and built a neat and comfortable frame house, 40x50 feet, at a cost of $1,500, which was dedicated, free from debt, in June, 1856.

In September, 1853, the Clarksville Circuit was formed of a part of the Noblesville Circuit, and three years later, the name was changed to Fisherrburg Circuit.

Amongst the early preachers we find the name of M. Miller in 1838, Lucian Berry in 1840, William Smith in 1842, James Scott in 1846.

The church now numbers over two hundred members. T. H. C. Beall, preacher in charge; J. R. Woodward, Recording Steward.

In connection with the church is a flourishing Sunday school, with about one hundred scholars. Albert Gibbs, Superintendent.

Baptist.—About 1843, a small band of Baptists met and organized a church, and about one year thereafter they built a small house in Fishersburg. For a season, they enjoyed the labors of Rev. Nathaniel Richmond.

This church never became very strong in numbers, and for fifteen years or more, have held no meetings, having become extinct.

Christian.—The Forrest Chapel Christian Church was organized June 10, 1860, with sixteen members, and for some time enjoyed the labors of Rev. B. F. Gregory.

In 1861, they built a neat and comfortable meeting-house, 24x40 feet, on Section 32. At this time they are without a Pastor.

FISHERSBURG.

Fishersburg, the principal village of the township is situated on Section 28, on the west bank of Stony Creek, adjourning the Hamilton County line.

The town was laid out May 10, 1837, by Rev. Fletcher Tivis; Lot 10 was donated for church purposes, and is occupied by the Methodist Episcopal Church.

A short time after the town was laid out, Mr. Z. Rogers built the old log house that stands opposite the toll gate; that was the first house in the village.

About 1844, William and Benjamin Sylvester bought a small stock of goods and stored them in a small unfinished building, but did not open them. Mr. Charles Fisher bought out the stock, finished up the building, and, after adding to the stock, opened out a general store, where he continued the trade for about ten years.

Fishersburg had been laid out about sixteen years before they had a post-office, but during the first year (1853) of President Franklin Pierce's administration, a post-office was established, and Charles Fisher appointed Po he was succeeded by W. A. Fisher, and he in turn by J. W. Taylor, a George Dunham, in 1867, who still holds it.

Up to this time, they had but a weekly mail, and that carried on l from Clarksville. Upon Mr. Dunham's accession to the office a sem and since the completion of the A., L. & St. L. R. R. in 1876, they daily mail each way.

The leading business and professional men of Fishersburg, are as George Dunham, general merchant and Postmaster.

J. L. Elston, dealer in groceries and provisions.

Drs. D. Cook, J. M. Fisher, J. A. Aldred and L. P. Ballenger.

The following firms are doing business here: G. N. Hilligoss merchant; Woodward Bros. & Co., flouring-mill; Conrad & Wright in grain, stock and implements; S. E. Busby, railroad agent.

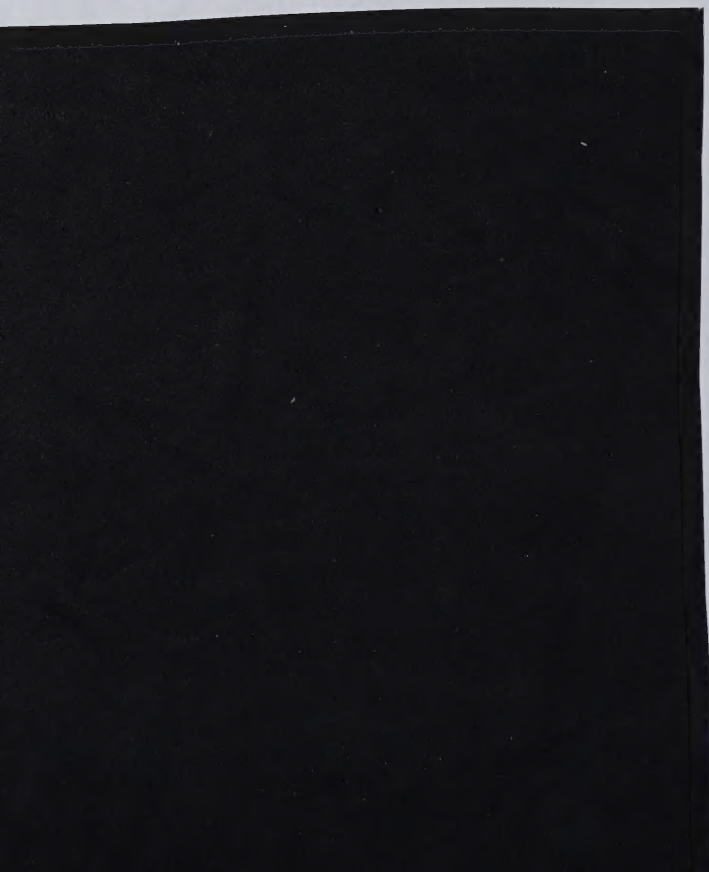
March 6, 1878, a post office was established at Grabers Station, calle and Marion Graber appointed Postmaster, and within a week of the sa another office was started one mile east of above and called Johnson's C and J. J. Johnson, appointed Postmaster.

SOCIETIES—F. & A. M.

In September, 1875, a Masonic lodge was instituted under dispens Fishersburg, numbering twelve members.

This lodge was never chartered, but in May, 1877, the recor surrendered to the grand lodge, and it became extinct.

The officers at the beginning were George Dunham, W. M.; J. W. S. W.; C. C. Welch, J. W.; J. S. Simmerman, S. D.; Thomas Henl D.; David Conrad, Sec.; J. M. Fisher, Treas., and C. Lawson, Tiler.



DID YOU KNOW?

Turnpikes

Private companies began building turnpikes in Madison County in 1858 and collected a toll to pay for construction. In 1885 the Legislature allowed county commissioners to buy toll roads if approved by voters. So, the toll roads soon became county property and free gravel roads came as a result.

One toll gate was located just west of the present bridge across Stony Creek, where the old road wound around the east edge of Fishersburg.

The Anderson & Fishersburg Turnpike Co. was organized in 1865 to build nine miles of turnpike between Lapel and Anderson at $2,000 per mile. Officers of the company were President David Conrad, Secretary C.D. Thompson, Treasurer Samuel Moss and directors Elias Brown and John Cunningham. But the company went bankrupt and only one mile of road was ever built at the Fishersburg end of the line, although three miles were built at the Anderson terminus.

As it was required that three miles be built before a toll could be charged, no toll was collected by the Anderson-Fishersburg Co. at this end of the line.

A second toll gate was located at the east edge of what is now Lapel, where the road turns south. This part of the "pike" was owned by the Pendleton & Fishersburg Turnpike Co., which was also organized in 1865, although it was in September 1867 that the road was extended a little farther west and Charles Fisher sold to the company additional ground — from about where the Central Indiana R.R. now crosses the pike, west for several rods.

This road was about eight miles long. The four miles nearest Pendleton cost $3,000 per mile, the remainder $2,000 per mile, to build.

There was a third toll gate at the north border of Fishersburg, north of the Leonard Mill. Meredith Wright (father of Robert Wright) was one of the gate keepers. Joe Crooks was the last keeper of the gate, going there in 1882.

When the commissioners took over the road in 1889, Crooks bought the house he had lived those seven years, and moved it to Fishersburg.

About FamilySearch Pedigree Resource File:
The Pedigree Resource File is a new lineage linked database of records available on compact disc containing family history records submitted by individuals through FamilySearch Internet Genealogy Service. Family information is organized in family groups and pedigrees and includes submitted notes and sources. Many charts and reports can be printed from this data. Each disc contains about 1.1 million names. With the publication of every five discs, a master index for those discs will be published and packaged with that set of discs. With the publication of every 25 discs, a master index for those discs will also be published and packaged with that volume of discs. Discs may be purchased as sets or volumes.

GEORGE FISHER PASSED AWAY

AT HIS FATHER'S HOME EARLY THIS MORNING

GRIM DEATH CLAIMED

A POPULAR AND WELL-KNOWN YOUNG MAN

Taken Ill Two Weeks Ago He Gradually Grew Worse—Members of Family at His Bedside

George Fisher died at one o'clock this morning at the home of his father, Thomas C. Fisher, on West Ninth street, after an illness of two weeks. The end came quietly and he was at no time conscious. Two weeks ago Mr. Fisher was taken ill while assisting in moving the city offices from Main street to the old postoffice rooms on East Ninth street. He contracted a heavy cold during the day and three days later was unable to leave his bed. Lung fever was at first threatened but he recovered from that and jaundice then developed. Unable to retain nourishment, he steadily grew weaker and on last Monday his condition became alarming. From that time he lost consciousness and the end seemed near at hand several times. Yesterday morning he rallied somewhat and for a short time was conscious.

It was then thought that the crisis had passed, but in his weakened condition he could not rally and during the night he steadily became worse until death relieved his suffering at one o'clock this morning. All the members of the family, except his sister were at the bedside.

George F. Fisher was born in this city and would have been 25 years of age in May. He was educated in the Anderson public schools and spent three years in DePauw university at Greencastle. On returning home he entered into political life and was a candidate for city treasurer at the last election. At the time of his death he was deputy city clerk and treasurer. Last May he was married to Miss Ruth Knight, of this city. Mr. Fisher was financial secretary of the B. P. O. Eagles and was also a member of the Sigma Chi fraternity.

His sister Mrs. Dan Talbot will arrive today from her home in Kansas, when the funeral arrangements will be made.

MAY BUILD A NEW CHURCH

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS ARE PROSPERING IN THIS CITY

HAVING BIG REVIVAL

OVER TWENTY-FIVE CONVERSIONS ALREADY.

Little Church Unable to Comfortably Accommodate the Worshippers —Effort for New Building May Start Soon.

The largest revival in the history of the Friends' church is being conducted by Rev. Tormohlen, the local pastor. There were two conversions at the meeting last night and there have been altogether over twenty-five since the meeting began. The subject of the sermon last night was "The Invitation is Urgent."

Rev. Tormohlen said to a reporter last night that the work of this Friends church in this city was growing so rapidly in importance that a new church would be needed. The membership is increasing and will possibly reach the three hundred mark before the year is over. A movement for a new church will probably be started by spring and it is thought that there will not be much trouble in raising the money for a building. The present quarters are insufficient to accommodate the membership comfortably. Last Sunday the Sunday school was so large that it was found necessary to use the small room upstairs for classes. The revival meetings at the church will continue indefinitely.

Miss Ethel Clark, Mrs. Tate Smith, and Mrs. Charles Homan, of Pendleton, spent yesterday here with friends.

BIG BAG OF MONEY

WORK IS PROGRESSING

The Manufacturers Mining and Fuel company has finished examining the titles to its coal property in Sullivan county and George Lilly will leave for the coal field with a big bag of money to pay for the land. The company will employ an engineer to make a survey of the property and will continue drilling over the fields in order to find the best places to sink the mining shafts. The company is anxious to get the actual work started as soon as possible and the preliminaries will be finished rapidly.

CARRIERS NAMED

After the 16th of next month Madison county will have the most complete free rural mail delivery system in the State. Forty-six routes will be covered daily and almost every farmer in the county will have his mail left at his home each morning as promptly as does his town cousin. Congressman Cromer has worked faithfully to bring this about and the farmers have much to thank him for. Postmaster Grimes, contrary to the general impression, is not notified by the department as to the appointment of carriers. The applicants themselves are informed when a selection is made and the postmaster knows nothing of it until the man reports to him. Wm. H. Lampkins, colored, has been appointed carrier on route No. 8. He is employed at the Banner store, and in the civil service examination made a grade of 94. Daniel W. Boone will be the carrier on route No. 11. John Hilligoss is to be carrier for route No. 12. The other three appointments have not yet been made known to Postmaster Grimes.

The new routes to be established on Feb. 16, in Madison county, follow: Anderson, 6; Alexandria, 4; Elwood, 3; Frankton, 1; Summitville, 1; Perkinsville, 1; Fugalls, 1; and Lapel, 2. This will make a total of 46 rural routes in the county.

The Anderson, Lebanon & St. Louis Railroad was completed acro township from east to west, in 1876. Lapell is the principal station.

TURNPIKE.

In 1865, the citizens of Stony Creek and Fall Creek Township l weary of dragging their produce to market over the mud roads, and determ build a pike or gravel road, from Pendleton to Fishersburg. A stock co was formed, with the following officers: J. A. Taylor, David Conrad, I Craven and D. Bodenhorn, Directors; and J. O. Hardy, Treasurer.

The length of the road is about eight miles. The first four miles n Pendleton cost about $3,000 per mile, and the remainder about $2,0 mile.

When the organization was completed, assessments were made up lands along the route that were supposed to be benefited, and the mone raised was applied to the building of the road.

This is one of the best pikes in the county, and has added largely value of farmers along the line of the road.

The officers of the pike are G. W. Sears, President; J. V. Kerr, Secr and they together with D. Conrad, C. Bodenhorn and J. A. Taylor, cons the Board of Directors.

All of the earlier settlers to this area were squatters.
In October of 1818, The Treaty of St. Mary's was signed. In 1819, the Federal Government started preparations to open a new Land Office in Brookville to handle the sales for the 'New Purchase' land. In October of 1820, the office opened for business and stayed opened until 1825. The office was then relocated to Indianapolis. The minimum price for early land sales in Indiana was $2.00 per acre. Hard times had fallen on the frontier. Many banks had failed and many of the settlers, who had contracted for land, could no longer meet the payments. The government reduced the minimum price to $1.25 per acre and lowered the minimum number of acres needed to purchase to 80. In exchange for the concessions made by the Federal Government, they required full payment be made in cash immediately on contracts or upon new purchases. The squatters were allowed to purchase their land at the $1.25 per acre rate. When the Land Office opened for business on October 2, 1820, settlers rushed in to claim their land. Between October and December, there were over 100 claims entered for Shelby County. There continued to be a large number of sales for many years.
Nevertheless, there was still government land available in Shelby County in the 1850's. James Wilson and his family didn't live in isolation for long. Shelby County was no longer wilderness, but a well populated settlement. Due to the increasing amount of people moving into Shelby County by 1821, it became apparent that a form of local government was needed. The State Legislature was petitioned in order to request the organization of the new county. An act granting the request was passed in December of 1821. The act was set up in seven sections. The first designated the boundaries for this county. The second provided for the rights, privileges and jurisdiction of the county, as well as the name of Shelby County. The third section listed the names of the men that had been selected to choose where the County Seat would be and when the first meeting on the first Monday of July, 1822 would be held. Section four provided for a temporary meeting place to be used until permanent quarters were available. That meeting place was to be the cabin of David Fisher. The fifth section stated that 10% of the proceeds from the sale of county property would be set aside for a local library. Section six dictated that the county had 1 year to build the necessary public buildings from the time the site was chosen. The final section designated that the trustees for the library would be elected by qualified voters. Governor Jennings signed the act on December 31, 1821 setting the effective date for April 1, 1822. It is unclear as to how the Legislature came to name the county 'Shelby County', but based on the fact that most of the early settlers came from Kentucky area, it is appropriate that it was named in honor of a governor from that state. Shelby County was named after Isaac Shelby who had been an officer in the army during the Revolution and who had also warred with Indians. He was the first governor of Kentucky and served two terms. He led a group of Kentuckians to the Battle of Thames to join Governor Harrison in 1813, thereby becoming a part of Indiana history. A few of the early settlers to Shelby County had fought some of the same battles as Isaac Shelby and, more than likely, served under his command. David Fisher, owner of the cabin where local proceedings were to be held, was one of the early settlers that had settled in the area around Wilson's cabin. On October 9, 1820, he and Wilson entered their land at the Land Office. This area of land where the two men had settled was known as 'Marion' , which had been named in honor of General Francis Marion, also known as the 'swamp fox' during the Revolution. Richard Tyner, Joseph Davidson and David Fisher were the first men to be sworn in as members of the Commissioners Court. It was their job to set up the local government and see to the needs of the settlers. The court organized itself at a special meeting which was held on Tuesday, April 9, 1822. From that day to the present, the minutes of the meetings were recorded and preserved by the County Auditor. William Davis was appointed to act as the first County Treasurer. He only held this office for a short time before moving to Connersville. The first County Clerk was Hiram Alldredge . The governor appointed him on April 25, 1822 and then again in 1828. He remained in that office until he died. There are no written records of Hiram Alldredge prior to settlement in Shelby County. He lived in what was known as the 'Haw Patch' area of the county. This area is approximately three miles north of Edinburgh . In January of 1823, he purchased land from James Davison, just west of the land donated by Davison for the county seat. Hiram Alldredge is buried in the City Cemetery and his marker reads: "Erected in memory of Hiram Aldredge. November 7, 1830" and according to his tombstone, he was only 35 years old at the time of his death. It is believed that an error was made when the date was placed on his stone. The minutes for the Commissioners Court meeting on November 8, 1831 states that the reason that the meeting failed to be held on the previous day was due to the unexpected death of Hiram Alldredge. Ovid Butler was appointed on November 14, 1831 as pro tem clerk. After the Treasurer and the Clerk had been appointed, the Commissioner proceeded to divide the county into townships. Until 1823, there were only four townships, Hendricks, Marion, Union and Noble. Addison township was added in 1823. The instructions given by the Enabling Act to choose a seat of justice for the new county was carried out on July 1, 1822. From this point on, the county continued to organize and grow.

Helpful Hints

1. This Map's INDEX can be found on the preceding pages.
2. Refer to Map "C" to see where this Township lies within Ripley County, Indiana.
3. Numbers within square brackets [ ] denote a multi-patentee land parcel (multi-owner). Refer to Appendix "C" for a full list of members in this group.
4. Areas that look to be crowded with Patentees usually indicate multiple sales of the same parcel (Re-issues) or Overlapping parcels. See this Township's Index for an explanation of these and other circumstances that might explain "odd" groupings of Patentees on this map.

About FamilySearch Pedigree Resource File:
The Pedigree Resource File is a new lineage linked database of records available on compact disc containing family history records submitted by individuals through FamilySearch Internet Genealogy Service. Family information is organized in family groups and pedigrees and includes submitted notes and sources. Many charts and reports can be printed from this data. Each disc contains about 1.1 million names. With the publication of every five discs, a master index for those discs will be published and packaged with that set of discs. With the publication of every 25 discs, a master index for those discs will also be published and packaged with that volume of discs. Discs may be purchased as sets or volumes.

DID YOU KNOW?

■ Experts say Lapel rests on a coral reef. E.R. Cunningham, professor of geology and Robert R. Shrock, both of Indiana University, who gathered data for a report on the geological formations of this section, conducted explorations along Stony Creek, between Lapel and Fishersburg, as well as on the old Milburn farm, east of Lapel, and at the Cascadden quarry.

Cunningham and Shrock named many fossils that Earle Cascadden had found in the operation of the limestone quarry and said that the ancient reef here may prove to be the largest of the 60 or 70 coral reefs that have been found in Indiana.

■ The Datus Studley frame house was built in 1856 to replace the original log house which stood just east of this one, and which was used as a barn or stable for years after this frame house was built. Records show that the entry was made June 25, 1835 by John Fisher and sold by John and Barbary Fisher to Datus Studley on Jan. 18, 1840.

The stable was still standing in 1872 when Fletcher Anderson cut a field of wheat, part of which was where Lapel streets now run. He cut the wheat for Wesley Studley, using a Dorsey self-rake machine, which was quite up to date then.

■ The first house in Lapel was first occupied by Mr. and Mrs. George W. Wright, then newly married. Their daughter Mabel was the first baby born in the town of Lapel, the town platted and named by her grandfather David Conrad.

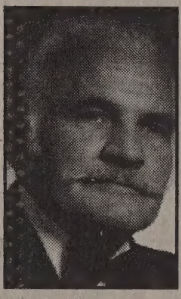
F. Eugene Castor

LAPEL — F. Eugene Castor, 63, died July 14, 1995, at his home after an extended illness.

He was born March 3, 1932, in Madison County, to Paul Castor and Bertha Wilson. He had worked in law enforcement in Madison and Hamilton Counties and retired in 1987 as Lapel town marshall. He was a member of Lapel Masonic Lodge 625, Lapel American Legion Post 212, Elwood VFW Post 5782, Lapel Eagles Airie 4323, and Madison County FOP. He was a U.S. Army veteran of the Korean Conflict.



Castor

He was an avid Bluegrass musician and played with Denham Brothers Bluegrass. He was a member of Central Indiana Bluegrass Association, White River Bluegrass Association and Indiana Friends of Bluegrass.

Survivors include his wife, Carolyn (Males) Castor; a daughter, Penny Denham of Strawtown; a son, Russell Dale Castor of Anderson; a stepson, Brian Maxwell of Noblesville; a stepdaughter, Kristi Owens of Pendleton; mother, Bertha Stum of Bullhead City, Ariz.; a sister, Colis DeVito of West Palm Beach, Calif.; three grandchildren; and a great-grandchild.

He was preceded in death by his father, Paul Castor; and an aunt and uncle who reared him, Forrest and Nadine Starr.

Services will be at 10:30 a.m. Monday at Scott E. Hersberger Funeral Home in Lapel with the Revs. John Wrightsman and Max Mills officiating. Burial will be at Brookside Cemetery in Lapel.

Friends may call from 1 to 3 and 5 to 8 p.m. Sunday at the funeral home. Masonic memorial services will be at 8 p.m. Sunday at the funeral home.

Memorial contributions may be made to St. John's Hospice.

• Agreed to return eight police radios not yet paid for, if not able to sell them to another town.

• Appointed Jason Maddox as park commissioner and created the Daleville Park Board.

The council will meet again Monday.

Enjoy Alex band under the stars

BY JAMES V. CARROLL
North Madison Bureau Chief

ALEXANDRIA — Looking for something to do to enjoy the warm summer evening? The Alexandria Community Band has an idea.

The band will fill the air with music in an open sky concert Thursday at 7 p.m. in Beulah Park near the Emory Lee building, according to David Steele, the band's publicity maven.

So prepare a picnic basket, grab your blankets or lawn chairs, pile into the family car and head for the park. Admission is free and the band will play until dark, Steele said. Refreshments [illegible] at the swimming a settlement in February; Aristide was to be recognized as president, and to accept Rene Theodore, a political opponent and head of Haiti's minuscule Communist Party, as prime minister. The Theodore government was to work out a timetable for Aristide's eventual return to Haiti.

The agreement was scuttled by the then-de facto government of interim President Joseph Nerette and Prime Minister Jean Jacques Honorat.

Nerette and Honorat were removed in June under military pressure and replaced by Marc Bazin as prime minister. The presidency was left vacant.

About FamilySearch Pedigree Resource File:
The Pedigree Resource File is a new lineage linked database of records available on compact disc containing family history records submitted by individuals through FamilySearch Internet Genealogy Service. Family information is organized in family groups and pedigrees and includes submitted notes and sources. Many charts and reports can be printed from this data. Each disc contains about 1.1 million names. With the publication of every five discs, a master index for those discs will be published and packaged with that set of discs. With the publication of every 25 discs, a master index for those discs will also be published and packaged with that volume of discs. Discs may be purchased as sets or volumes.

Please Note:
Submitter information is provided to help in the coordination of personal family history research. Use of this information for any other purpose, including marketing, advertising, or commercial solicitation, is strictly prohibited.

About FamilySearch Pedigree Resource File:
The Pedigree Resource File is a new lineage linked database of records available on compact disc containing family history records submitted by individuals through FamilySearch Internet Genealogy Service. Family information is organized in family groups and pedigrees and includes submitted notes and sources. Many charts and reports can be printed from this data. Each disc contains about 1.1 million names. With the publication of every five discs, a master index for those discs will be published and packaged with that set of discs. With the publication of every 25 discs, a master index for those discs will also be published and packaged with that volume of discs. Discs may be purchased as sets or volumes.

Rufus Poole, Homer Stephenson and young George Anderson led a cow to the church, opened the door and in stepped the cow, walking down the aisle and causing much commotion, while the boys cautiously listened outside.

Mr. Boone says, "I don't know how it was that I missed being in the bunch with that cow!"

Philip Boone married Clara Bright in 1887, 'Squire John Hilligoss performing the ceremony. They lived in Hamilton County some years, then bought Cassius Anderson's farm east of Lapel, but moved to Lapel in 1921. Their children: Glenn, Winnie Flo (died when young), Scott, Ward, Mildred (Mrs. Angus Layton), and Dallas Boone.

Philip owns five farms in Madison and Hamilton Counties.

William and Rebecca Bright

moved from the old home place south of Lapel to a house where the Geo. Sylvester house now is. They then bought property just north of the Shetterly mill where Mr. Bright died in 1897. They had three children: Frank (married Martha Fisher), who was active in the Lapel band; Benton (married Alwilda Boone) and Clara (Mrs. P. F. Boone.) Mrs. Bright was 89 when death occurred in May, 1923.

Wilma E. Bright

MUNCIE — Wilma E. (Bryan) Bright, 76, of Muncie, died April 30, 2007, at Ball Memorial Hospital in Muncie.

Survivors include a son, Charles Bright; two daughters, Karen (husband, Steve) Paul and Roberta (husband, Marvin) Kennedy; brother, Wayne (wife, Wilda) Bryan of Anderson; sister, Mary Jane Swift of Fairmount; eight grandchildren; and 13 great-grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Robert E. Bright.

Services will be held at 1 p.m. today at Garden View Funeral Home, 10501 N. Indiana 3, Muncie, with Pastor Howard Fights officiating. Burial will follow in Gardens of Memory Cemetery.

Visitation is one hour before service today at the funeral home.

Post online condolences at www.gardenviewandgardensofmemory.com or www.theheraldbulletin.com.

INDIANAPOLIS — The Indiana Supreme Court upheld the eight-year sentence of a man convicted of setting a fire in a moving paint truck, trapping himself and a dozen other workers, fatally burning two of the men.

The 5-0 Supreme Court decision on Wednesday overturned an Indiana Court of Appeals order that said a Marion Superior Court judge had relied on improper factors in determining a sentence for 30-year-old Tommy C. McElroy.

[illegible] pleaded guilty [illegible]

Pratt's ruling in December 2005, saying she had inappropriately boosted the sentence based on those factors.

But Supreme Court Justice Robert D. Rucker wrote in Wednesday's opinion that Pratt considered the effects as part of the "horrific" and "heinous" nature of the crime, not separately.

McElroy and 12 other men who worked as housepainters for RPT Painting Co. of Franklin were riding in the cargo area of a truck traveling on Interstate 465 in Indi-

About FamilySearch Pedigree Resource File:
The Pedigree Resource File is a new lineage linked database of records available on compact disc containing family history records submitted by individuals through FamilySearch Internet Genealogy Service. Family information is organized in family groups and pedigrees and includes submitted notes and sources. Many charts and reports can be printed from this data. Each disc contains about 1.1 million names. With the publication of every five discs, a master index for those discs will be published and packaged with that set of discs. With the publication of every 25 discs, a master index for those discs will also be published and packaged with that volume of discs. Discs may be purchased as sets or volumes.

Please Note:
Submitter information is provided to help in the coordination of personal family history research. Use of this information for any other purpose, including marketing, advertising, or commercial solicitation, is strictly prohibited.

Madison County Area Cemetery Database Help

There are over 70,000 people in the database from 98 cemeteries, however 74 people do not have legible last names, therefore you may want to search the unknown names just to be thorough. If you find a name you wish to pursue further, please e-mail the Indiana Room Staff for help.

To look up a cemetery or cemetery code use the Cemetery names database.

THE DARING "American Girl" Ruth Elder and her co-pilot were forced down 800 miles short of Paris and were saved from their blazing plane by a Dutch tanker.

A SECOND AVIATRIX, Mrs. Frances A. Grayson, planned to fly to Ireland where she hoped to re-fuel and go on to Copenhagen.

SCOTT C. BONE, a former governor of Alaska and once an Andersom resident, predicted here that Herbert Hoover would be the outstanding figure for the Republican Presidential nomination.

DR. A.M. AUSTIN, secretary of the Madison County Medical Society, announced one of the most important meetings of the year for the Grand Hotel. Doctors would have a chance to participate in a clinic and wives would go into a business session to form a medical auxiliary.

THE GRANDVIEW municipal golf course was one of the pluses that helped build Anderson, a committee told John J. Brown, chairman of the state tax board at Indianapolis. Figures were introduced to show the course was operated economically with only half the employees used at most 18-hole courses. The city also received $87,000 in lights and water free of charge. The tax board was studying an appeal filed by 10 local men who attacked the park levy and contested the 90 cent tax rate.

FIFTEEN PERSONS WERE known dead and 24 injured when an automobile trailer pulled in front of a Union Traction Company interurban outside Indianapolis. All of the dead were members of the Sahara Grotto drill team or their friends and family members.

SUPERIOR COURT JUDGE Lawrence V. Mays of Pendleton addressed a capacity crowd in the new Frankton High School gymnasium as the new building was dedicated.

A TRIPLE WEDDING was planned to wind up the Anderson Pure Food Show and Merchants Exposition at Athletic Park. But only two of the couples would reveal their identities— the third didn't want any publicity.

F.A. THURBER, Rt. 8, was the new "spud king" with the six potatoes he brought into The Herald's office. The spuds tipped the scale at 9 lb. 10 oz.

MISS MABEL MILLSPAUGH was besieged with congratulations after her $10,000 Coca-Cola award was announced. She made the street car to and from her office as usual. However, her day was interrupted by calls to the telephone.

TWO FRENCH PILOTS crossed the South Atlantic in 21 hours, 15 minutes, averaging slightly less than 100 miles per hour. They landed at Natel, Brazil.

Sunday, Oct. 16, 1927

THREE MORE PERSONS died as a result of the Oct. 14 wreck termed the worst automobile catastrophe in Indiana's history. The death toll was 18 and the victims were members of the Sahara Grotto drill team and their families who were riding in a trailer pulled by the car which was struck by an interurban. Five persons in the train escaped with a shaking up although the motorman suffered a broken leg and the conductor was burned.

ONE OF THE FUGITIVES who escaped from the Madison County jail earlier was found in Kentucky.

COUNTY CLERK BEN THOMAS issued marriage licenses on the exposition tent stage to Richard Brunswick, 23, and Norma Allen, 17; Kenneth Crane, 21, and Elsie Feist, 18. The third couple didn't show up, making it a double wedding. The public ceremonies brought the largest attendance of the week. The couples received diamond rings, wedding rings, bank accounts and groceries. The flowers for the happening and the ministzr's fee were also donated.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS let a $48,507.35 bid for paving of the James H. Morris Road in Elwood.

HERALD RADIO CONTEST winners were A.O. Hull, 1830 Jackson; Mrs. R.C. Hartman, 510 W. 12th St., and Charles Stuner, 1325 E. 10th St. Checks for $3, $1.50 and 50 cents were mailed to the winners.

Tuesday, Oct. 18, 1927

INSTALLATION OF MACHINERY at Maring Wire, 31st and Noble streets, was to begin, according to an announcement by W.G. Gaddis who arrived in Anderson to serve as the local manager. Three carloads of machinery had arrived by train from Muskegon, Mich.

WITH A POSSIBLE WORLD record under its wings, the Grayson amphibian plane was forced back after taking off with a 11,500 pound load. The ship was found to be nose-heavy ten minutes after takeoff, so 1,580 pounds of gasoline were dumped while airborne — making the landing load about 10,000 pounds. Experts believed the female daredevil pilot had set a new world record in the load weight even if she never made her flight across the Atlantic.

W.B. LUCAS, Frankton, was the newest member of The Herald's potato king family after he came forward with six spuds which weighed in at 10 lb. 13 oz.

FIRE CHIEF C.G. ALFORD told the board of works that larger water mains were needed at a number of downtown locations.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN W. FISHER, Lapel, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. Attending the festivities were Mr. and Mrs. R.K. Aldred, who were witnesses for the wedding.

About FamilySearch Pedigree Resource File:
The Pedigree Resource File is a new lineage linked database of records available on compact disc containing family history records submitted by individuals through FamilySearch Internet Genealogy Service. Family information is organized in family groups and pedigrees and includes submitted notes and sources. Many charts and reports can be printed from this data. Each disc contains about 1.1 million names. With the publication of every five discs, a master index for those discs will be published and packaged with that set of discs. With the publication of every 25 discs, a master index for those discs will also be published and packaged with that volume of discs. Discs may be purchased as sets or volumes.

Please Note:
Submitter information is provided to help in the coordination of personal family history research. Use of this information for any other purpose, including marketing, advertising, or commercial solicitation, is strictly prohibited.

About FamilySearch Pedigree Resource File:
The Pedigree Resource File is a new lineage linked database of records available on compact disc containing family history records submitted by individuals through FamilySearch Internet Genealogy Service. Family information is organized in family groups and pedigrees and includes submitted notes and sources. Many charts and reports can be printed from this data. Each disc contains about 1.1 million names. With the publication of every five discs, a master index for those discs will be published and packaged with that set of discs. With the publication of every 25 discs, a master index for those discs will also be published and packaged with that volume of discs. Discs may be purchased as sets or volumes.

HARDWARE STORES

Huffman & Bird

W. J. Huffman and George Bird were the pioneer hardware merchants of Lapel. In March, 1890, they opened their hardware store in the building now occupied by Chas. Whetsel's restaurant, on the south side of the railroad, west side of Main Street, buying out the stock of farming implements, stoves, etc. of Geo. W. Wright, who was there located.

In 1892 they moved to the new two-story brick building just completed by J. W. Sears, in conjunction with the Independent Order of Red Men, on the corner of Main and Maple Streets. The north room was occupied by Wade Busby's general store. Geo. Bird and David Conrad, in 1895, put up a two-story brick building farther north on Main Street and here Huffman & Bird moved their store. (A room in the southwest corner of the building, owned by David Conrad, who afterwards owned the entire building, was empty until 1898, when the Lapel Exchange Bank was started there by David Conrad and his son Elbert).

James W. Sears opened a second hardware store in the Sears block.

In 1897 Charles Waldo bought out Huffman & Bird, W. J. Huffman remaining as clerk. Shortly after this Mr. Waldo bought the J. W. Sears hardware store, this combining the two stocks, in the Sears building.

Then, for a time there was but one hardware store and E. L. Dickey had a drug store where Huffman & Bird had been located. George Bird had an implement store north of this building.

But, in 1899, George Bird and his son Charles built a one-story brick business room adjoining the Conrad building and put in a stock of hardware, which was bought in 1908 by Earl Woodward. This was burned in March, 1909, but the building was repaired and Wade Busby then bought the store. Charles and Loral Bird bought it back, but sold out to Kenneth Woodward in 1925 and it was then known as the Woodward Hardware Company until 1936, when Kenneth Woodward sold out and moved to a farm in Hamilton County.

Fisher Funeral Will Be Sunday

Lapel, Ind., June 11.—Funeral services for Hiram Fisher, age seventy, well known resident of this community who died yesterday afternoon of tuberculosis, will be conducted Sunday at 2 p. m. at the Lapel M. E. church. Rev. J. H. Palmer, of Knightstown, former local pastor, and Rev. E. J. Wickersham, present pastor of the M. E. church here, will be in charge. Mr. Fisher was twice married, his first wife, Mrs. Nancy Nickleson Fisher, expiring eleven years ago. He is survived by the widow, Mrs. Lilda Bird Fisher; one daughter, Mrs. Imbia Trueblood, of Fortville; two brothers, Grandville Fisher and John Fisher, both of here; a sister, Mrs. Frank Bright, of Anderson. Mr. Fisher was the son of warren and Mary Fisher and was born on a farm one mile south of here.

OBITUARY

Nancy Fisher was the daughter of Calvin and Liddia Nicholson, was born Oct. 6, 1864 and was translated on April 21, 1917. Age 52 years 6 months and 15 days. She was of a family of 10 7 sisters and 3 brothers. She was united in marriage to Hiram Fisher Dec. 24, 1884, and they have lived together at the present residence all these years where the joy of life far out weigh the sorrow until a few years ago when sister Fisher became afflicted, and yet she met it with sweetest patience. with a smile she never complained.

To them was born 7 children all of whom has preceded her except three daughters. It was here as mother and home maker that she was at her best. No one ever loved home more concerned for the welfare of the children than the Godly woman. She was converted and united with the Methodist Episcopal church under the ministery of Rev. Houson Smith, and she lived a consistence and beautiful christian life to the end – She was not afraid of death. Often she expressed herself as ready to answer the summons. She was a friend to all – a neighbor unexcelled a wife that was indeed a companion and help meet – a mother of supreme value and wholesome counsel. She is survived by her mother, Mrs Lydia Licholson and one brother, Oran Nicholson and five sisters, Mrs Olonzo Perkins, Mrs Geo Woods, Mrs Monroe Newton, Mrs Arthur Barnhizer, Mrs Paul Cloverdale and the husband Hiram Fisher and the daughters, Mrs. Cleve McKay, Mrs. Guy Whetsel and Miss Adda Fisher. There is also three grand children and a large circle of relatives and friends.

Farewell dear mother until we meet again on that beautifulshore.

The parting is hard for us to bear but let it be your gain of heaven and rest

And we will abide in faith with God.

God hath not promised
Skies always blue,
Flower-strewn pathways
All our lives through;
God hath not promised
Sun without rain,
Joy without sorrow,
Peace without pain.

But God hath promised
Strength for the day;
Rest for the labor,
Light for the way.
Grace for the trials,
Help from above,
Unfailing sympathy

and a public display and fire demonstration was given on Main Street, October 2, 1937.

Now the town and immediate vicinity are served by two fire trucks. The Fire Brigade are proud of their equipment, which is equal to any in the surrounding towns, and surpasses the majority. This equipment will be maintained by the town and township.

Members of the Volunteer Fire Department are now fifteen in number: Fire chief, Guy Whetsel; Chauncey Breece, Halton Woods, George Turner, William Turner, Edgar Turner, Cecil Lloyd, Parker Stottlemyer, Neil Dickerson, Arnold Moore, Clyde Castor, William Clifford, Chauncey Partain, James Woods and Clem Critser.

Fire Chief Whetsel is a member of the Legislative Committee of the Indiana Firemen's Association, and is Second Vice-President of that Association.

closing in September

YORKTOWN — The long-standing Marsh warehouse operations in Yorktown and Indianapolis are set to close by September, putting more than 180 people out of work.

The closure comes as the Marsh supermarket chain ends a supply and distribution agreement.

About 72 people at the company's longtime Yorktown warehouse operation will lose their jobs.

The announcement was posted this week on the Indiana Department of Workforce Development website.

Between the warehouses at 2801 S. Marsh Ave. in Yorktown and 333 S. Franklin Road in Indianapolis, the jobs of 186 workers will be affected, according to the Worker Adjustment and Retraining Notification filed with the state.

According to the filing, Marsh served notice July 5 that it would not renew its distribution and supply agreement with Indianapolis Logistics, whose parent company is C&S Wholesale Grocers. The contract between Marsh and C&S was set to expire Sept. 24.

The announcement is separate from the decision by Marsh to sell its 400,000-square-foot former warehouse space in York-the farm. The whole life of Mr. Beaver has been devoted to farming, with the exception of four years which he spent in the tan-yard. He started with only a very small share of his father's estate, but by assuming heavy indebtedness, bought out the other heirs and thus became the owner of the farm, which, as a lad, he had helped to clear. His first wife, though not strong physically, was a good manager, and willingly helped her husband in many ways, for which he gladly gives her credit. His second wife, like her sister, was a true helpmate, and his efforts were ably seconded by her. As a result of his life-long endeavors he has accumulated a large amount of land, acquiring a competence, when others with better chances have but little to show for their efforts. He has seen young men who made three times the wages he did in his youth, squander their opportunities and so conduct their affairs as to be compelled to live from hand to mouth. The career of Mr. Beaver is interesting in showing what can be accomplished by a man who starts out with the intention of accumulating a good farm, and the life of the subject of this biography should be an inspiration to the young men of the coming generation.

LEANDER FRANKLIN WHETSEL.

The Whetsel family have been identified with the history of Hamilton county since 1850, when the first members of the family arrived in this county. Leander F. Whetsel has spent his entire life since his birth, in 1868, in Fall Creek township, in Hamilton county, Indiana, and has so conducted his affairs as to win the esteem of his fellow citizens. He has been a life-long farmer, and if to one class of people more than another the United States owes a debt of gratitude, it is to the diligent, perserving farmers, on whom our prosperity as a nation so largely depends.

Leander Franklin Whetsel, the son of Theodore and Elzina (Birch) Whetsel, was born February 14, 1867, in Fall Creek twonship, Hamilton county, Indiana. His father was a native of Pennsylvania, born December 2, 1822, and grew to manhood in his native state. He was married February 5, 1850, after coming to Hamilton county, Indiana, to Elzina Birch, who was born in New York state May 4, 1832. Soon after his marriage he and his wife located in Fall Creek township, on a farm adjoining the one where L. F. Whetsel is now living. His eighty-acre farm was well improved and when he made the exchange in 1881 he secured one hundred and sixty acres, which was only partly improved. It had some buildings on it, but nearly all of it was in timber. Theodore Whetsel eventually became the owner of two hundred and forty acres of land in Fall Creek township and one hundred acres near Pendleton, Madison county. He was an extensive breeder of Poland China hogs, being recognized as one of the most successful hog raisers in the county. He was a home-loving man and looked after his farming interests diligently. He and his wife started in a primitive log cabin with puncheon floors, stick and mud chimneys, greased-paper windows and home-made furniture. When they first settled in it the township was largely swamps, with no roads and very few cabins scattered over it. Theodore Whetsel died December 2, 1901, his wife having died January 27, 1901 of the same year, after having lived nearly fifty years together. Theodore Whetsel and wife were the parents of ten children: Wilbur, who died at the age of forty, leaving a wife and two children; Daniel A., who lives in Fall Creek township; Cynthia E., the deceased wife of Branson Smith; Cornelia, the wife of John H. Sylvester, of Wayne township; Mattie M., the wife of David Adams, of Madison county, Indiana; George M., of Indianapolis; Leander Franklin, with whom this narrative deals; Alfred O., who is now living on part of the old home farm; Pierson, who died in childhood, and one who died unnamed in infancy.

Leander F. Whetsel was thirteen years of age when his father moved on the one hundred and sixty-acre farm in 1881, and did his full share toward helping to clear the land. He remained at home until his marriage, in 1889, and since his marriage has continued to reside on the old Whetsel homestead. He owns one hundred and twenty acres of the old home farm and has bought forty acres across the road, so that he is now the owner of one hundred and sixty acres of fine farming land in the township.

Mr. Whetsel was married November 10, 1889, to Edna Keeling, who was born in Fall Creek township, this county, the daughter of Richard and Mary (Nicholson) Keeling. Richard Keeling was a native of Shelby county, Indiana, born in August, 1839, and was the son of Richard F. and Mary Keeling. Richard Keeling Sr., died in Shelby county, and his son, Richard, Jr., grew to manhood there and came to this county with his mother, where they located near the center of Fall Creek township. Richard, Jr., married Mary Nicholson in this county, his wife being a native of North Carolina, and coming to this county with her parents when she was about twenty years

The Whetsel family have been identified with the history of Hamilton County since 1850, when the first members of the family arrived in this county.

Leander F. Whetsel has spent his entire life since his birth in 1868, in Fall Creek Township, and has so conducted his affairs as to win the esteem of his fellow citizens. He has been a life long farmer, and if to one class of people more than another the United States owes a debt of gratitude, it is to the diligent, perservering farmers, on whom our prosperity as a nation so largely depends.

Leander Franklin Whetsel, the son of Theodore and Elzina (Birch) Whetsel, was born February 14, 1867, in Fall Creek Twp., Hamilton County, Indiana. His father was a native of Pennsylvania, born December 2, 1822, and grew to manhood in his native state. He was married February 5, 1850, after coming to Hamilton County, to Elzina Birch, who was born in New York state, May 4, 1832.

Soon after his marriage, he and his wife located in Fall Creek Twp. on a farm adjoining the one where L. F. Whetsel is now living. Theodore Whetsel first entered eighty acres of government land at one dollar and a quarter an acre, and after clearing part of the land and improving it he traded it for the farm on which his son, Leander, is now living. His eighty acre farm was well improved and when he made the exchange in 1881 he secured one hundred and sixty acres, which was only partly improved. It had some buildings on it, but nearly all of it was timber.

Theodore Whetsel eventually became the owner of two hundred and forty acres of land in Fall Creek township and one hundred acres near Pendleton in Madison county. He was an extensive breeder of Poland China hogs, being recognized as one of the most successful hog raisers in the county.

He was a home loving man and looked after his farming interests, diligently. He and his wife started in a primitive log cabin with puncheon floors, stick and mud chimneys, greased-paper windows and home made furniture. When they first settled in it, the township was largely swamps, with no roads and very few cabins scattered over it.

Theodore Whetsel died December 2, 1901, his wife having died January 27, of the same year, after having lived nearly fifty years together. Theodore Whetsel and wife were the parents of ten children :

Daniel A., who lives in Fall Creek Twp.,
Cynthia E. the deceased wife of Branson Smith,
Cornelia, the wife of John Sylvester of Wayne Twp.,
Mattie M. the wife of David Adams of Madison Co.,
George M. of Indianapolis,
One who died unnamed in infancy,
Leander Franklin, with whom this narrative deals,
Alfred O. who is now living on part of the old home farm,
Pierson, who died in childhood.
Wilbur, who died at age of forty, leaving a wife and two children.

Mr. Whetsel was married November 10, 1889 to Edna Keeling, who was born in Fall Creek Twp., the daughter of Richard and Mary (Nicholson) Keeling. Richard Keeling was a native of Shelby county, Indiana, born in August 1839, and the son of Richard F. and Mary Keeling. Richard Keeling, Sr. died in Shelby county, and his son Richard, Jr. grew to manhood there and came to this county with his mother, where they located near the center of Fall Creek township. Richard Jr. married Mary Nicholson in this county, his wife being a native of North Carolina, and coming to this county with her parents when she was about twenty years of age. Her parents, Abel and Prudence Nicholson, settled in Wayne township, this county and lived to advanced ages. She lived to be ninety years of age, and Abel Nicholson, who was a soldier in the Civil War, died at the age of seventy.

Mr. Whetsel and his wife have one son, Guy Loren, who was born January 1, 1894. He was graduated from the high school at Fortville, Indiana, and married India Fisher, the daughter of Hiram Fisher, and lives on his father's farm.

Mrs. Whetsel's grandmother, Mrs. Nicholson, whose maiden name was Prudence Sayles, was born in North Carolina, and she was a child of slave-holding Southerners, Her father gave each of his children a slave at their marriage, giving her a Negro girl who had cared for her in baby-hood. When Prudence Sayles came to Indiana she sold the slave her father had given her for five hundred dollars.

Politically, Mr. Whetsel is a Democrat, but has never cared to take an active part in the councils of his party. However, he lends his hearty support to all public spirited measures, and never fails to register his honest convictions on any subject of importance to his community. He is a member of the Improved Order of Red Men and Mrs. Whetsel is a devoted member of the Christian Church.

About FamilySearch Pedigree Resource File:
The Pedigree Resource File is a new lineage linked database of records available on compact disc containing family history records submitted by individuals through FamilySearch Internet Genealogy Service. Family information is organized in family groups and pedigrees and includes submitted notes and sources. Many charts and reports can be printed from this data. Each disc contains about 1.1 million names. With the publication of every five discs, a master index for those discs will be published and packaged with that set of discs. With the publication of every 25 discs, a master index for those discs will also be published and packaged with that volume of discs. Discs may be purchased as sets or volumes.

FROM THE 1800s

Sept. 5, 1896 — James Fisher is imprisoned in the county jail, having been brought here by Sheriff Bingham, of Hancock, under a warrant from this county. The prisoner is a victim of his own foolhardiness, having eluded arrest for nearly two years. Fisher stole two fat hogs from the farm of Bert McCallister about two years ago.

Sears

Herb Sears will celebrate his 90th birthday with an open house given by his family from 1 to 3 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 3 at the Lapel Masonic Lodge. Please omit gifts.

He was born Aug. 11, 1918, at the Round Barn Farm on old Ind. 132 in Pendleton. His family moved to a 23-acre farm in 1924, where he raised chickens, guineas, ducks, hogs, cows and horses. They were able to live through the Depression and paid the property taxes by loading a gravel wagon along White River and spreading gravel on country roads.

He graduated from Lapel High School. He attended Purdue for two years and met his future wife, Dottie. He then started working for the War Department, testing and proofing equipment at the Erie Proving Ground in Northern Ohio.

In 1942, Dottie graduated from Purdue and signed a teaching contract. They were married, and Herb received his Masonic Third Degree and was drafted into the Army. He was discharged from Wakeman General Hospital as First Sergeant Sergeant Major in March 1946. He returned to Purdue and received his engineering degree in 1949. He worked for General Motors until 1957, and then he went to work for Western Electric until he retired in March 1981.

Herb and Dottie were blessed with a son, Bill; a daughter, Becky; two grandsons, Todd and Chris and granddaughter, Laurel.

Herb marrie Rosemary Smith of Lapel in 1999. They enjoy all their grandchildren, great-grandchildren and wintering in Florida.

Robert E. Ford

May 17, 1929 - April 8, 2014

DANVILLE — Robert E. Ford, 84, of Danville, passed away on April 8, 2014, at his home.

He was born on May 17, 1929, in Anderson, and resided most of his life in Pendleton.

Robert graduated from Lapel High School.

He was a retired excavator for Ford Excavation, which he owned and operated.

He enjoyed fishing, hunting and baseball.

Robert is survived by his loving wife of 66 years, Dorothy (Fulk) Ford; children, Diana (Greg) Jones, Michael F. (Sharon) Ford and Gary L. (Kathi) Ford; daughter-in-law, Karen Ford; 15 grandchildren; 30 great-grandchildren; and two great-great-grandchildren.

He was preceded in death by mother, Geraldine (Rich) Ford; father, Richard Ford; son, Brett Ford; and a great-great-grandson.

Graveside services will be at 1:15 p.m. Saturday at Grovelawn Cemetery, Pendleton.

Memorial contributions may be made to Horizon Hospice Care, 252 Meadow Drive, Danville, IN 46122.

away, police said.

An argument began between the two groups around 6 p.m. Wednesday about a block from where the 2-year-old was playing, and escalated into shots being fire, police said. One group began running west toward the boy and the other group continued shooting.

Police say no one has been arrested and no suspects were in custody Thursday in the shooting of John Swoeveland Jr. Autopsy results released Thursday showed the boy died of a gunshot wound to the chest and ruled the death a homicide.

Donnie Price said his 26-year-old daughter, Lola, who has a history of seizures, was outside playing with the two children when from a passing car.

"It was just a flash. It happened real quickly," she said. "It scared me."

Donnie Price said the boy's parents at first thought he had been hit by a car. The front yard is small and a sidewalk separates it from the street.

"The mom, when she saw the blood along the edge of the Pampers when she pulled his shirt up, that's when she saw the gunshot wound," Price said.

Price used his cellphone to record the scene moments later. The video shows the boy's mother shouting as she kneels over her child. It also shows other people yelling. An emergency worker lifts the boy's lifeless body and carries it to an ambulance.

Bone of One Bone.

The fondest hopes of the following are in process of realization: Levi L. Welchel to Emma Allison, Moses Etchison to Sarah T. Silvey, Robert Little to Sarah A. Harris, John Luther Hancock to Mary E. Lawler, and Odus M. Ide to Jane Brown.

Hymeneal.

A small package of very delicious cake, all the way from Sterling, Kansas, was received at this office on yesterday morning, with the "Compliments of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. M. Page." Mrs. Page was once Miss Ella Brown. The DEMOCRAT joins with her many friends here in wishing both Mr. and Mrs. P. a long life full of joy and prosperity.

Mated.

The following have passed the most eventful period of their lives: Andrew J. Samuels to Mary E. Owens; Moses A. Moore to Sarah E. Bare; Geo. W. Dwiggins to Martha A. Ellis; John L. Hancock to Mary E. Lawler; J. C. Heller to Margaret E. Kidwell; J. C. McCarty to Martha L. Conkling; Martin A. Bird to Tee S. Pugh.

A Scoundrel.

Three weeks ago we published the marriage of Mrs. Sophia Summers, of Middletown, to Mr. Charles W. Wardell, of California, which took place on the Thursday preceding our day of publication. The match was fixed up on short acquaintance and hastily consummated. Wardell was a stranger in that part of the country, but was the possessor of an oily tongue and winning ways, and after a short seige captured the widow. He represented himself as being owner of large mining interests in Colorado and California.

It now appears that Wardell is a scoundrel of the first water and an imposter; that he has no mining stock; that he has two and perhaps more divorced wives living, and that his sole object in marrying Mrs. Summers was to get possession of property, convert it into money and then decamp. Recent developments caused her friends to take steps to bring the wretch to answer for his conduct, to avoid which he left a few nights since.

MARRIED.

HESTER—DICKSON.—On Wednesday evening Mr. A. W. Hester of this city, was married to Miss Alice Dickson of Indianapolis, at the residence of the bride, by Dr. De La Martyr. The happy couple will make Anderson their future home.

BIRD—PUGH.—On Wednesday evening, the marriage of Dr. Martin A. Bird and Miss Tee S. Pugh, second daughter of Dr. Joseph Pugh, was solemnized at the family residence on West Anderson street. The ceremony was performed at 7 o'clock by Rev. Joseph Franklin, pastor of the Christian Church of this city, in the presence of a number of the intimate friends and relatives of the family. The bride was attended by Miss Libbie Howland of Indianapolis, and the groomsman was a fellow student of the groom, Dr. James Beck of Sturgis, Michigan. The occasion was surrounded with every fortuitous circumstance that the parties most concerned could desire. Both the bride and the groom are very highly esteemed by all who have the pleasure of their acquaintance; and as for the writer, he does not know of a marriage that more fully meets his approbation; and he unites with the hosts of friends of the young couple in bespeaking for them a long, prosperous and honored life.

After receiving the congratulations of those present, and joining with them in partaking of a splendid repast prepared for the occasion, the happy couple took the 10 o'clock train for Hudson, Michigan, the home of the groom's father.

PAGE—BROWN.—On Thursday, November 30th, 1876, at the residence of the bride's father, by Rev. C. W. Honey, Mr. William H. Page to Miss Ella Brown, all of Sterling, Rice Co., Kansas.

We, in common with the other citizens of this peaceful community, have known Page for lo! these many days as an upright, honorable and a strictly business man. Never has he been suspected of any criminal intent. But now in these last days he is guilty of—matrimony. This we know for we saw the act, and have certified to that effect. Yes, Page has gone into the family of our worthy townsman, and taken the only daughter. Well these land agents have always had the reputation of getting the best of everything.

The wedding was a pleasant affair. The friends had been invited to a Thanksgiving dinner at one o'clock. On the day before, ye editor was notified to come in promptly at ten. At ten we went, and together with the bride's family witnessed the ceremony. At one all the guests had arrived, and Mr. and Mrs. Page were introduced by Mrs Honey. Some of the guests, who it is believed are contemplating matrimony, claimed that it was unfair, that they came to learn how, and that the "knot ought to be tied again" for their benefit.

Mr. and Mrs. Page went to the I. O. O. F. festival in the evening, and received the congratulations of their many friends. On Friday evening the three bands, viz., the brass band, the string band and the tin-pan band, paid their respects in succession, and were successively invited to oysters, etc. The "devil" and other dignitaries of the printing office were duly remembered.

And now Mr. and Mrs. Page, friends of ours, the Gazette congratulates you both on your good fortune and wise choice, and wishes and foresees for you a life of happiness and prosperity. May the storms of life beat lightly upon your bark, and may its pleasures and blessings be showered upon you in rich profusion.—Rice County Gazette.

The folks at the Stillwell House had the pleasure of witnessing a wedding on Saturday evening last, in the parlor of the hotel. The contracting parties were Mr. John Huntley and Miss Mary McQuay, both of New Castle. Esquire Roach performed the ceremony. Why the wedded pair sought the genial surroundings of the Stilwell to consummate their plans did not appear.

ECKHOUSE—HAYES.

Marriage Festivities in Hebrew Society Last Night.

[Indianapolis Sentinel, Thursday.]

One of the most charming and enjoyable wedding feasts of the season was held last evening on East New York street, at the residence of Abram Hayes, Esq. His eldest daughter, Miss Emma, a very beautiful and popular young lady, much admired by her hosts of friends in this city, gave her heart and hand to Mr. Moses Eckhouse, of Anderson, Ind., a gentleman every way worthy of the prize he has drawn. The ceremony, which was held at the residence of the bride's parents, was impressibly performed, according to the Hebrew ritual, by Rabbi Messing, and at its conclusion he bestowed his blessing on the happy couple, together with much valuable and wholesome advice to guide them in their married life. After the ceremony was concluded and the bride and groom had been overwhelmed with good wishes, many congratulatory telegrams were read from absent friends in many parts of the country. Some of them were unique. Here is one: Hayes will rule the Eckhouse if not the White House. Another: May Hayes prove as successful in managing the Eckhouse as Tilden will prove in managing the White House, and last, but best: 'May Tilden be as successful in conquering Hayes as Eckhouse has been.' It will be observed, though politics are not exactly a part of the marriage programme, that our brethren rather lean toward reform, and no objection will be made to considering these telegrams a straw. The balance of the evening was devoted to general merry-making over the elegant marriage feast and the pleasures of the dance. The happy couple will take a trip through the South for several weeks, and then return to Anderson, where a hearty welcome is awaiting both bride and groom. Among the many presents were the following:

Silver flower stand, A. Kahn and wife, Chicago.

Solid silver spoons and butter knife, Mrs. J. Schwabacher.

Butter dish, Charles Bakrow.

Toilet service, J. M. Kaerbrowitz.

Silver castor and knives, Mr. and Mrs. Eckhouse.

Rich marble table, E. M. Hayes.

Bronze clock and side pieces, Mr. and Mrs. Nassauer, New York.

Oil paintings, Mr. Morris, Miss Hyams, L. Strauss, Mr. and Mrs Rosenthal.

Solid nickle castor, Mr. Louis Dessar.

Italian vases, M. Mossler.

Toilet set, Miss Julia Rosenthal.

Parlor set, Miss Julia Rosenthal.

Parlor set, J. & E. Freiberg.

Rich cameo necklace and ring of diamonds and pearls, the groom.

The very interesting process of transmogrifying two souls into one still continues. This week the following subjects may be mentioned as having submitted to that process: Daniel M. Zedaker to Nancy A. Morris; Charles H. Jones to Margaret May Fitts; Wm. Sears to Amitee Pavy; and John Mead to Elizsbeth W. Harris.

Miss Ella Brown, who recently accompanied her parents to Sterling, Kansas, writes to several of her friends here that she was to be married on Thursday Nov. 30th (yesterday). The lucky fellow's name is Page.

In Memoriam

Harold Lee Fisher
November 2, 1957 – February 27, 2007

Lee Fisher passed away February 27. He was a lifelong supporter of the shooting sports.

As a shooter, he had a long list of accomplishments. Some of these include being an all American in college while shooting at Purdue University. After college, he was state champion numerous times in various international disciplines. He tried out for the U.S. international pistol team in 1984. He also has won numerous local matches throughout the years and enjoyed shooting a variety of pistol disciplines including bullseye, silhouettes, action pistol, revolver, and most recently developed a love for cowboy action shooting. Free pistol was one of his favorite international events. I looked up his ranking in free pistol from USA Shooting and Lee was ranked 33rd in the nation

As a supporter, he ran local matches for the Hoosier Hills Rifle & Pistol Club, which he belonged to for many years. His matches became a drawing card for people as far away as Ohio, Kentucky, Illinois, and occasionally people from even farther away traveled to shoot there. What made Lee so popular was his enthusiasm for the sport. He had a friendly manner and was willing to lend advice, even a gun to those interested in wanting to shoot. He was also international pistol director for the Indiana State Rifle & Pistol Association and in this capacity, furthered the sport on international pistol throughout the state.

As a coach, he instilled his love of shooting by coaching countless number of juniors at his local gun club. Some of these qualified for the Junior Olympics and his club junior team belonged to the Jefferson County, KY Air pistol league where they won two league championships.

Lee will be missed by those who just met him or who knew him for many years. Whether you just met or have known Lee for many years, you met a man who carried himself in such a way that his presence will be felt for many years to come in the sport of shooting.

Prison inmate sentenced to 35 years for attempted rape

Thompson sentenced for attacking DOC employee

KEN DE LA BASTIDE
THE HERALD BULLETIN

ANDERSON — A former inmate at the Pendleton Correctional Facility has been sentenced to 35 years on a charge of attempted rape of a female employee.

John Thompson, 23, was incarcerated at the time of the offense on a 2016 conviction in Marion County on a charge of rape and confinement.

He was sentenced on that crime to 35 years and is scheduled for release in 2040.

Thompson entered guilty pleas in Madison Circuit Court Division 6 last month to charges of attempted rape and criminal confinement.

Judge Mark Dudley sentenced Thompson Friday to 35 years on the attempted rape charge and 14 years on the criminal confinement charge to be served concurrently.

Dudley denied a request from Thompson to withdraw his guilty pleas.

In dismissing the request to withdrawn the guilty pleas, Dudley said Thompson admitted to the allegations of the crime and didn't raise an insanity defense at the time.

Deputy Prosecutor Matt Savage objected to the withdrawal of the guilty pleas by Thompson.

Savage said in requesting a 38 year sentence that Thompson has a long criminal history.

"He's already serving a long sentence which didn't stop his behavior," he said. "He tried to commit the same crime that he was convicted of in the past."

Savage said Thompson is preying on Department of Correction employees.

"Society took measures to protect the public," he said. "DOC employees continue to be at risk."

Phipps reported starting the period with a balance of $172 and took in an additional $1,770.

His campaign has spent a total of $1,745 to leave a balance of $197. Phipps' campaign is carrying a debt of $1,770 for 2016 and a debt of $8,087 from previous election campaigns.

In the North District race, incumbent Republican John Richwine and Democrat Kevin Sipe have spent $7,240. Libertarian Daniel Ferris reported no contributions or expenditures.

Richwine started the reporting period with $201 on hand and raised $10,300.

Pioneer Family exhibit in July
By Lu Lawler

The Genealogy Department is having the annual Madison County pioneer family exhibit in July. Members of the Madison County History Alliance are participating in the exhibit.

The first settlement was in the Pendleton area at the falls. In 1818 John Rogers settled 1/2 mile east of Pendleton. Then, in 1820 a large group of family men from Clarke Co., Ohio made land claims.

Dr. Jacob Hiday arrived from Ohio in 1820 into Green Township. He brought his wife, Sarah, 4 children, and a grandson Thomas. He entered land along Lick Creek.

In March, 1821 William Dilts settled along the east bank of Mill Creek in the Chesterfield area of Union Township. Three months later Frederick Bronnenberg arrived in the Mounds State Park area. In 1822 Daniel and Mary Noland built a 2-story log house approximately where the Anderson Airport is today. It was later moved to Mounds Park. William Dilts built the first brick inn or hotel in Madison County in 1833. It's on the east edge of Chesterfield and is a private home today. In 1850 the Makepeace family built the first pharmacy or apothecary at the corner of Water Street and St. Rd. 32. It is a private residence today.

John Berry purchased land from Chief Anderson's son-in-law, William Conner in 1821. Later, Berry laid out a plat for Andersontown. Finally, in 1827 he donated the land for public buildings and the city of Anderson began to grow.

Stony Creek Township was named for the creek where the early settlers began building. In 1821 a group of families headed by Benjamin and John Fisher arrived in the area of Fishersburg. Others arrived in 1823, namely, Thomas Busby, George Reddick, John Anderson, and the Studleys.

Jackson Township is named for President Andrew Jackson. The first homesteader was Benoni Freel who built a log cabin across from Perkinsville. About 1823 the Alexander McClintock family along with many others came to the area.

Adams Township was named for Abraham Adams, the first white man to arrive in the area. He and his family settled near the present day town of Ovid. He subdivided the area and called it New Columbus. He built the first log cabin.

Van Buren Township was organized two days after the inauguration of President Martin Van Buren, thus the name. In 1830 Jacob Davis, John and Hiram Palmer, and Thomas Gordon arrived from Virginia. Many other families came from North Carolina.

Monroe Township was named for President James Monroe. In 1831 Micajah Chamness and family came from North Carolina. He built the first cabin and was the first to enter land.

John Shell and family arrived in Pipe Creek Township in 1830. Then in 1832 Jacob Sigler settled on land that is now Frankton. Dr. James Madison DeHority arrived near Perkinsville in 1839. He helped to organize a Methodist Church in Frankton, Perkinsville, and Quincy (now Elwood).

William Curtis built the first cabin in Richland Township in 1830. Along with being the first pioneer, he was also the first physician. David Peniston arrived in the fall and located north of Mr. Curtis. The township was named as such for the good soil, fine timber, stock water and the nearness to the county seat.

Lafayette Township was named for the Marquis de Lafayette who helped Washington in the Revolutionary War. In 1831 Henry Ry and family came from North Carolina and settled in part of North Anderson. In 1832 John Croan moved from Anderson Township to locate north of the Ry family home.

Boone Township was settled "later" than the others because part of it lay in the Miami Reserve and the Indians had not left the area. Wright Smith, his wife Lydia, and their six children came to the area in 1835. In the late 1840s Rev. John Forrest established the hamlet of Forrestville. He donated land to start the Forrestville Cemetery. He was also the Swamp Land Commissioner.

The exhibit will be open at 9 A.M. to 4 P.M. each Monday and Friday and 1 P.M. to 8 P.M. on each Wednesday.

Miscellaneous Items

Illnesses: Phyllis Leedom has her parked car out of mothballs for the summer but has further physical problems and is only here sporadically.

E-Mail Addresses: Give Nancy Lawler an e-mail address so that you may be added to her e-mail list. It is just another way to keep contact with the Historical Society. This way new items and updates may be sent to you between Gazettes. Call the Society at 765-683-0052 and add your e-mail to the list.

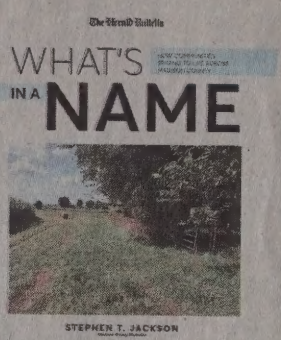
Exhibits: The Racing exhibition was another very good exhibit. It has been said that it was one of the best exhibits that we have had here at the center. It looks as if we will have it again next year. Thanks to Susie for heading up the crew that put it together.

Bowman to be Honored

On Sunday, July 10, 2011 from 1:30PM to 3:30PM as a show of our appreciation, the Madison County Historical Society, here at the History Center will once again honor Dick with a party. All of his friends and members of the Society are invited.

Stony Creek was last of county's 14 townships to organize

Stephen T. Jackson
HISTORY COLUMNIST



Stony Creek Township was the last of the county's 14 townships to be organized on or about March 18, 1851. Its name is taken from the creek by the same name that flows in a southwesterly direction across the township's northwest corner.

Acknowledged as the first to settle in the future township were the Fisher brothers, John and wife Barbara and Benjamin and wife Hannah. Traveling by ox-drawn wagon from Ohio, they arrived in the wilderness area in June 1820.

After selecting a suitable site, they cleared the land and erected log cabins near Stony Creek. About three years later they were joined by D.E. Studley, Thomas Busby, John Anderson and George Reddick, plus several others who all settled along the same creek near the present site of Fishersburg.

The first frame house in the area was built by a man named Rogers, who started the first blacksmith shop in that part of the county. William and Benjamin Sylvester were the first merchants, opening their store in 1844.

Prior to the building of the railroad in 1876, the village of Fishersburg was the principal trading point for the western part of Stony Creek Township and a large section of Hamilton County. When the railroad was completed, the town of Lapel, three-fourths of a mile southeast, sprang up. Being on the railroad, Lapel drew a large part of the trade.

Records of land entries in the locality did not start until 1829. However, by 1827 Fishersburg had made sufficient progress as a community to have a combined church and school.

On May 10, 1837, the Rev. Fletcher Tivis surveyed the site for the first town in the Stony Creek area. The next month, and influenced by Benjamin Fisher's son Charles, the United States Post Office opened a branch called Fishersburg with Daniel Huntzinger being appointed postmaster June 19, 1837.

The post office remained in operation until July 30, 1904, when mail was instead sent to Durbin in Hamilton County.

Local histories assert that the Rev. Tivis named it Fishersburg in honor of Benjamin Fisher who was killed at Strawtown by Indians in March 1821. However, there are some members of the Fisher family who maintain that the town was named for Benjamin's brother, John Fisher, who helped develop the area.

Although Fishersburg and Lapel were the only towns of importance in the township, two smaller communities flourished around churches that made their mark in the township's history.

In 1839, Thomas Jefferson Davis purchased 320 acres in Madison County and moved his family from Fayette County, Indiana. He and his sons erected a log house on what is now known as Lone Oak Road (County Road 500 West) near the intersection with present-day County Road 100 South (25th Street).

Around this log house, his son, Doctor Ball Davis, built a frame house in 1877. At one time, Ball Davis owned and farmed large acreages on all four corners.

A schoolhouse was erected on the southeast corner, and just east of it Mr. Davis built and operated for many years a drain tile factory. Davis also constructed a church known as the Epworth Methodist Church. The corner with the church and school became known as Epworth Corner.

Clustered around the intersection of County Road 400 West (Layton Road) and County Road 200 South (38th Street) was the second church-related community. Bethel United Methodist Church, located on the southwest corner of that intersection, is the only reminder of Bethel, a rural farming community that existed in the first decades of the 20th century.

In the next installment of Stony Creek Township, the presence of a railroad and how it influenced development will be examined.

A BANK IS NOT A LUXURY

For the rich man; that idea is fast disappearing. People from all classes are beginning to recognize the importance of a bank connection.

Many persons are timid about opening a bank account because they think their knowledge of banking is limited, or perhaps they consider their amount of money too small. To any such persons, we wish to say that the opening of a bank account is easy; we explain all details and make it simple. Even though you are not ready to open an account, call at the bank and talk it over.

A BANK IS NOT A LUXURY

For the rich man; that idea is fast disappearing. People from all classes are beginning to recognize the importance of a bank connection.

Many persons are timid about opening a bank account because they think their knowledge of banking is limited, or perhaps they consider their amount of money too small. To any such persons, we wish to say that the opening of a bank account is easy; we explain all details and make it simple. Even though you are not ready to open an account, call at the bank and talk it over.

A BANK IS NOT A LUXURY

For the rich man; that idea is fast disappearing. People from all classes are beginning to recognize the importance of a bank connection.

Many persons are timid about opening a bank account because they think their knowledge of banking is limited, or perhaps they consider their amount of money too small. To any such persons, we wish to say that the opening of a bank account is easy; we explain all details and make it simple. Even though you are not ready to open an account, call at the bank and talk it over.

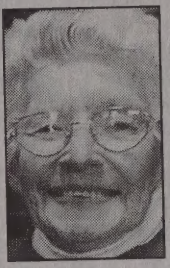
NOBLESVILLE — Annabelle Oleksy, 93, Noblesville, passed away Sunday, July 31, 2011, peacefully at her home.



She was born April 29, 1918, in Lapel, to Ward Sr. and Edith (Huffman) Shetterly, and graduated from Lapel High School in 1936.

Annabelle retired from the Lapel school cafeteria after 28 years of employment.

She was a member of Trinity United Methodist Church and the Nameless Bridge Club.

She is survived by two children, John Oleksy of Gainesville, Fla., and Julie (husband, Dave) Hight of Noblesville; nine grandchildren; 11 great-grandchildren; and one sister, Norma Forrer of Missouri.

She was preceded in death by her parents; her husband, William Joseph Oleksy; two sons, Joe Oleksy and Mike Oleksy; and one brother, Ward Shetterly Jr.

Services will be held at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday at Scott E. Hersberger Funeral Home, 1010 N. Main St., Lapel, with her son-in-law, Dave Hight officiating. Private burial will be in Brookside Cemetery, Lapel.

Visitation will be from 3 to 5 p.m. Wednesday at the funeral home.

Memorial contributions may be made to American Cancer Society, the American Heart Association, or Heritage Christian School The HOPE Scholarship Fund, 6401 E. 75th St., Indianapolis, IN 46250.

Nurse offers healthy choices for seniors

ANDERSON — The Anderson Parks Department will be winding down its free senior fitness walking program at 7:30 a.m. Thursday.

About 50 seniors have been using Jackson Park, 2200 Raible Ave., for exercise. Saint John's Health System will have a home-care nurse on hand Thursday to discuss healthy lifestyle choices for seniors. Jackson Park has become a social gathering point on Tuesday and Thursday morning as a result of the senior fitness program, organizers said in a press release.

INDIANAPOLIS — Police and prosecutors are trying to figure out how a recent Indiana Court of Appeals ruling involving a speedy moped may impact enforcement of the state's confusing law covering two-wheeled motorized vehicles.

The July ruling in Lock v. Indiana overturned the conviction of a Huntington man who admitted he was driving on a suspended license when a state trooper clocked him going 43 miles an hour, but argued his gas-powered Yamaha Zuma wasn't a "motor vehicle" under Indiana law.

The appeals court sided with the driver, appearing to reverse a 2009 appeals court ruling that said such fast-moving motorbikes were fair game for traffic police.

Wilma S. Brown

June 8, 1932 - March 15, 2012

ANDERSON — Wilma S. Brown, 79, passed away March 15, 2012.

She was born June 8, 1932, in Logansport.

Wilma was a 1950 graduate of St. Mary's High School in Anderson, and retired from the Delco Remy Division of General Motors.

Survivors include children, Danny Brown, Mark Daugherty and Teresa Wagers; siblings, Bill Sheridan, Naomi (Lloyd) McClintick and Annette (Joe) Hiatt; six grandchildren; and several great-grandchildren.

Wilma was preceded in death by her husband, Mural J. Brown; and parents, William T. and Flossie B. (Gallaway) Sheridan.

Cremation was selected. A graveside service will be held at 2 p.m. Friday at Anderson Memorial Park Cemetery.

Memorial contributions are suggested to: Susan G. Komen for the Cure.

Arrangements have been entrusted to Wilson St. Pierre Funeral Service and Crematory, Lahr Chapel, Pendleton.

Marlee described her dad's dancing as "fun," while Hobbs himself described it as being "80s" and "silly."

"It's a lot of fun," she said. "I really think it is to be with my dad. It brings us closer to each other."

Scott Riddle was one of the more reluctant dancers but said he was sure to dance at least one dance with twin daughters Morgan and Mack-board president Mike Wells says he is still getting up to speed on the finances but thinks that "maybe the travel is excessive just in terms of the gross dollar amount."

He also expressed concern about the amount of time executives were spending away from the airport.

Travel records show Clark was out of Indianapolis for most of the first quarter of 2011. In late January, he left for Zurich and was gone for most of February and the last half of March.

Clark, 51, said many of the trips were related to his role with the industry's key trade group, Airports Council International, where he is a former chairman.

He said he went to Zurich at the invitation of the president of Comlux "to promote the aircraft-finishing business" the company has in Indianapolis.

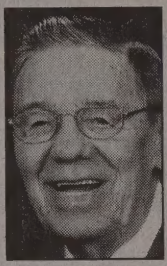
Robert J. Fisher

Aug. 30, 1925 - Dec. 18, 2010

ANDERSON — Robert J. Fisher, 85, died Dec. 18, 2010, following an extended illness.



He was born Aug. 30, 1925, in Indianapolis.

He was a veteran who served in the U.S. Army during World War II.

For 14 years, Robert was employed as service manager at Weidner Chevrolet, retiring in 1986.

He was a member of New Hope Christian Church, Mount Moriah Lodge 77 and Indianapolis Valley of the Scottish Rite.

Survivors include his son and daughter-in-law, Gary and Ginger Fisher of Anderson; two grandchildren, Greg (wife, Keri) Fisher of Anderson and Ginay (husband, Bradley) Bowman of Greenfield; five great-grandchildren, Jordan and Jacob Fisher of Anderson and Kaylee, Alli and Maddi Bowman, all of Greenfield.

Robert was preceded in death by his parents, Robert and Leona (Hughes) Fisher, and his wife, Etta (Sargent) Fisher, who died March 28, 2009.

Services will be held at 11 a.m. Wednesday at Rozelle-Johnson Funeral Service, 229 S. Rangeline Road, Anderson, officiated by John Hannum of New Hope Christian Church. Burial will take place at Anderson Memorial Park Cemetery.

June 29 — Every saloonkeeper in Anderson has been furnished by Chief of Police Prichard with a list of habitual drunkards and given instructions not to sell any of the named parties intoxicating liquors nor permit them to enter their saloons. There are 33 names on the list and it is understood that the list will be revised from time to time.

June 30 — At the receiver's sale yesterday, the real estate of Central Stove and Foundry Co. on Delaware Street, between First and Second streets, was bid in at $5,000 by Chauncey Fisher. He is one of the heirs of the late Thomas C. Fisher, the original owner of the real estate. Mr. Fisher did not state as to what he will do with the property but it is understood that a new company will soon reopen and operate the plant with similar products as previously put out.

Dr. Pablo Molina, Jane Morgan (therapist), Jeff Borrink (Hamilton Medical), and Sandy Clayton (therapist) inspect the new Hamilton Medical Vent, which was purchased with funds from the Saint John's Foundation. It is used for patients with severe asthma or COPD (chronic obstructive pulmonary disease). With a heliox option, this vent reduces the patient's work of breathing while treating the cause of the obstruction. The on-screen dynamics allows the respiratory team to know how changes are affecting the patient's work of breathing and lung compliance. It offers smart ventilation that works to decrease the length of time the patient spends on the ventilator and simplifies the weaning process. Saint John's is the first hospital in Indiana to offer the Hamilton Medical Vent.

Ball State students design fashions for disabled

By Thomas St. Myer
For The Associated Press

YORKTOWN — Two white sewing machines, garments, pictures of designer dresses tacked up on boards, a heating iron, tape measure, scissors and the sort clutter up a room in the back. Mood boards, garments, pictures and pins fill a narrower room down the hallway.

Ball State University seniors divide up between the two rooms Monday and busily cut, sew and iron fabrics for their designer accessible clothing line, "Sovereign Adaptive Clothing."

The clothing line is the brainchild of Valerie Birk, a professor in the Department of Family and Consumer Sciences. The wheelchair-using Birk suffers from multiple sclerosis, and she says the accessible clothes currently available are about as trendy as trash bags.

"You should see what they put people in," Birk tells The Star Press. "Seriously, who would want to wear a shirt taped around their neck?"

Birk is overseeing six ambitious and talented Ball State students in Jayden Hirst, Addie Muleya, Sheri Ehrlich, Brady Bader, Maddie Spitaels and Brynn Flaig who intend to upgrade the accessible clothing line. The students drive to her home each weekday for true hands-on training as part of their summer internship.

"I turned down another internship to do this one, because I thought it would look better on my portfolio to work on accessible clothing and design on a team as opposed to just running errands for someone," says Hirst, a 2011 Central High School graduate.

Birk supplies fabric and offers input when requested, but she grants students the freedom to conceptualize the designs, create the clothes and market the product.

"You've got to make your own mistakes," Birk says. "That's the only way they learn."

The group is three weeks into the internship. Each of the six students collaborated the first week before breaking off into pairs to design their visions.

One of the designs is a pleated oncology-friendly shirt with slits in the chest area for inserting medical ports. Another design is a wrap dress with a loop on the back neck. The loop is there for anyone who is inflexible and unable to reach back far enough to put their arms through sleeves. The clothing line consists of pants, too, that mirror the designer styles found in stores except with loops on each side of the waist to ease pulling them up.

Muleya is in charge of the pleated oncology friendly shirt. The design is tricky and Muleya is burning through fabric.

"It's going to be a thousand dollar shirt," Birk says as they consult. ". It already is a thousand dollar shirt, but it's going to look good."

Indianapolis eliminates $900K in sports park features

INDIANAPOLIS — An Indianapolis sports park that has been the subject of dispute since Mayor Greg Ballard announced it would host a national cricket tournament is coming in under budget, but only because city leaders have scaled back the project due to costs.

The World Sports Park will cost about $900,000 less than its projected $6 million because some planned features proved too costly. That forced the city to cut one field and eliminate a concession pavilion and some parking, the Indianapolis Business Journal reported.

"When we got some of the prices, some of the bidding, some of the things that we were looking at trying to install, it was more expensive than we anticipated," city engineer Andy Lutz told the Board of Public Works in June, noting that building the park to its original specifications would have brought its cost to $10 million.

Ballard disclosed plans for the park in April 2013 during a trip to India during which he announced that the city would host a U.S. cricket championship game. The announcement caught many City-County Council members by surprise as they were focused on paring the city's budget in anticipation of a large shortfall.

A three-year deal to host a USA Cricket Association tournament was touted as a revenue generator. But those plans fell through in May, when the city canceled plans for the tournament because of organizational dysfunction at the association.

Now Lutz says maintenance costs of the 48-acre park will be included in the same budget that covers 207 other city parks.

Those costs could be significant.

A turf expert from the United Kingdom said keeping up the cricket pitches, which are at the heart of the game, will require special knowledge.

"I don't know the climate of Indianapolis, but unless you have regular rainfall, the irrigation needs will be high and maintenance is a daily job," Andy Carmichael, sportsturf tutor at the Institute of Groundsmanship, said in an email.

Cricket fields are made up of circles 150 yards in diameter with a playing "square" in the center. It takes more than a day to prepare a pitch for play, so a typical cricket square holds several pitches, Carmichael said. The pitch is built from 6 inches of clay soil with grass cut to 3 millimeters, he said.

The effect is like a "very fast golf green," he said.

LOCAL BUSINESSMAN Randy Good wrote a book, "Confessions of a Business Addict," sharing what he's learned in his years in the candy business.

SWEET SUCCESS

Local businessman Randy Good publishes first book on family and business

By Traci Moyer
The Herald Bulletin

ANDERSON — In many ways, Good's Candy Shop, 1423 W. 53rd St., is a perfect model of a candy family business.

Passed down from generation to generation, the recipes of at least dozen candies actually began with one woman in the 1940s and they now belong to three different candy stores in the area.

"You've heard the old saying, 'You should write a book?' People are always saying that to me," said owner Randy Good. "I hadn't ever really considered writing a book, but when I saw a reason to write — I just started writing it."

Good's reason to write was an invitation to be the lead speaker at the Retail Confectioners International, a not-for-profit trade association serving the confectionery industry. Organizers asked Good to prepare a handout for attendees.

The opportunity to share knowledge gained through his years as a businessman interacting with vendors and employees to build a successful candy store was all the inspiration Good needed to write his self-published book, "Confessions of a Business Addict."

"We enjoyed having Randy speak at the 94th Annual Convention & Industry Expo last week," said Angie Burleson, executive director for Retail Confectioners International. "Randy's engaging presentation, 'Confessions of a Business Addict,' gave our members real examples of both advertising and marketing to take away and apply to their own businesses.

"Learning from a fellow candy maker is valuable for our members when they know it is someone who understands their world of candy."

Good started writing his book in November 2013 and finished about a week before the conference.

"I've never written a book, and what I discovered about writing a book is it is very difficult to let go of it," he said. "I probably finished writing it in the spring, but I kept working to improve it."

BUSINESS PROFILE

Vacant building offers couple opportunity

By Traci Moyer
The Herald Bulletin

ANDERSON — The Junktion, located downtown at the corner of Harrison and Church streets, has a little bit of everything for everyone.

"The customers say it reminds them of the way stores merchandised in the past, and they look forward to driving by to see what is new," said Tony Johnson, who owns the store along with his wife, Bobbi.

Wicker loveseats, antique rockers and end tables line the sidewalk and wrap around to the opposite edge of the building, providing a glimpse of the treasure found inside. Pinterest followers and collectors can spend hours in the store's three rooms filled with merchandise.

The resale store carries furniture, household items, giftware, jewelry, tools, hardware, books, albums, sporting goods, antiques and collectibles.

"If The Junktion doesn't have what you are looking for, we try to find it for you and let you know when it comes in," Johnson said.

He had not planned to open a business in downtown Alexandria, but owning an older building here proved to be something of a challenge for the couple. The building had originally been rented to a tenant, but the business — like so many other former downtown businesses had — moved to Indiana 9.

"It is hard to rent an old building downtown for the prices you need to keep up with high insurance costs, property taxes, upkeep. ... Virtually no one wants to buy property downtown," he said.

The couple had two choices, Johnson said. Let the building go to tax sale and take a chance it would be torn down, or take a leap of faith and start a new business in the building.

The problem with starting a business, however, was it had to generate interest, have low overhead and not require many changes to the current structure.

"We chose the resale and re-purposing business because it met the criteria and we love taking existing things and maintaining a use or purpose for them," Johnson said. "Because we also carry vintage and antique items, it is fun watching the young people coming in and seeing old items for the first time and others coming in going down memory lane about what their parents or grandparents had."

Time and money are the biggest challenges, the new entrepreneurs said, and an old building needs constant maintenance and upkeep. Johnson said he eventually plans to upgrade, but patience and balance are required to maintain their success.

"We have wonderful family and friends who have helped support our efforts and put in countless hours of help, and we couldn't have done it without them," he said. "We are very thankful to God for this business opportunity and for the friendships and blessings we have encountered continually along the way."

ANDERSON — Top Choice Fence & Deck of Anderson has been named the official fence company of the American Motorsports Challenge Series, according to an announcement from Jeff Richardson, president of AMCS.

The company is owned and operated by veteran racer Greg Van Alst.

LifeStream names advisory member

YORKTOWN — Jeff Smiley, New Castle, is the newest member of the LifeStream/Quality Housing Development advisory council from Henry County.

Smiley council will be working to establish continuation of programs and services that focus on people 60 and older, people with physical disabilities and their caregivers, in support of LifeStream's mission to provide services for people who are at risk of losing their independence.

Smiley is owner/operator of Smiley's Body Shop in New Castle.

R&R Engineering celebrates 45 years

SUMMITVILLE — R&R Engineering, one of the largest manufacturers of U-Bolts and threaded fasteners in the United States, is celebrating 45 years of business.

"R&R Engineering was established in June 1969, and has been a part of the Summitville community for 45 years. During this time, we have employed many people from the town and surrounding area. We are proud of what we have been able to accomplish together with our employees," said Ralph Amos, president and founder of R&R Engineering.

The company has maintained a managed growth rate that has twice earned the company the honor of being named an Inc. 5000 Fastest Growing Privately Owned U.S. Business. This growth has been reinforced with a focus on investing in the best technology available. The combination of world-class technology and small-town service has become the hallmark of the manufacturer.

"We can compete with China, and often have customers who bring parts to R&R that they had previously been buying overseas. It's always exciting when that happens. And it is happening more often. We are proud to be able to bring that work to the U.S.; back to Madison County; back to Summitville," said Amos.

The health analytics technology company says it will invest $1 million to lease new office space and insource some software development from Ohio.

Westfield sports facility expanding

WESTFIELD — A large sports complex in Westfield continues to grow.

South Bend-based Holladay Properties has announced plans to build a $20 million indoor sports facility at the Grand Park Sports Campus. The building will house three full-size soccer fields and feature catering from Jonathan Byrd's.

Indiana biosciences gaining momentum

WARSAW — A bi-annual report released at this week's BIO International Conference in San Diego shows Indiana continues to be a life sciences leader.

The study suggests nearly 58,000 Hoosiers work in the industry, landing the state in the top 10 in number of employees. Researchers say, while the number of life sciences companies in the state dropped slightly from 2007 to 2012, there was growth in the agricultural and medical device areas.

GOOD

Good said he wanted it to be an easy read, so he tweaked a word here and a word there until he had filled 112 pages with childhood stories to carry each of his business dealings.

"These are just my thoughts and ideas, my practices," Good said. "I felt that I have 33 years of practice at it that I can convey to people what has worked for me."

The longest chapter in the book is on advertising.

"I think advertising over the years has changed and people have forgotten what advertising is and what it's for," Good said. "People get marketing and advertising confused and I think it has gotten a bad rap, but I have proof it works. The largest companies in the world advertise. It is naive to think a business my size does not have to."

And Good, who purchased his business from his father and aunt in 1992, left nothing out of his book, which he said makes it an enjoyable read for both those wanting to start a business, or those interested in the history behind his business.

RANDY GOOD says an invitation to be the lead speaker at the Confectioners International spurred him to write his book, "Confessions of a Business Addict."

Don Knight | The Herald Bulletin

Good said a great-aunt originally started a candy shop in 1940, in Kennard, and then sold the business to her nephew and the recipes to her sister-in-law, creating the first division in the family business. In the end, three candy shops originated from one family's chocolate recipe.

But even in the chocolate business, there are dark secrets.

"My family has quite an enviable level of dysfunction," Good laughed. "Generational divide is never any wider (than) when money and pride are involved, but that is all in the book. It is quite the story."

Good said people often talk about success being built on a secret family recipe, but he said most of the recipes used are readily found in various places.

"I found out we are not that unusual," he said. "A family splitting up in the candy business is commonplace. It's very strange. There is nothing secret for what we do, we just do it well. There are only very few things we as people can do with sugar."

Copies of Good's book are available in his store, and he said he hopes to write another one.

"It was more fun writing it than it was having it in hand," he said, "which probably means I'm not done."

MARKET REPORT

The Week Ahead

Housing bellwether

Economists predict that U.S. construction spending increased in May from the previous month.

That would make it the fourth straight increase after severe winter weather pushed spending on homebuilding and nonresidential construction down in January. Construction spending rose in April to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $953.5 billion, the strongest performance since March 2009. The Commerce Department reports its latest figures Tuesday.

Gaining momentum

The Commerce Department reports May factory orders Wednesday.

Companies have been placing more orders to U.S. factories, adding to evidence that manufacturing is regaining momentum after a harsh winter. A surge in demand for military hardware contributed to a 0.7 percent increase in April. Factory orders have risen on a monthly basis this year after declining in December and January.

All about jobs

U.S. employers have been hiring at a healthy pace since February.

Did the trend continue in June? Find out Thursday, when the Labor Department reports its latest monthly tally of hiring. Employers added 217,000 jobs in May, the fourth consecutive month of gains above 200,000. The job gains have helped keep push the national unemployment rate to 6.3 percent, the lowest in more than five years.

Mid-year yield roundup

It's a tough time for savers and the Federal Reserve doesn't see any immediate end to its low-interest rate policies.

Since the start of the year, the yield on the 10-year Treasury note has fallen from 3 percent, to as low as 2.4 percent late last month. Such low interest rates have made investors hungry for investment income.

Company Spotlight Dollar General CEO to retire

Shares of Dollar General fell 7 percent after CEO Rick Dreiling announced plans to retire next year. The discount store operator said that the retirement will be effective on May 30, 2015, or when a successor is appointed. Dreiling, 60, also serves as chairman and has agreed to remain in that post during the transition process once a new CEO is named. The company has begun its search for a new CEO.

Dreiling has served as Dollar General's CEO since January 2008. He became chairman in December of that year.

Under Dreiling's leadership, annual sales have surged more than 80 percent to $17.5 billion. Dollar General's store count has climbed 38 percent to more than 11,000 stores in 40 states during that time.

He was born June 4, 1935, in Anderson and was a lifelong resident of Madison County.

He graduated from Markleville High School in 1954. A farmer, he retired from Delco Remy after 37 1/2 years of service.

Larry attended Pendleton New Life Wesleyan Church and was a member of the United Auto Workers Local 662. He coached Anderson University softball for 30 years, 24 years as head coach and six years as the assistant coach. He was the founder of the Pendleton girls softball program working with them from 1973 to 1981 where he was a past president. He was one of the founders of the Pendleton Jr. Football program and also worked with Pendleton Jr. Baseball and Babe Ruth. He enjoyed collecting coins and baseball cards.

He is survived by his wife of 52 years, whom he married Aug. 28, 1955, Betty (Millage) Holloway; six children, Terri and (Brent) Ice, Tony (Teresa) Holloway, Tandy (Larry) Jones, Tracy (Dan) Theil, Teffenie (Jeff) Davies and Trecia (Alan) Johnson; 13 grandchildren, Jordan, Jarah Ice, Todd, Tyler, Tami Jo, Tanner Holloway, Cody, Abby Jones, Kara, Kayla Theil, Reece, Katie Davies and Hailie Johnson; two great-grandchildren, Sidney and Kye; a brother, Ronald (Avis) Holloway; sister-in-law, Maxine (Carl) Whetsel; brother-in-law, Pete (Belinda) Millage; a cousin, Dora Mae; and several nieces and nephews. The family would like to thank Dr. Mares and Saint John's nursing staff for making his last days comfortable.

He was preceded in death by his parents, Orville and Edna (Knotts) Holloway.

Visitation will be from 5 to 9 p.m. Thursday at Anderson University Wellness Center and one hour prior to the service on Friday at the funeral home.

Services will be Friday at 1 p.m. at Robert D. Loose Funeral Homes & Crematory, South Chapel, 200 W. 53rd St., with Pastor Paul Blair officiating.

Burial will be in Miller Cemetery, Middletown.

Memorial contributions may be made to Anderson University Softball Program in memory of Larry W. Holloway or Pendleton New Life Wesleyan Church.

Threat on hospita medicine prescribed or "lack thereof," Sandefur said. Officers located the man at his residence a short time later and determined the issue was "more a cry for help," Sandefur said Monday.

The area of the hospital that was threatened is secured, so no lockdown was initiated, St. Vincent spokeswoman Tangela Floyd said.

She said security personnel followed directions from Anderson police during the investigation and no one was in danger.

"They handled it quickly and fast," Floyd said.

She said personnel regularly practice drills involving procedures to take if there is an active shooter or bomb threats and other scenarios at the hospital.

When a bomb threat is made or suspicious items discovered, they should always be taken seriously, according to the Department of Homeland Security. The agency says most bomb threats are made over the phone, but they can be made in person, CMG, the agent for about 300 celebrities, has been cracking down on illicit use of celebrity images. Indiana has become a focal point of the suits because it has one of the most restrictive laws in the country by protecting the right of publicity for 100 years.

California allows celebrities to control their publicity up to 70 years after death, Pennsylvania's statute allows 30 years' control, and Tennessee's statute could allow protection forever, as long as the rights are used, said CMG chairman Mark A. Roesler.

"There is a lot of litigation now. We've never had so much," Roesler said.

CMG's portfolio includes Marilyn Monroe, James Dean, Princess Diana, Babe Ruth, Marlon Brando, Mark Twain and Frank Lloyd Wright.

planned to rebuild the sidewalks around 19th and Jackson streets and put in a comprehensive landscaping plan.

Hours for the clinic will be 5:45 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday by appointment only.

The Anderson Redevelopment Commission also was listed as a petitioner for the project, since the commission worked to find a buyer for the former American Playground property, but did not send a representative to the meeting. Although he voted in favor of the new clinic, BZA President Greg Spencer said he would not support further petitions without the presence of the petitioners.

In other business, the BZA on Wednesday approved a special exception for the Med One Urgent Care Center and St. Vincent Physician Network, now located at 4925 S. Scatterfield Road, into the Southtown Shopping Center in front of Wal-M art on the east side of South Scatterfield Road.

The move will take the clinic's space from 3,500 square feet to more than 12,000 square feet, Municipal Development Department Assistant Director Tim Stires said.

Bill Davisson, who represented the clinic at the meeting, said the move would allow the clinic to offer more efficiency to its patrons.

"That (current) location has gotten real busy," he said. "This gives them a lot more space, a lot better ability to get people in and out quicker," he said.

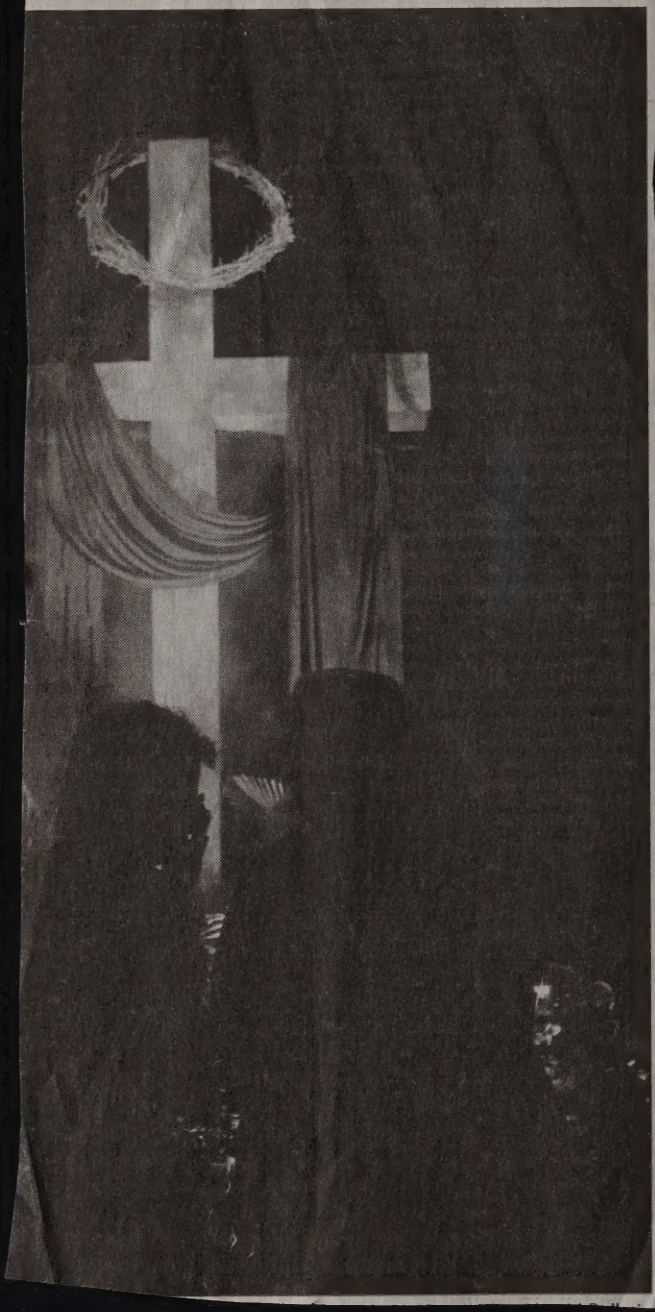
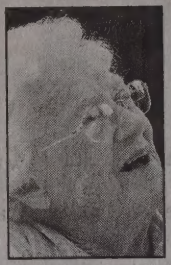
LOCAL & STATE



Ruth L. Fisher

NOBLESVILLE — Ruth L. Fisher, 94, a longtime Noblesville resident, died Tuesday morning, Feb. 19, 2013, at Riverview Hospital.



Born in 1918 in Saskatchewan, Canada to Hoosier farmers attempting to homestead, she grew up in Alexandria. She adopted Noblesville as home after moving to the city in 1947 to work for the Charles Howard Insurance Agency. She met local contractor, Noblesville native John E. Fisher through her duties at the agency, and they married in July of 1949. Together, they worked side-by-side for 30 years to raise their two children, a grandson, and establish and build a home construction and real estate development business.

Mrs. Fisher was predeceased by her parents; a brother and sister; and her husband, John, died in 1979.

Her children survive, John G. "Greg" Fisher (Celeste J. Williams), Indianapolis, and Karen Sue Davis, Noblesville; a grandson, Tom Reasoner, also of Noblesville, survives.

Other survivors include nieces, Sandy Anderson, Noblesville, and Linda Gladu of Springfield, Ill., and a nephew, Mike Latchaw (Luanne) of Alexandria, and their families; as well as a special neighbor and friend, Michael A. Lanning, Noblesville.

A memorial service will be held at 3 p.m. Saturday at First United Methodist Church in Noblesville. Calling will begin at 1 p.m.

Memorial contributions can be made to First United Methodist Church in Noblesville.

A private burial will be at a later date.

Post online condolences at www.randallroberts.com or www.theheraldbulletin.com.

your every objective will be realized.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) -- Plans that require bold measures are destined to go much smoother for you today than they will tomorrow. Time is not your best ally in activities that require an aggressive approach.

Death toll for Iraqis down 3rd month

BAGHDAD — The number of Iraqis killed last month fell to 718, an Associated Press tally showed, the lowest monthly death toll since just before the 2006 bombing of a Shiite shrine provoked a vicious cycle of retaliatory sectarian violence.

The figures come as the military says violence has fallen to levels not seen in nearly two years, while acknowledging that Iraqis are still dying in unacceptable numbers.

Create a customer-focused plan

The Herald Bulletin

The Anderson chapter of SCORE will conduct a free workshop to help small-business owners create a customer-focused business plan from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Thursday at the Anderson Public Library.

Call the library at (765) 641-2456 or e-mail postmaster @scoreanderson.org for more information or to register for the workshop. Registration is required before the day of the event.

The purpose of having a customer-focused business plan is to create a logical and manageable approach to laying the groundwork for a successful business while thinking about customer needs.

The workshop is the third of a series of free presentations. On April 3, SCORE will hold another workshop on financials and loan planning.

Anderson SCORE provides free, confidential counseling and workshops to clients in Delaware, Henry, Madison, Randolph, Tipton, Wayne and eastern Hamilton counties. SCORE volunteers also provide face-to-face and online counseling. Call (765)-642-0264 or go online at www.scoreanderson.org/counseling.html to schedule a session.

Flagship names new director

The Herald Bulletin

The board of directors of the Flagship Enterprise Center recently named DeWayne Landwehr as interim executive director. During the next few weeks, Landwehr will transition into this role previously held by Art Patterson who is transitioning to a new position.

Landwehr came to Anderson in May, 1963 as a General Motors Institute student, sponsored by the Guide Division of General Motors. After receiving a bachelor's degree in Mechanical Engineering, he attended Ball State University where he earned a master's degree in business management. During his career at Guide, Landwehr worked in nearly every aspect of the operation including tool and manufacturing engineering, product Development, Product Managemen; and Product Engineering.

Landwehr has also held positions in automotive safety engineering at the GM Technical Center and the Delphi Interior and Lighting division in Warren, Mich.

Recently, Landwehr served as the director of operations at the Anderson Business Incubator in downtown Anderson.

McClatchy-Tribune News Service

SAN JOSE, Calif. — Americans are conflicted about Internet privacy. They say they want better protection for their personal data, but often trade away safeguards to connect with friends or find what they are looking for online.

Many experts agree privacy has eroded with the growth of social-networking sites such as Facebook and MySpace and the spread of behavioral advertising, where ads are fed to people based on their online behavior. What's hard to know is how much of this erosion people are willing to overlook for the sake of cyber convenience.

"The vast majority of people want to protect their privacy," said Larry Ponemon, chairman of the Ponemon Institute, a Traverse City, Mich., researcher focused on privacy and data protection. "But they aren't doing anything about it."

Instead they increasingly post personal information on online profiles, share data with strangers and put up with ever-more intrusive ad-targeting methods that monitor their online movements. And they are not just younger computer users — who are commonly believed to be less sensitive to privacy concerns — but older adults as well.

A privacy debate was rekindled last year after Google announced its proposed purchase of ad-targeting outfit DoubleClick. New fuel was added in November when Facebook launched its Beacon advertising program — drawing the ire of privacy advocates and eventually a mea culpa by the company, which responded to the storm of protest by letting people opt out of the program.

Privacy advocates say programs like Beacon, which share information about a person's purchases with his or her friends on Facebook, give consumers too little control over how much personal information Internet companies collect and use.

Similar complaints dog other forms of behavioral targeting, especially the spread of "third-party" cookies, or little programs that sit on a person's computer and monitor the sites visited, and share that information with groups of merchants.

When people search for information on a particular disease, the search engine they use or the Web site they visit knows their affliction, said Kathryn Montgomery, a professor at American University in Washington and an advocate for greater online privacy.

But consumers don't always react with alarm. Researchers say most people have a line when it comes to privacy, but knowing when that line is crossed is difficult. Public attitudes often are far more pragmatic than doctrinaire.

"The whole brouhaha over Facebook has me a bit puzzled," said bemused Internet user Bob Cullinan, a San Rafael, Calif., member of the social-networking site. "If you don't want the Facebook folks to know anything about you, then don't sign up for a Facebook account. It all seems pretty simple to me."

About two-thirds of people in developed countries say they are concerned about privacy, but not enough to withhold personal information when, say, the convenience of making an online purchase means providing it, Ponemon said. An additional 20 percent aren't concerned at all about privacy, he said, leaving about 12 percent who find privacy a major concern.

A similar split was evident in a December study by the Pew Internet & American Life Project. Ninety-four percent of American adults surveyed said it was important to control who has access to their personal information. But 61 percent hadn't taken steps to limit the information about them found online.

The Internet "feels so incredibly safe, secure and anonymous," said Fred Cate, a law professor at Indiana University and a privacy expert. "People care about other things more when (privacy) is on the table."

Privacy isn't always a young vs. old issue, though young people are at times less concerned about guarding their data. The Pew study found an almost identical percentage of people in the 18-to-29 age group and the 50-to-64 age group say it is important to control access to personal information. Ninety-four percent of the younger group held that view, compared with 96 percent of the older one.

Yet the study found that only 47 percent of people age 18 to 29 said they have refused to give information to a business or company because they thought it was unnecessary or too personal, while 65 percent of people in the 30-to-64 age group had refused similar requests.

"What we see in our data is experience can change your mind with respect to privacy," said Susannah Fox, an associate director at the Pew project.

Some Internet and technology companies view privacy as an important enough issue to call for national privacy guidelines. About two dozen — including Hewlett-Packard, eBay, Intel, Oracle, Symantec, Google and Microsoft — are members of the Consumer Privacy Legislative Forum, a group brought together in 2006 to support privacy legislation.

HP Chief Privacy Officer Scott Taylor said he is optimistic that advocates, regulators and executives will come up with a framework for handling personal information, though an agreement may still be more than a year away.

"I'm not sure many consumers understand the things that are being observed about them," Taylor said.

HP was blemished by its own privacy scandal two years ago after it collected personal phone records of board members and journalists. The company has since reformed its privacy policies.

The Federal Trade Commission released proposed guidelines in December requiring Web sites to allow consumers to choose whether information about them is collected.

The FTC's proposal has encouraged some advocates. "I think that's a step forward," said Ari Schwartz, deputy director at the Center for Democracy and Technology. The center was one of nine privacy organizations to urge the FTC in October to adopt even stronger privacy safeguards, including a "Do Not Track List" similar in concept to the National Do Not Call Registry for blocking telemarketing phone calls.

*Subject to credit approval. Rates for the home equity line of credit are based on The Wall Street Journal Prime (Prime) and are as low as Prime -1.01% (4.99% APR as of 03/08/2008). Your actual rate will be determined by product and credit qualifications. The promotional rate is available with a new Key Equity Options line of credit account of $75,000 or greater, with a $50,000 initial draw and use of the KeyBank automatic payment deduction plan from a new or existing Relationship Package Account. Refinancing of an existing KeyBank loan or line of credit is eligible with a $20,000 line of credit balance increase. Line amounts of $25,000 to $74,999 are eligible for an APR as low as Prime -.76% (5.24% APR). An annual fee of $99 will apply. Offer is available for financing up to a maximum 85% loan to value. Rates may vary but will never exceed 18.00% APR. Property and hazard insurance are required on property securing the line. Certain collateral restrictions apply. All origination fees will be waived on line amounts up to $500,000 ($250,000 in NY). For lines above $500,000, title insurance may be required (cost ranges from $12.50 to $2,859). In New York, lines of credit over $250,000 pay mortgage tax ranging from $0.50 to $2.80 per $100 borrowed. If your line terminates for any reason within 36 months, a $350 termination fee ($450 in New York) will apply. Normal checking account service charges may apply; please refer to specific account disclosures for details. Offer is available until April 18, 2008 at any KeyBank branch and must close by May 23, 2008. Rates, fees, and terms are based on those offered as of the date of application and are subject to change without notice. Offer valid in CO, CT, ID, IN, KY, ME, MI, NY, OH, UT and VT only.

Interest rates and/or points are subject to change without notice, and may be different based on credit quality, loan amount and property type. Loan repayment examples are as follows: The stated APR of 6.42% is based on a $125,000 loan financed for 30 years at a rate of 6.25% with 0 discount points resulting in 360 monthly payments of $769.65. A KeyBank checking account is required to obtain the stated rate. Add .25% to stated rate when a KeyBank checking account is not established. Stated APR assumes a loan-to-value ratio of 80% or lower, and a maximum loan amount of $417,000 ($625,500 in Alaska). The APR may not include all closing costs. A 10-year fixed rate loan with 120 payments of principal and interest of $11.82 per $1,000.00 borrowed results in an APR of 7.40%. Monthly payment examples are for principal and interest only and do not reflect amounts to be paid into escrow for taxes or insurance. All loans are subject to credit approval.

Footprints

One night a man had a dream. He dreamed he was walking along the beach with the Lord. Across the sky flashed scenes from his life. For each scene, he noticed two sets of footprints in the sand; one belonged to him, and the other to the Lord.

When the last scene of his life flashed before him, he looked back at the footprints in the sand. He noticed that many times along the path of his life there was only one set of footprints. He also noticed that it happened at the very lowest and saddest times in his life.

This really bothered him and he questioned the Lord about it. "Lord, you said that once I decided to follow you, you'd walk with me all the way. But I have noticed that during the most troublesome times in my life, there was only one set of footprints. I don't understand why when I needed you most you would leave me."

The Lord replied, "My precious, precious child, I love you and I would never leave you. During your times of trial and suffering, when you see only one set of footprints, it was then that I carried you."

HISTORY

Anderson's street names change over the years

A visitor coming into Anderson looking for Pendleton Avenue would have to do some questioning to find out it no longer carries that name.

That's because the city's major southwestern gateway now carries the name of Dr. Martin Luther King Boulevard. Many cities have honored the civil rights pioneer by naming a street for him. Pendleton Avenue was evidently so designated because of its link to Pendleton as it becomes Indiana 9.

A similar honor was recently bestowed on longtime Anderson minister Dr. J.T. Menifee, who spearheaded an annual citywide cleanup campaign. The former Louise Street is now Dr. J.T. Menifee Drive.

Trouble is, that case marked the forgetting of Anderson's more distant past. For whom was Louise Street (old-timers pronounced it lou-EYES) named in the first place? Is the street's former namesake consigned to forgotten history?

During my teen years, I grew up on East Third Street. That street is no more, at least until one crosses Scatterfield Road to the east.

When the street was redesigned as a boulevard through Anderson University somewhere around two or three decades ago, it was renamed University Boulevard. I always figured that would have been a much classier address than East Third Street.

Jim Bailey

A century ago East Third Street ended at Union Avenue where East Maplewood Cemetery is located. Early Andersonians would be surprised to learn the intersection is now the junction of University Boulevard and College Drive.

And of course they would be even more surprised that a road even exists along the southern border of the cemetery. The route used to carry rail tracks over which the interurban cars traveled between Anderson and Muncie.

Broadway likewise is a newer designation for the street that continues north from where Jackson Street ends at White River (I don't recall right now what its original name was).

People used to refer to the street that passes the present Anderson High School as Brown Street Road. That's because southbound traffic from Brown Street veered down Marine Drive and through a tunnel connecting with the street that now is South Madison Avenue. A newer railroad viaduct connected Madison Avenue with the old Brown Street Road, making it one of the few continuous north-south thoroughfares through the city.

I don't know if any volumes have been compiled about the origin of Anderson street names. Whence Fletcher? Pearl? Halford? Dewey? Nichol? Sheridan? Sherman? Ruddle? Milton? Wilcon? Henry? Fulton?

We know of some, of course. Vinyard Street was named after an early Anderson family, hence the spelling, which differs from that of a grape arbor. And Lindberg Road was a spelling change from its namesake, Charles A. Lindbergh, who fell into disfavor during World War II because of his antiwar stance.

If more changes are to come, perhaps they could alleviate confusion. There are two Central Avenues, two Park Avenues and a Park Road. Any suggestions?

Jim Bailey's reflections on Anderson's past appear on Sunday. His regular column appears on Wednesday. He can be reached by e-mail at jameshenrybailey@earthlink.net.

Ulysses S. Grant, Rutherford B. Hayes, James A. Garfield, Chester A. Arthur, Benjamin Harrison, and William McKinley were all members of the organization.

During the month of July, the Madison County Historical Society will feature an exhibit called "Faces of the Civil War."

The exhibit is on loan from the Indiana Historical Society and will be available for viewing at the Madison County History Center, 7 W. 11th St., Anderson, each Monday and Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and on Wednesday from 1 to 8 p.m. during the month.

An added feature of the exhibit is information about Madison County's contribution to the Civil War. Included will be the role played by the Grand Army of the Republic during the post war years as well as the regimental reunions held throughout the county.

A social force

In 1866, Union Veterans of the Civil War organized into the Grand Army of the Republic (GAR) and became a social and political force that would control the destiny of the nation for more than six decades.

Membership in the veterans' organization was restricted to individuals who had served in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, or Revenue Cutter Service during the Civil War, thereby limiting the life span of the GAR. The GAR existed until 1956 when the last Union survivor passed away. The organization founded soldiers' homes and was active in relief work and in pension legislation.

Isaac M. May is shown in this pre-Civil War photograph. May, born in Rockingham County, Va., came to Anderson in 1855. He was killed at the Battle of Brawner Farm, Virginia, Aug. 28, 1862. The GAR Post #244 in Anderson was named in his honor.

The community level organization was called a "Post". In Madison County there were eight posts. They are listed in the order of their founding.

- Elwood #61, Elwood
- Major Samuel Henry #230, Pendleton
- Lew Taylor #243, Alexandria (also called Alexandria #243 at one time).
- Major May #244, Anderson
- Howard #311, Summitville
- Frankton #349, Frankton
- Hiram G. Fisher #366, Lapel (also located in Fishersburg at one time)
- Warren Cole #523, Perkinsville (numbered 532 at one time)

The strongest post in Madison County, though not the oldest, was the Major May Post, #244, in Anderson.

The post, formed pursuant to a petition by several ex-Union soldiers in Anderson, was organized on the evening of Sept. 18, 1884, in the old Madison County Courthouse, with 71 charter members.

Over a period of 55 years, the rolls of the post carried nearly 350 names of members, but not all at the same time. The average enrollment in the heyday of the post's existence was around 140.

Post nameskae died in battle

The post was named after Major Isaac M. May, 19th Indiana Infantry, a citizen of Anderson, who was killed in the Battle of Brawner Farm in Virginia on Aug. 28, 1862. His body was buried on the battlefield but was never recovered.

Immediately after its organization, the post had its headquarters in G.A.R. Hall, I.O.O.F. Block, on the northwest corner of Meridian and Ninth Streets. They met there until 1894 when they moved to the third floor of the Newsome Block, on the west side of Meridian Street in the 700 block. This is the only building where they met that survives.

In 1895, arrangements were made with Major Charles T. Doxey, also a member of the post, to provide a permanent home in a building at the northwest corner of Ninth Street and Central Avenue. This hall was completed in May 1896, and the post met there through 1904.

Prominently displayed on the building's face was "GAR 1895" over the windows of the second floor meeting room known as Grand Army Hall.

Doxey's death in 1898 may have been the reason they had to leave the building and relocate to a room in the basement of the northwest corner of the Madison County Courthouse. A space was provided for them through the generosity of the County Commissioners.

Mayor John L. Forkner delivered the dedication speech to those assembled in the new quarters on Jan. 11, 1905. In his speech Mayor Forkner said, "As long as there is a remnant of Major May Post remaining, this will be your home."

And so it was, as the members continued to meet once, and sometimes twice weekly, through 1939 when the record of their meetings ends.

Of the approximately 1,500 hundred volunteers from Madison County who served in 32 companies during the Civil War, only two were living in 1939. The last Civil War veteran to die in Madison County was Levi P. Keltner, on December 4, 1942, at the age of 98. He served as a private in Company K, 12th Ohio Calvary.

For many years the post had a dinner on April 6 in memory of the Battle of Shiloh. The affair was always the occasion of an extensive program of patriotic exercises and speeches.

The members were regular participants in Memorial Day and Veterans Day observances. By the 1930s the veterans were given the place of honor in parades by heading the processions. Fourteen participated in the 1932 Memorial Day parade and by the 1935 event only five were able to participate.

Children created living flag

The encampment drew national attention by its display of the "Living Flag." Two-thousand local school children stood upon inclined scaffolding reaching from the sidewalk to the roof of the courthouse at the northwest corner of the courthouse lawn dressed in red, white, and blue forming the American flag.

The event attracted several thousand people to Anderson to watch the aged veterans parade south on Meridian Street past the colorful display.

The Madison County Historical Society invites the public to visit the "Faces of the Civil War" exhibit during July and view our collection of photographs and memorabilia on display. They are reminders of an era in our county and state when Hoosiers answered the call to arms in record numbers to preserve the Union. Please join us as we honor their memory.

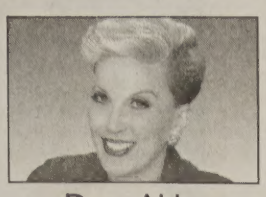
Thrill-loving mom gives no sympathy to fearful daughter



Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 15-year-old girl and I have always had a fear of heights. But my mother and sister love thrill rides. As a result, we often go to theme parks. When we do, I'll usually go on a couple of the "kiddie rides," which is what Mom calls "mild" rides. Mom and my sister try to drag me on the roller coasters, but I always say no.

After I refuse a few times, Mom will finally snap. The last time it happened she said: "You know what? I'm not paying for your ticket if you're going to wimp out and not go on any rides."

I have been driven to tears more than once. She won't stop even if my friends are with us. I wish I could stay home when they go, but then my mom accuses me of being "antisocial."

Please tell me what I can do or say to her to make her stop doing this. — TIRED TEEN IN COLTON, N.Y.

DEAR TIRED TEEN: Your mother may think that your refusal to go on the roller coaster (etc.) is a bid for attention, but she is wrong. She isn't taking into consideration how severe a fear of heights can be — some people require professional intervention to overcome it, and it costs a heck of a lot more than a ticket to a theme park. Because you can't seem to get through to her, appeal to one of her friends or a close relative to help you get the message across. Believe me, you have my sympathy.

DEAR ABBY: In December, right before Christmas, my daughter and I went shopping. We visited several stores in a strip mall in the small town where we live. After returning to my vehicle, I left the wheelchair I use for long distances at the back for my daughter to load.

We were getting ready to leave town. I hurried home, wrapped the gifts I had bought, then rushed out again to deliver them in the next town. When we reached our next stop, I realized I had left my wallet in the pocket of my wheelchair. When I asked my daughter to retrieve it, she looked at me and said, "You took the wheelchair out?" That was when we realized she had forgotten to load it.

I started calling the stores to ask if anyone had turned in a wallet and wheelchair. The answer was no. When I decided to call the sheriff's department and ask if anyone had turned the items in, the dispatcher began asking me all kinds of questions about my whereabouts and safety. Abby, they thought I had been kidnapped! I felt terrible for upsetting everyone.

I would like to thank the good Samaritan who turned in my wheelchair and my wallet, intact, with nothing missing. The items in it could have been replaced, but there is no way I could have replaced the wheelchair because it was expensive.

I would also like to thank the sheriff's department, which had a deputy at the door before I was off the phone with the dispatcher, for their quick response. — GINGER IN LIVE OAK, FLA.

DEAR GINGER: I'm pleased to publish your testimonial to the fact that there are honest, caring people in this world. Of course, it's no surprise, but we seem to hear an awful lot more about sociopaths and psychopaths than we do the good people who make up the vast majority. And hats off to your sheriff's department, who handled the situation with proficiency, humanity and professionalism.

Dear Abby runs daily in The Herald Bulletin.

ASTROGRAPH

Sunday, July 5, 2009

In the year ahead, meaningful financial matters will put you on the path toward realizing a huge success.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — That which you recently had difficulty getting others to comply with is likely to get willing support from everyone.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — If you have thoughtfully arrived at a particular plan of action, stay the course regardless of whatever obstructions you should face. Victory is near.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Take pride in what you are trying to do, even if those witnessing your labors do not see the value of your efforts.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — Should it be up to you to sort out mistakes, do so cheerfully.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — To your surprise, you won't have to make needless concessions in order to negotiate a matter of no small importance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Your ability to comprehend important information will be far better than your counterpart's.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Owing to surprising conditions, this could turn out to be a profitable day.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — Today could be especially fortunate for the fulfillment of your hopes and expectations.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) — Something in the works has far more potential than most people believe.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — If you have a special request, don't waste your time dealing with those who can't help you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Don't hesitate to play a secondary role rather than the one who stars in the show.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — It is smart not to discuss a complicated and unusual plan with friends or family.

Kirn pens scathing and tartly funny memoir

By Tom Beer
MCT News Service

Somewhere in the ivy-clad halls of Princeton, admissions officers must be wringing their hands over "Lost in the Meritocracy." The book is not what you'd call good PR.

Walter Kirn, the novelist and critic, has written a scathing and tartly funny memoir of his formal education, from public schools in rural Minnesota to the Ivy League institution in New Jersey, already immortalized as an academic country club by F. Scott Fitzgerald in "This Side of Paradise."

Kirn's Princeton, too, is a redoubt of privilege and snobbery, a "dreamland that seemed to dream only about itself." Midwestern and middle-class, the author is not a member of the club. When his wealthy roommates purchase expensive new furnishings for the dorm room, he can't afford his share; they forbid him even to step foot on the Persian rug. Professors are in thrall to fashionable theories of deconstruction, and students — the author included — parrot the jargon back, "sucking up to scholars of confusion."

For Kirn, though, Princeton was and always had been the brass ring. "I lived for prizes, plaques, citations, stars," he writes. "Learning was secondary, promotion was primary."

Inevitably, Kirn, like Fitzgerald, will have his crackup — a crippling aphasia that causes words to fade from memory "like defective bulbs in a strand of Christmas lights."

AT THE LIBRARY

New fiction for summertime reading

Check out the new fiction at the Anderson Public Library for some leisurely summertime reading. Whether it's romance, suspense, mystery or stories of moral convictions, the library has something for everyone.

'Handle with Care' by Jodi Picoult

"Handle with Care" explores the knotty tangle of medical ethics and personal morality. When faced with the reality of a fetus who will be disabled, should a parent have the right to consider termination? Best-selling author Picoult explores a timely yet controversial issue in her latest novel.

'Thanks for the Memories' by Cecelia Ahern

From the best-selling author of "P.S. I Love You" comes a mesmerizing tale of love and fate. New York Times best-selling author Cecelia Ahern's charming new novel explores what happens when "what if" becomes a reality for two strangers whose lives are at a crossroads.

"How can you know someone you've never met?" That's the question haunting Joyce Conway these days. Recovering from a terrible accident and with her marriage in pieces, Joyce is suddenly plagued by an overwhelming sense of deja vu that makes her feel as if the life she's living is not her own.

During the day she has vivid memories of things she's never seen — such as cobblestoned Parisian streets she's never visited — and at night she dreams of a little girl she's sure she's never met. Joyce is convinced she's lost her mind ... until a series of coincidences leads her on a journey to meet the one person who may hold the answer she needs. "Someone's life could be depending on you right now. ..."

That's the pitch that finally persuades Justin Hitchcock to donate blood — the first thing to come straight from his heart in a long time. Restless and lonely, Justin chased his ex-wife and daughter from Chicago to London, and now he's in Dublin, guest-lecturing to bored college students. When he receives a basket of muffins with a thank-you note attached, he's sure someone's playing a joke on him, but then the presents keep coming. Intrigued, Justin is determined to solve the mystery, a quest that will change his life forever.

'BoneMan's Daughters' by Ted Dekker

A U.S. intelligence officer, captured in Iraq, inadvertently becomes a suspect at home in the serial killings of seven young girls. Dekker ... masterfully takes readers on a ride of plot twists and turns ... an almost perfect blend of suspense, mystery, and horror" (Publishers Weekly). They call him BoneMan, a serial killer who's abducted six young women. He's the perfect father looking for the perfect daughter, and when his victims fail to meet his lofty expectations, he kills them by breaking their bones and leaving them to die.

Intelligence officer Ryan Evans, on the other hand, has lost all hope of ever being the perfect father. His daughter and wife have written him out of their lives.

Everything changes when BoneMan takes Ryan's estranged daughter, Bethany, as his seventh victim. Ryan goes after BoneMan on his own.

But the FBI sees it differently. New evidence points to the suspicion that Ryan "is" BoneMan. Now the hunter is the hunted, and in the end, only one father will stand.

Brown County offers scenic, tranquil getaway

By Julie Crothers
For The Herald Bulletin

NASHVILLE — Brown County State Park is the crown jewel of the system, the largest and most visited Indiana state park.

Sometimes called the "Little Smokies," the park offers a natural getaway to tranquil, scenic hillside and quaint nearby towns.

For some families, a vacation to the hills of Brown County is an affordable alternative to stuffy hotel rooms.

Ken Churchward of Springfield, Ohio, said this summer was his first trip to the park.

"Hotels are boring anyway, and it's basically the same price to stay here for a week as it would be to live in a hotel room for two nights," Churchward said.

"I'd rather save the money and enjoy being outside and be able to see the stars at night."

Brown County features 15,696 acres of campground, water and striking landscape for visitors to enjoy. It is also home to Yellowwood State Forest and Weed Patch Hill, one of the highest points in Indiana at an elevation of 1,058 feet.

Visiting Brown County

New attractions and old traditions create a clever mix to appeal to all travelers.

A nature center is available Monday through Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and Sunday from 1 to 4:30 p.m. Hikes, speakers and programs are available.

James Eagleman, interpretive naturalist, said the Department of Natural Resources considers the park an educational effort more than an entertainment facility.

"We offer observation areas, group talks and lots of artifacts that are typically found within the park. The idea is to make people more aware of what the park has to offer and learn about Brown County," Eagleman said.

Eagleman has worked at park for 31 years and said the best part of his job was showing people how to learn important lessons from nature.

"Nature is the best system for relating to the public. Nature is always changing and sometimes disasters hit, but the park heals itself and makes adjustments and improvements," he said.

Eagleman said spring and fall seasons are the busiest for the park, with visitors admiring the signs of spring and autumn leaves.

For bird watching enthusiasts like Joan Zerbe of Merrillville, Ind., the outdoor camping is a great way to connect with nature.

"I've been over to the lodge, but camping is just the way I prefer. I like being able to walk around and seeing all the different wildlife... especially the birds," she said.

In 2008, an indoor aquatic center was added to the Abe Martin Lodge.

Missy Myers, lodge assistant general manager, said the aquatic center is drawing in visitors from a new age group.

"We are working to recreate menus and our gift shop to meet a new clientele... It's important that we let people know everything they need is offered within the park," Myers said.

Laurie Brown of Cincinnati said the new aquatic center is a perfect fit for her young family.

"We have little kids with us, so other vacation places are too far away and too expensive. This park has all kinds of trails and the new pool for the kids to enjoy," Brown said.

The aquatic center features a slide in addition to volleyball and basketball areas. There is also a lazy river and fun zone for young children. Parents can relax in lawn chairs surrounding the play area or hot tub.

The lodge includes meeting rooms, space for weddings and a restaurant which are all open to the public.

Camping opportunities

Electric and non-electric camping and horseman sites are available for guests wishing to experience nature close-up. Brown County offers 415 family electric sites as well as 204 electric and primitive horseman sites all with completed restrooms and showers.

Larger camping spaces for groups are available on rally sites throughout the park.

Assistant Property Manager Jeremy Sobecki said the many activities and camping opportunities keep people coming back.

"Brown County has a little bit of everything," he said. "It's like a little city with water and electric, housing and a camp store... and we try to run it that way."

Sobecki said the park is known for its scenic stops alongside the road. The overlooks are populated with picnics and photographers throughout the summer.

"Otherwise, mountain biking is really starting to take off," he said.

Another two-mile bike trail was added in early June. The park now manages 20 miles of mountain bike trail with varying degrees of difficulty.

Two horseback riding trails are available at the park's saddle barn. A 2.2 mile trail costs $15 and a 3.3 mile trail is $25. Visitors can also fish in the park's Strahl and Ogle lakes.

Hayrides are offered Friday and Saturday nights for $3 a person. During October, the park creates a haunted trail for younger campers. A campsite decorating contest is also scheduled each year.

Fire pits and picnic tables are available to the public, first-come, first-served with the purchase of admission into the park.

Shelter houses can be reserved for group gatherings and range $30 to $80 depending on location.

The public pool is open from noon to 7 p.m. daily throughout the summer. The pool costs $2 per admission or a permit for 25 swim admissions can be purchased for $35.

The park is open every day, year-round from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Edward worked at the YWCA for 23 years and is now employed at KFC/A&W in Anderson. Linda is retired from Captain D's.

They have one son, Johnny (Nikki) Brown of Anderson. They are proud grandparents of JoAnna Brown of Anderson.

They celebrated their 25th anniversary with a family meal at Lonestar. Eddie surprised Linda with a weekend away at a secret hotel.

Bruce

Jim and Nila (Marsh) Bruce celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on June 27.

They were married in Anderson by the late Rev. Stewart Webber. They currently reside in Goodlettsville, Tenn.

They are the parents of two sons, James (Amber) Bruce of Pendleton and Jason Bruce of Goodlettsville, Tenn., and two daughters, Nicole (Tom) Young of Pendleton and Tina Baldwin of Goodlettsville, Tenn.

They have eight grandchildren, six great-grandchildren and two great-grandchildren due in July and October.

They are planning to celebrate with their family on a cruise in the fall.

Mathews

Jinks and Jeralee (Cuneo) Mathews just recently celebrated their 30th wedding anniversary on June 23.

They were married by the Rev. Wayne Anderson at the Alexandria First Church of God in Alexandria on June 23, 1979.

They have resided in Alexandria for the past 45 years.

Jinks works at Ricker's Oil in Anderson.

Jeralee works at Gaither's Music Co. in Alexandria.

They are the parents of Kurt Mathews of Alexandria.

They plan to celebrate their anniversary with friends and family.

McRoberts

Jerry and Wanda McRoberts of Shirley, were blessed to celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary on July 4.

A dinner celebration was held in their honor on June 27 at the Cadiz Christian Church where they are members.

The dinner was hosted by their children, Lisa and Jerry Badgley of Attica, Kim Tompkins of Anderson, and Jim and Tanna McRoberts of Knightstown.

Jerry retired from Delco Remy in Anderson and Wanda retired from The Diner in Pendleton.

They are very proud grandparents of fourteen and great-grandparents of four.

Both are very active in their church and enjoy gardening, baseball, and getting together with friends and family.

Jerry and Wanda are truly a blessing and a tremendous example both to their family and their community.

Congratulations to them both!

Brewers still alive

Milwaukee staves off elimination with Game 3 win

The Associated Press

MILWAUKEE — J.J. Hardy and the Milwaukee Brewers did just enough to keep their postseason alive for another day.

Back home at Miller Park, the Brewers got three hits from Hardy and a sharp outing from Dave Bush to beat the Philadelphia Phillies 4-1 Saturday night and stave off elimination in the NL division series.

Prince Fielder and Ryan Braun each had a sacrifice fly for Milwaukee, making its first trip to the postseason since 1982. Hardy and Jason Kendall added RBI singles.

After CC Sabathia and Yovani Gallardo flopped in Philly, Bush allowed one run in 5 1-3 innings to help send the best-of-five series to a fourth game today.

Three relievers stymied the Phillies before Salomon Torres worked a rocky ninth inning for the save. Philadelphia loaded the bases with

Blaze burns away county records

By Beth Oljace
Anderson Public Library

ANDERSON — The first Madison County courthouse was a one-story log building in Pendleton. Beginning in 1824 and for some four years, circuit court business was conducted in humble circumstances.

When the county seat was changed to Anderson, conditions didn't improve much. The court used a deserted Indian cabin near where the current jail and city building are. The county commissioners initially took bids for a two-story courthouse, but that was never built. Finally, in 1831, a more modest, one-story frame structure was built on the current location of KeyBank downtown. It had two jury rooms. The west room was used by the court, officers and lawyers, while the witnesses and spectators were separated from them by a long pole running across the length of the room.

The county soon outgrew this building and bids were taken for a two-story brick courthouse in 1837, to stand in the center of the public square. The building, which cost the county the outrageous sum of $7,000, was completed by late November of that year. For 20 years after the building was built the county didn't need the entire space and rented out rooms to serve as a post office and allowed two fraternal lodges — the Masons and the Sons of Temperance — to maintain their headquarters there as well. The courthouse also housed a county museum where artifacts of the departed Delaware Indians and other historic curiosities were kept. Public meetings and concerts were held there. Also, until the county jail was built, prisoners were sometimes kept in the cupola, which was 50 feet from the ground and only accessible by a single door. County officials were confident that it was quite secure, but in 1845 a horse thief named Harris broke out of the tower by climbing down a lightning rod during a heavy thunderstorm.

During the Civil War, the courthouse caught fire. The cause was probably carelessness arising from an overdose of high spirits over a successful election campaign. The records at that time were all moved and the fire was quickly doused.

Once again the county outgrew its courthouse. At some point, a small brick building was built on the courthouse grounds and the offices of the recorder, the treasurer and the auditor were moved into it. By the late 1870s, the courthouse was showing distinct signs of wear.

Sometime in the very early morning of Dec. 10, 1880 (reports vary from 3 to 5 a.m.), a fire was discovered in the Madison County clerk's office. By the time the fire was discovered, it was already well-established and not much could be done to save the courthouse. Volunteers tried, but there was no organized fire department and no well or cistern with readily available water. The small brick annex was completely unhurt, but the courthouse could not be saved.

The source of the fire is a mystery. A few newspapers in Indiana printed a story that an itinerant Irishman from Kokomo named Frank Moreland had confessed to have set the fire while under the influence of whiskey. The Anderson newspaper records that a tramp (who was never named) was arrested for setting the fire but was let go for lack of evidence. Moreland's name does not appear in any of the county histories, and none of them give any information about how the fire started.

What remained when the fire was out was the ruin of a brick building — considered to be no great loss — and dozens of charred ledger books and stacks of burnt papers. Found in the wreckage was the remains of the 1857 courthouse bell. Most of the 1,000-pound bell had melted in the fire. What was left was broken in pieces and carried away by souvenir hunters.

The loss of records was tremendous. All of the court records were destroyed, including those of the historically significant Indian Murders trial. Also destroyed was historic evidence kept by the clerk's office, including the club used in the Daniel Hoppes murder of 1867. All the marriage records were gone. Also destroyed were the records of the sheriff's office and the county superintendent of schools. There were more personal losses. The Madison County clerk was owed a substantial amount in fees, but all the records were destroyed and he had to depend upon the honesty of his debtors. Although the land records were intact, persons claiming title to land by sheriff's deed lost their claims. The Grand Jury which had recently concluded its business was convened a second time to do it all over again.

The court session was due to begin the next week, but cases would be in a shambles as any existing records had all been destroyed. The commissioners rented space for a court in the Westerfield building. (Ironically, the previous courthouse, which was by then a private residence, was still standing.) The treasurer's office took in the charred ledger books but had little success in recovering anything. People were advised to hunt up and carefully lay away the copies of their marriage licenses because their children might one day need them to establish heirship.

For the next 18 months, Madison County officials operated out of rented quarters. The commissioners ordered a special levy to raise money for a new building. The courthouse building was replaced in 1882 by a magnificent building that served the county well for the next 90 years. The records lost were irreplaceable.

Anderson Public Library hosting historical society's traveling exhibit

BY KEN DE LA BASTIDE
THE HERALD BULLETIN

ANDERSON – Both the state of Indiana and Madison County in particular have been associated with the automotive and racing industries for more than a century.

That history will be outlined during a stop of the "History on Wheels" exhibit.

The exhibit's unique and interactive experience will be in Anderson Monday through Wednesday, thanks to the efforts of Anderson Public Library.

The touring exhibit was put together by the Indiana Historical Society with financial support from the Lilly Endowment and CountryMark.

The exhibit will be at 13th and Main streets from 9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. Those visiting the exhibit are being encouraged to park in the library lots.

Sarah Later, director of Anderson Public Library, said she learned of "History on Wheels" in the early spring and decided it was important to bring the touring exhibit to Anderson.

Mexico's Maya heartland greets dawn of a new era

By Mark Stevenson
The Associated Press

Alexandre Meneghini / The Associated Press

Dancers perform as the sun rises at the Teotihuacan archeological site in Teotihuacan, Mexico, on Friday.

MERIDA, Mexico — Dec. 21 started out as the prophetic day some had believed would usher in the fiery end of the world. By Friday afternoon, it had become more comic than cosmic, the punch line of countless Facebook posts and at least several dozen T-shirts.

At the ruins of the ancient Mayan city of Chichen Itza, thousands chanted, danced and otherwise frolicked around ceremonial fires and pyramids to mark the conclusion of a vast, 5,125-year cycle in the Mayan calendar.

The doomsayers who had predicted apocalypse were nowhere to be seen. Instead, people showed up in T-shirts reading "The End of the World: I Was There."

Vendors eager to sell their ceramic handicrafts and wooden masks called out to passing visitors, "Buy something before the world ends."

And on Twitter, #EndoftheWorld had become one of the day's most popular hash tags.

For the masses in the ruins, Dec. 21 sparked celebration of what they saw as the birth of a new and better age. It was also inspiration for massive clouds of patchouli and marijuana smoke and a chorus of conch calls at the break of dawn.

The official crowd count stood at 20,000 as of mid-afternoon, with people continuing to arrive. That surpassed the count on an average day but not as many as have gathered at the ruins during equinoxes.

The boisterous gathering Friday included Buddhists, pagan nature worshippers, druids and followers of Aztec and Maya religious traditions. Some kneeled in attitudes of prayer, some seated with arms outstretched in positions of meditation, all facing El Castillo, the massive main pyramid.

Ceremonies were being held at different sides of the pyramid, including one led by a music group that belted out American blues and reggae-inspired chants. Others involved yelping and shouting, and drumming and dance, such as one ceremony led by spiritual master Ollin Yolotzin.

"The world was never going to end, this was an invention of the mass media," said Yolotzin, who leads the Aztec ritual dance group Cuautli-balam. "It is going to be a good era. ... We are going to be better."

Ivan Gutierrez, a 37-year-old artist who lives in the nearby village, stood before the pyramid and blew a low, sonorous blast on a conch horn. "It has already arrived, we are already in it," he said of the new era. "We are in a frequency of love, we are in a new vibration."

But it was unclear how long the love would last: A security guard quickly came over and asked him to stop blowing his conch shell, enforcing the ruin site's ban on holding ceremonies without previous permits.

Similar rites greeted the new era in neighboring Guatemala, where Mayan spiritual leaders burned offerings and families danced in celebration. Guatemalan President Otto Perez Molina and Costa Rican President Laura Chinchilla attended an official ceremony in the department of Peten, along with thousands of revelers and artists.

Make it a point to elevate your goals and objectives in the year ahead. Although you may need to be patient — success is likely to require considerable time and effort — you can achieve what you want.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — The best prescription for having a fun day is to stay away from the dullards and associate only with friends and family who feel and act young. Their exuberance will prove to be infectious.

School makes flag ban

Two incidents prompt ban on Confederate imagery at Lapel High

BY REBECCA R. BIBBS
THE HERALD BULLETIN

LAPEL – Lapel High School found itself thrust into the national debate about appropriate expression and hate speech because school and district officials banned Confederate flag symbolism as of Sept. 1 after two incidents last week.

Principal Chad Kemerly said six students, none of whom had ever been in trouble before, arrived at school Aug. 29 in a caravan of pickup trucks with Confederate flags embedded in their beds. Kemerly said the caravan was planned to coincide with the anniversary of the Civil War's Second Battle of Bull Run, which was fought Aug. 28–30, 1862.

"I think the students have their own opinions about the flag and wanted to share those with others," he said.

INSIDE » 1986 court ruling said speech that "substantially interferes with the educational process" isn't protected.

Frankton-Lapel Community Schools Superintendent Bobby Fields said the administration asked the students to remove the flags.

"They weren't happy about it, but they did," he said.

The next day, he said, about two dozen students came to school wearing variations of Confederate flag T-shirts. This time, the administration took the students aside individually to explain how wearing the shirts can be hurtful to students of color, especially their black classmates.

"We talked to them about what that flag means in America, what it stands for now, what the public perceives it as. It's seen as a sign of racism in America," he said. "They're upset that's how people perceive them. They're saying it has nothing to do with racism. It was about southern pride for them and free speech."

According to the Indiana Department of Education, of the 470 students enrolled at Lapel for the

THE HERALD BULLETIN

ANDERSON – Both the state of Indiana and Madison County in particular have been associated with the automotive and racing industries for more than a century.

That history will be outlined during a stop of the "History on Wheels" exhibit.

The exhibit's unique and interactive experience will be in Anderson Monday through Wednesday, thanks to the efforts of Anderson Public Library.

The touring exhibit was put together by the Indiana Historical Society with financial support from the Lilly Endowment and CountryMark.

The exhibit will be at 13th and Main streets from 9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. Those visiting the exhibit are being encouraged to park in the library lots.

Sarah Later, director of Anderson Public Library, said she learned of "History on Wheels" in the early spring and decided it was important to bring the touring exhibit to Anderson.

Visitors check out one of the "History on Wheels" exhibits, which will be in Anderson from Monday through Wednesday. Displays touch on the history of more than 100 Indiana auto manufacturers, such as Cord, Duesenberg and Studebaker. They also delve into the lives of Hoosier innovators and inventors, such as Carl Fisher, Elwood Haynes and Ralph Teetor.

IMMIGRATION

4 officials agree: Reform is necessary

Brooks: DACA issue has to be addressed

BY KEN DE LA BASTIDE
THE HERALD BULLETIN

ANDERSON – Madison County's congressional delegation is in agreement that the nation's immigration system needs to be reformed and at the same time address the issue of Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals program.

The administration of President Donald Trump announced a six-month phaseout of the program that was started in 2012 by former President Barack Obama. DACA allows certain illegal immigrants who entered the country as minors to receive a renewable two-year period of deferred action from deportation and eligibility for a work permit.

"The dissolving of DACA will not take place for another six months, giving Congress time to work to provide these kids who are woven into our communities, the reassurance that they will be able to continue living their lives as they always have," Rep. Susan Brooks, R-5th District, said in a press statement on Tuesday. "I look forward to working with my colleagues in Congress to find a compassionate resolution that will not punish children for the actions of their parents. Sending these children back to countries they are not familiar with is not the solution."

Study finds retail interest in Anderson

Edgewood Plaza focus of recruitment efforts

BY KEN DE LA BASTIDE
THE HERALD BULLETIN

ANDERSON – A study of potential retail outlets that may be interested in locating in the Anderson area includes a grocery store chain, sit-down restaurant and six quick-service eateries.

The Anderson Redevelopment Commission received an update Tuesday from the Buxton Co., which was hired by the city of Anderson to help attract retail stores to the area.

Antoine Long of Buxton said there are 103,560 people living within 20 miles of the targeted area and sales eclipsed $1.9 billion.

"There is a lot of spending power," he said. "We obtain information from credit card spending."

Long said annual grocery sales in the Anderson area exceed $121.9 million.

The primary focus areas are at the intersection of Nichol and Raible avenues, Scatterfield Road and the downtown area, Long said.

"There is a high interest in Anderson," he said. "A grocery store chain is considering long-term plans in Anderson for 2019 and another grocer is interested in the Edgewood Plaza area.

"This puts Anderson on their radar," Long continued. "A grocery store will be key to the Edgewood Plaza development."

Greg Winkler, executive director of the Anderson Economic Development Department, said the city is looking for a grocery store as an anchor for the Edgewood Plaza area.

"Next year we're working on additional retailers that may be interested in Anderson," he said. "We want to expand the focus area to include north Anderson."

Long said the 20-mile radius includes Alexandria, Daleville, Noblesville and Markleville.

"This is data driven," he said. "We work with 3,500 clients on site selection. Retail is very selective and they look at up to 20 sites before opening one location."

Long said the Buxton study includes a consumer profile, drive time, market conditions and then target retailers.

"Each community has a unique DNA," he said. "We then try to find the right retailer to fit into Anderson."

City wants residents to Get Alarmed

good morning

ANDERSON — Mayor Thomas Broderick Jr. and Fire Chief Dave Cravens announced a community outreach program giving smoke alarms to city residents.

The Get Alarmed program is a partnership between corporate sponsors Hoosier Park, Walmart Super Center, The Herald Bulletin, Lowes and the city, to provide free smoke detectors to residents of Anderson.

Residents need to fill out a request form, available through the fire department, and return it to the Anderson Fire Department.

Fire Department personnel will deliver smoke detectors or replacement batteries for existing detectors. Any smoke detector that is 10 years or order should be replaced.

To check the smoke alarms for a date, look at the manufacturer label. Batteries should be replaced at least once a year; twice a year ensures proper operation.

For more information, Deputy Chief Wilbert Kelly at 765-648-6624.

Indiana vet accused of animal abuse

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

GRANGER — The Indiana attorney general has accused a northern Indiana veterinarian of abusing animals in her care.

The office of Attorney General Curtis Hill filed a nearly 100-point complaint in June with the state Board of Veterinary Medical Examiners against Dr. Jennifer Perusek of the Animal Clinic in Granger.

The complaint alleges Perusek routinely engaged in a pattern of kicking, hitting, slamming, dragging and choking animals from 2012 to 2016.

Perusek's lawyer released a statement saying his client vehemently denies the claims.

The civil complaint is against Perusek's veterinary license. Hill has recommended that the state veterinary board discipline Perusek.

St. Joseph County Prosecutor Ken Cotter has requested more information from Hill to determine if criminal charges should be pursued.

Long said attracting retailers doesn't take place overnight.

"It takes time," he said. "It may take 12 to 24 months to make a decision."

Anderson was represented at the Commercial Retail Conference in Las Vegas in May to schedule meetings, where city officials met with company representatives about locating in the city.

Last year the Anderson Board of Public Works approved a contract with Buxton Co. for $50,000 annually for the next three years.

Buxton was hired to focus efforts on the Edgewood Plaza area first and then north Anderson and the downtown.

IMMIGRATION

Susan Brooks

Joe Donnelly

Brooks said the DACA issue further emphasizes the need to focus on reforming this nation's broken immigration system.

"It is essential that our immigration system be reflective of our national interests while keeping Americans safe," she said.

Sen. Joe Donnelly, D-Ind., said the country is still in need of reforms to fix the immigration system and strengthen border security.

"In the interim we should pass bipartisan legislation to give these young people, who were brought here through no fault of their own, some clarity and stability," Donnelly said last week. "Upending existing protections for the nearly 10,000 young people in Indiana who have been living here for most of their lives isn't the path we should take."

Sen. Todd Young, R-Ind., said he believes the U.S. must secure its southern border and fix its broken immigration system.

"Irrespective of (Tuesday's) announcement, that requires a bipartisan solution in Congress that reforms our legal immigration system, prevents illegal immigration, and addresses the question of what to do with undocumented men, women and children already here," Young said in a press statement.

Rep. Luke Messer, R-6th District, said Obama's decision to unilaterally rewrite the law was illegal.

"Hoosiers want us to follow the Constitution and uphold our immigration laws. President Trump's decision (Tuesday) is a step toward finally addressing illegal immigration in our country," Messer said. "Now, Congress has its chance to pass legislation that secures our border, restores rule of law and delivers on our promises to the American people."

Messer said the details of any legislation addressing DACA's phaseout will matter and he is eager to work on a solution.

"Anderson has a long history in the automobile industry," Later said. "There is a special exhibit about Delco Remy included.

"I hope we see long lines like for the eclipse glasses and to buy lottery tickets," she said. "We would consider bringing it back in the future."

The $2,500 cost of the exhibit was paid for through gifts to the library.

"History on Wheels" has a custom design that allows the trailer to expand to nearly 1,000 square feet of indoor museum space. Inside the trailer, IHS's Auto Indiana exhibit will take guests on a ride through the state's far-reaching and personal connections to the auto industry.

Displays touch on the history of more than 100 Indiana auto manufacturers, such as Cord, Duesenberg and Studebaker. They also delve into the lives of Hoosier innovators and inventors, such as Carl Fisher, Elwood Haynes and Ralph Teetor.

Delco Remy was founded in Anderson by Frank and Perry Remy in downtown Anderson in the late 1800s and a corporation was formed in 1901.

Over the years, Delco Remy provided electrical components to many automobile manufacturers and at one time was the largest employer in Madison County.

Visitors of all ages can explore under the hood of a vehicle modeled after a 1914 Marmon Touring Car. In addition, children can climb into the driver's seat of a mini IndyCar and imagine what it would be like to cross the famed Yard of Bricks.

Rachel Hill Ponko, of the Indiana Historical Society, said the Anderson stop was the farthest east in the state this year.

The society is hoping the exhibit will visit 50 of Indiana's 92 counties over the next five years.

FINALIST: NANCY PITCOCK

Nursing is her passion

Colleagues say Pitcock's enthusiasm contagious

By BARRETT NEWKIRK
barrett.newkirk@heraldbulletin.com

Nancy Pitcock, a first-time nominee for the Athena Award, is a well-known face at Saint John's Medical Center and around Anderson.

In her 35 years at Saint John's, Pitcock has worked in nearly every area of the hospital, including a long stint as a nurse in the emergency room and six years as a hospice nurse. Since 2004, she has been a part of the hospital's senior administration overseeing the hundreds of patient care givers as vice president and chief nursing officer.

Pitcock said she loves the range of skills nursing requires.

"It's just the most wonderful profession," she said. "You get to use technical skills, clinical skills, and still use human skills. It's just a very well-rounded profession as far as stimulating your heart and your mind at the same time."

Pitcock grew up in Lapel and

"Nancy's personal passion is nursing, and she inspires those around her to make it their life's calling, too," said Sharon Fields, director of care coordination at Saint John's. "Nancy has the innate ability to remain positive at all times and embraces change with enthusiasm. She remains ever mindful of the people she serves at work and within the community. Her excellent people skills and outstanding reputation make her a wonderful candidate to represent this community."

Away from the hospital, Pitcock stays busy with several community groups. She is an active member of Central Christian Church, a board member with East Central Indiana CASA (Count Appointed Child Advocates) and a member of the Child Sexual Assault Task Force.

Pitcock has two adult sons and one grandson. An avid reader, she also enjoys traveling to Tennessee several times a year with her hus-

FINALIST: NANCY PITCOCK

Nursing is her passion

Colleagues say Pitcock's enthusiasm contagious

By BARRETT NEWKIRK
barrett.newkirk@heraldbulletin.com

Nancy Pitcock, a first-time nominee for the Athena Award, is a well-known face at Saint John's Medical Center and around Anderson.

In her 35 years at Saint John's, Pitcock has worked in nearly every area of the hospital, including a long stint as a nurse in the emergency room and six years as a hospice nurse. Since 2004, she has been a part of the hospital's senior administration overseeing the hundreds of patient care givers as vice president and chief nursing officer.

Pitcock said she loves the range of skills nursing requires.

"It's just the most wonderful profession," she said. "You get to use technical skills, clinical skills, and still use human skills. It's just a very well-rounded profession as far as stimulating your heart and your mind at the same time."

Pitcock grew up in Lapel and now lives in Anderson. She holds degrees from Holy Cross School of Nursing and Saint Mary's of the Woods. In January she'll begin Ball State University's masters program in nursing leadership.

Her colleagues said Pitcock's enthusiasm for her work is sometimes contagious.

"Nancy's personal passion is nursing, and she inspires those around her to make it their life's calling, too," said Sharon Fields, director of care coordination at Saint John's. "Nancy has the innate ability to remain positive at all times and embraces change with enthusiasm. She remains ever mindful of the people she serves at work and within the community. Her excellent people skills and outstanding reputation make her a wonderful candidate to represent this community."

Away from the hospital, Pitcock stays busy with several community groups. She is an active member of Central Christian Church, a board member with East Central Indiana CASA (Count Appointed Child Advocates) and a member of the Child Sexual Assault Task Force.

Pitcock has two adult sons and one grandson. An avid reader, she also enjoys traveling to Tennessee several times a year with her husband, Jerry. But much of the couple's free time is spent planning an annual mission trip to Haiti.

Pitcock said the trip, which Saint John's and St. Mary's Church sponsor, is "the highlight of my year." She and her husband travel with 15 others to spend a week in Haiti providing medical services to around 2,300 people.

Saint John's Health System President Tom Van Osdol said Pitcock represents the values of Saint John's through her work at the hospital and the greater Anderson community.

"Nancy Pitcock is truly a servant leader for Saint John's in every way," he said. "She has served our patients in nearly every area of our ministry for over 35 years, and she consistently makes decisions and personal sacrifices to place their needs and what's right for their care above all else."

Leadership and Service

Saint John's Health System proudly supports the Athena celebration, recognizing leadership and service. These qualities are at the heart of Athena recognition, and Saint John's Spirit of Caring. Last year, Saint John's gave over $13-million in charity care and community benefit to residents of Madison County and beyond. It takes all of us working together to make Madison County healthy and strong. Congratulations to this year's Athena nominees, especially Nancy Pitcock, Saint John's Chief Nursing Officer.

FINALIST: BOBBETTE SNYDER

A win-win situation

Snyder sees graduates compete for award

By JUSTIN SCHNEIDER
justin.schneider@heraldbulletin.com

Win or lose, the Athena Awards represent a victory for Bobbette Snyder.

As executive director of the Leadership Academy of Madison County, Snyder can look over the list of finalists and past winners and recognize a phalanx of graduates.

"The number of Leadership Academy graduates that are Athena Award winners is remarkable," said Snyder, 64. "With leadership, the question is how do you judge it. One way is through the number of women working in the community and serving on boards."

Little wonder Snyder is a perennial favorite among the 16 finalists for the Athena Award, which honors remarkable women in Madison involved with their church for years and are very involved with youth. They always cared about the community and want to give."

In 2008, 36 adults will graduate from the Leadership Academy and another 34 to 35 leaders of the future will complete the Youth Leadership Academy of Madison County. To date, Snyder said, 1,000 graduates have passed through the program.

Nurturing leadership means outreach, and Snyder has helped the Leadership Academy create opportunities through Community Alliances to Promote Education (CAPE) and Parent Academy Leadership in Schools (PALS).

In the past, Snyder has co-chaired the Madison County United Way Campaign and was named the Distinguished the remodeling was done," said Snyder of the inaugural event. "It really suits the space. That was the start of the revitalization of downtown and, for me, this building has come to represent everything we can do if we work together."

In 2007, Snyder's husband, Tom, was hired as president of Ivy Tech Community College, placing him in the service of more than 11,000 students. Part of her personal and professional duties has been accompanying him on campus tours and exploring opportunities for nontraditional students.

"We want to see people take advantage of education from birth until death," Snyder. "It used to be that people stayed with one job their whole life. Now, thankfully, it's not that way. My husband found a new

It has been our privilege!
The Herald Bulletin and Myers Autoworld are proud to sponsor the ATHENA International Award and look forward to making this a premiere event that serves to inspire and motivate more women whose efforts will ultimately strengthen the fabric of our awesome community.
The ATHENA Award seeks to honor women who excel in their chosen field, demonstrates commitment to our community, and seeks to inspire others. ATHENA nominees come from wide-reaching areas including non-profit, for-profit, business, service, education, self-employed, and other professional positions in our community. The award is not intended to be a contest between competing nominees, but recognition of the valuable contributions being made by the many outstanding women in our midst. The recipient will be selected from these 16 finalistsis and announced at the November 18 Athena Gala Event.
Myers Autoworld and The Herald Bulletin plan to sponsor this prestigious event in the coming years and build on the excellent talent and dedication of our future candidates.

"She walks the talk in terms of servant leadership, she is a down-to-earth person," Trent said. "Her and her husband are really deserving folks, but she is a special person who is a very warm and genuine person. They do a lot I don't even know about. FINALIST: JAN KOENIGER

Her character counts

Kroeniger thrilled to encourage students to serve their community

By SCOTT L. MILEY
scott.miley@heraldbulletin.com

Dogs at the local animal shelter are going to sleep a little better thanks to Valley Grove Elementary School students led by Principal Jan Koeniger.

But maybe the students will sleep a little better, too, knowing they will help the shelter and their community.

And that's part of the reason that Koeniger continues working on community projects. Because of her commitment to students, she has been nominated for the third time for the Athena Award. She routinely thanks her staff for making her job easier.

Koeniger and her staff were in the midst of planning the dog bed project last week.

She heard of the project through a Columbus, Ohio, agency.

The local Lowe's store helped provide PVC pipe, which will be connected together by members of the school's Student Council. They'll then attach canvas to protect the dogs. When finished, the 50 beds will be taken to Anderson Animal Care and Control.

Much of her attitude in helping children was passed to her by her parents who taught her respect, responsibility and caring.

In fact, those are three of the traits she helps instill through Anderson Community Schools' Character Counts program. This year marked the 10th anniversary of the Character Counts. In October, she was in charge of coordinating the Oct. 11 parade that marked the opening of the new Edgewater Park pedestrian bridge.

Besides the two Anderson high schools and three middle schools, nearly every elementary school in the county now participates in the effort to teach the additional traits of trustworthiness, fairness, and citizenship.

"Character Counts has really grown in our county and it's just become embedded in the schools and the county. So that's what is exciting. It started small and now it's all over Madison County," she said.

Besides Character Counts, Koeniger is thrilled to be encouraging students to serve their community.

"I think it teaches them to have a sense of worth; whether it's a food drive or making the dog beds, they see the importance of helping somebody. Those lessons are valuable in life."

Koeniger has been in the teaching profession for 28 years, the last 11 at Valley Grove on the east side of Anderson with an enrollment of 690.

She has numerous awards including Anderson University Educator of the Year for 2005 and Indiana Association of Schools Principals' Elementary Principal of the Year for 2001. But better rewards might be watching children get excited over the projects she encourages them to do.

Koeniger grew up in Pendleton, graduated from Anderson College and Ball State University. She did her teaching in her home area. Earlier this year, she moved back to Pendleton following the death of her father.

There, she has become a board member of Outfitters Inc., the Pendleton-based service that provides new and quality used clothing to low-income children in south Madison County.

She quickly got involved with fundraising and organizing a gala for January. The projects don't seem to limit her time in helping the community.

"Thank goodness for e-mail," she laughed. "When you know projects are worth it and you help people and children, you just find the time because you know it's worthwhile."

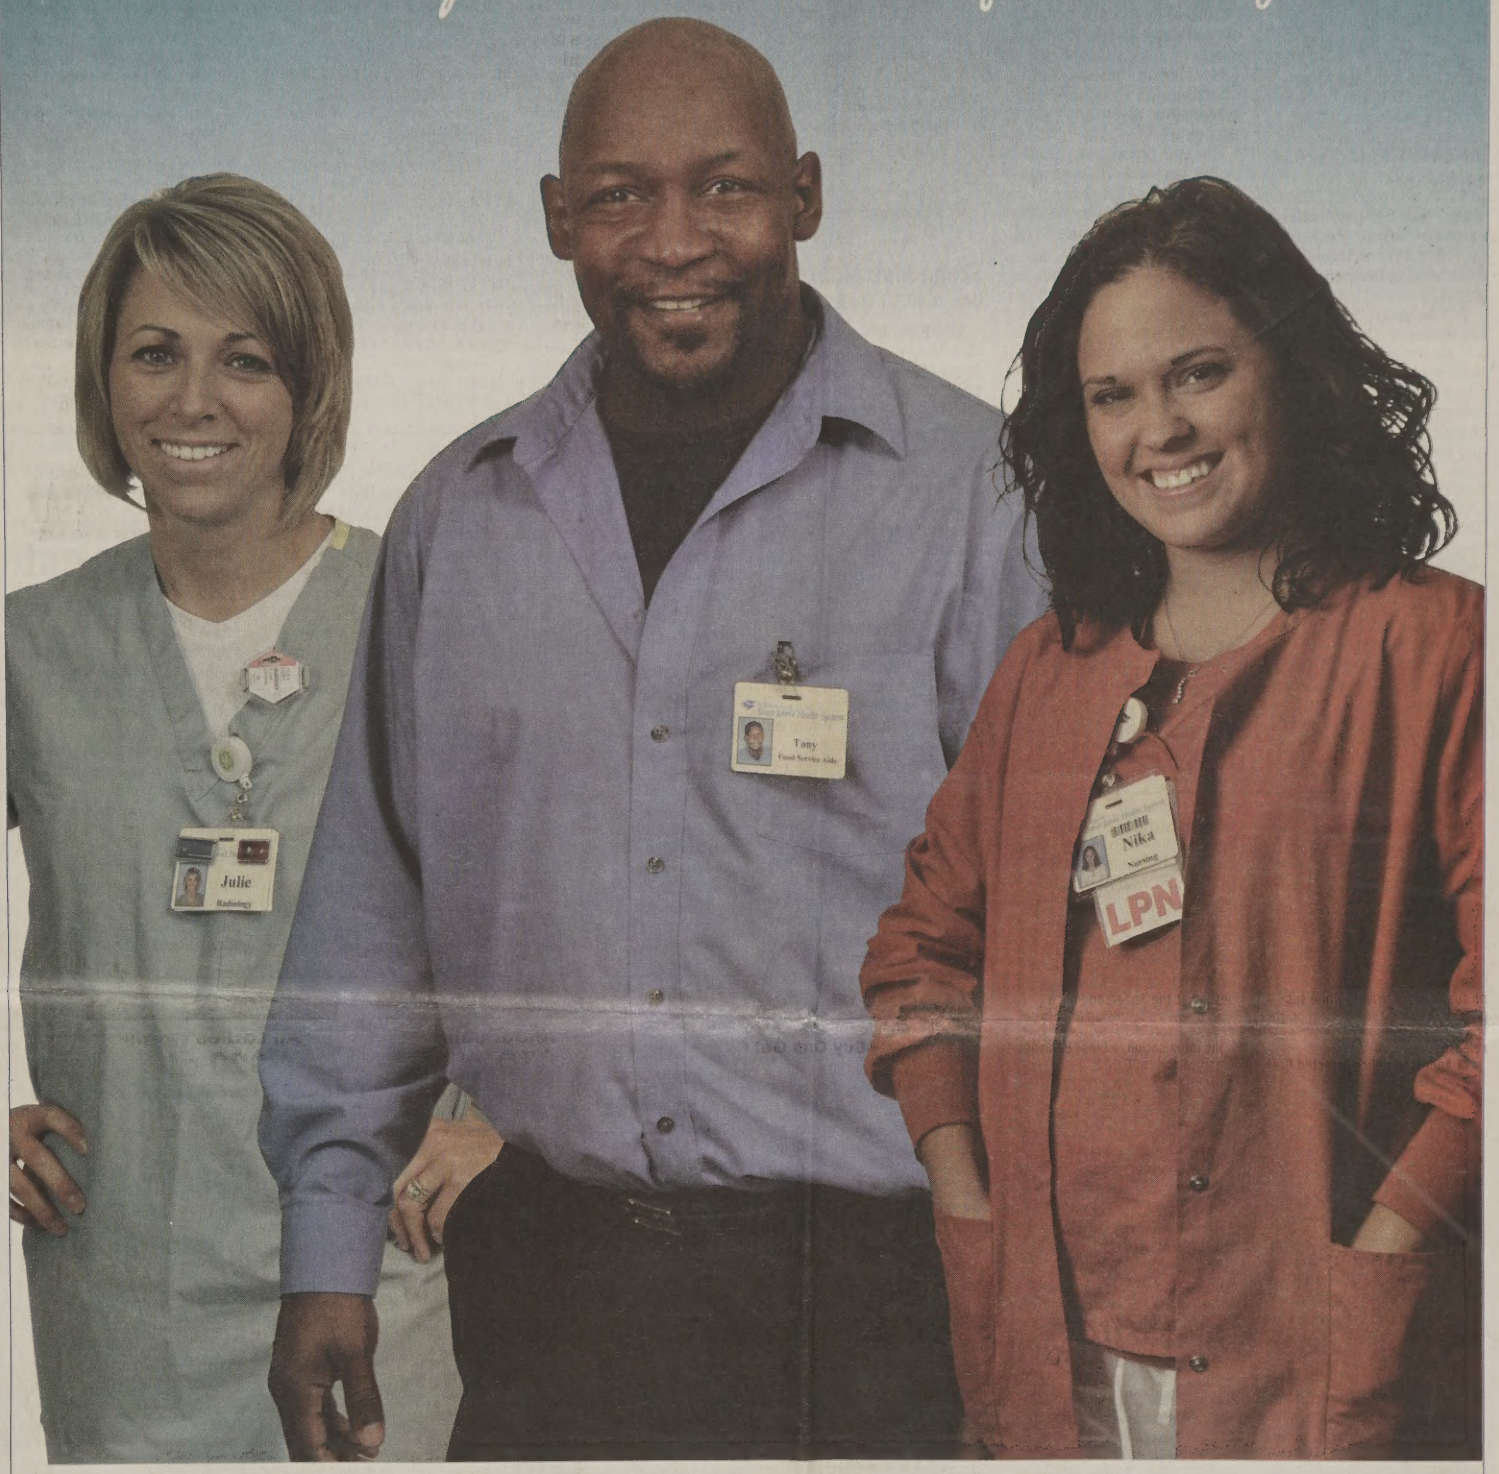
Leadership and Service...

at the heart of Athena and Saint John's Spirit of Caring



Saint John's Health System is proud to support the Character and Community Gala 2008 Athena Award Dinner. The Athena award recognizes leadership and service, two qualities we believe are so important. As Madison County's largest employer, we take seriously our mission to provide quality patient care and our leadership in community service, sponsorship and support. Last year, Saint John's gave over $13-million in charity care and community benefit to residents of Madison County and beyond. It takes all of us working together to make Madison County healthy and strong.

Congratulations to Nancy Pitcock, Saint John's Chief Nursing Officer, on her nomination for the Athena Award.

As a member of St.Vincent Health, central Indiana's largest health care system, we work together with our system partners to provide among the most comprehensive and high quality network of services available in the state.

Church plans to demolish its sanctuary at 925 Ford St., because the cost of repairing the aging building is too high, said Mark Helm, the church pastor. Church leaders are looking for land to build a new sanctuary.

Meanwhile, starting April 27, church members will meet for services in the Lapel High School auditorium.

Members of the congregation have mixed feelings about the move, Helm said. They met Sunday morning for their final church service at the sanctuary.

"There's a lot of sentiment tied into all the experiences people have had here," Helm said. "This is where people have had weddings, funerals, baptisms. It's a sad thing to have to give that place up."

Most church members understand the need to move, Helm said. Problems with the roof were discovered in 2004 and given a temporary fix, which inadvertently added extra weight and stress onto the deteriorating building, which was in danger of collapsing.

This prompted discussion to vacate the sanctuary, according to a church news release.

Church member Donna Bodenhorn said she is sad about the move, but understands the safety reasons behind the evacuation decision.

"I'd rather move than be in a building that can collapse on my head at any moment," she said.

The sanctuary was full as Ford Street United Methodist Church in Lapel held a closing service on Sunday.

Congregation member Deb Wainscott agreed, even though she understands the emotional significance of the sanctuary for many people.

Her 60-year-old husband has been attending services at the sanctuary since he was a kid, and his parents were church members too.

The church was founded in 1890 with 22 members following a tent revival. Church members met in Fishersburg and Lapel schools until 1891, when they built a sanctuary at the current Lapel site. Church leaders rebuilt the sanctuary in 1917.

In 1969, the church constructed the Smith Hall education wing and gymnasium onto its sanctuary. Smith Hall will remain intact after the sanctuary's demolition. This will allow the Ford Street Childcare Ministry to continue without interruption.

Church members formed a building and planning committee after discovering roof problems at the sanctuary in 2004. Their decision to build a new sanctuary at a new site followed countless hours of meetings, feasibility studies, surveys and congregation votes, according to a news release.

"We had to do what was right for the safety of our people," Helm said.

The church is grateful that Lapel High School is opening up its auditorium for the congregation to use, Helm said.

Ford Street United Methodist Church will continue as an important part of the Lapel community, he said.

"I'd rather move than be in a building that can collapse on my head at any moment."

Fire threatens 'Desperate Housewives'

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — It's mayhem on the set of ABC's "Desperate Housewives."

Most of the cast is attempting to flee a crowded nightclub that's slowly catching fire. Thick layers of smoke are quickly filling the room. Flickering flames are streaking up the walls. Pushy extras are hurrying to the nearest exit. And someone is still in the bathroom!

Much like the tornado that ravaged Wisteria Lane last season or the supermarket standoff the year before, the nightclub fire is the buzzed-about sweeps stunt that will engulf Sunday's episode. The blaze appears to have been started by this season's mysterious — and perhaps villainous — new neighbor Dave Williams, played by Neal McDonough.

"I personally don't think my character is a bad guy," McDonough said during a break from filming. "He's just damaged goods. Something happened to him that he just can't come back from. He has to take care of something. It's eating his life away. It's really interesting to explore a character like this, and it makes me feel very fortunate for my life."

Away from their usual Universal Studios street set, the cast have gathered for the scorcher inside Sound Stage 28. Meanwhile, on another part of the back lot, a nightclub facade is being erected that will later be burnt to a crisp. In true sweeps fashion, someone won't survive.

During production of the episode in October, the actor portraying one of those in peril found himself in danger in real life.

Gale Harold, who plays the boyfriend of Teri Hatcher's character, was in a motorcycle accident and fractured his shoulder. Script rewrites were ordered after Harold was admitted to USC Medical Center.

This fire isn't the first to threaten Wisteria Lane's residents. In the series' first episode, Susan Mayer (Hatcher) accidentally burned down the home of Edie Britt (Nicollette Sheridan), who retaliated in the second season by lighting up Mayer's place. In the fourth season, the naughty twin sons of Lynette Scavo (Felicity Huffman) confessed to an arson.

Is series creator Marc Cherry a closeted pyromaniac?

"Not at all," he says over lunch with Huffman a few days later. "I just like putting people in jeopardy."

Kanye West says he's 'voice of this generation'

The Associated Press

LONDON — Kanye West is to music what Michael Jordan was to basketball — at least that West thinks, in his humble estimation.

"I realize that my place and position in history is that I will go down as the voice of this generation, of this decade, I will be the loudest voice," he said in an interview on Wednesday. "It's me settling into that position of just really accepting that it's one thing to say you want to do it and it's another thing to really end up being like Michael Jordan."

The Grammy-winning rapper-producer said Justin Timberlake had a chance to be music's MVP, but hasn't put out enough material. (Timberlake's last album was in 2006, while West released a CD last year and is releasing his latest — "808s and Heartbreak" — on Nov. 24.)

Congregation bids farewell to sanctuary

Church services moving to Lapel school auditorium

The sanctuary was full as Ford Street United Methodist Church in Lapel held a closing service on Sunday.

LAPEL — A local church congregation needs to move out of its nearly 100-year-old sanctuary before it literally crumbles down around them.

Ford Street United Methodist Church plans to demolish its sanctuary at 925 Ford St., because the cost of repairing the aging building is too high, said Mark Helm, the church pastor. Church leaders are looking for land to build a new sanctuary.

Meanwhile, starting April 27, church members will meet for services in the Lapel High School auditorium.

Members of the congregation have mixed feelings about the move, Helm said. They met Sunday morning for their final church service at the sanctuary.

"There's a lot of sentiment tied into all the experiences people have had here," Helm said. "This is where people have had weddings, funerals, baptisms. It's a sad thing to have to give that place up."

Most church members understand the need to move, Helm said. Problems with the roof were discovered in 2004 and given a temporary fix, which inadvertently added extra weight and stress onto the deteriorating building, which was in danger of collapsing.

This prompted discussion to vacate the sanctuary, according to a church news release.

Church member Donna Bodenhorn said she is sad about the move, but understands the safety reasons behind the evacuation decision.

"I'd rather move than be in a building that can collapse on my head at any moment," she said.

Congregation member Deb Wainscott agreed, even though she understands the emotional significance of the sanctuary for many people.

Her 60-year-old husband has been attending services at the sanctuary since he was a kid, and his parents were church members too.

The church was founded in 1890 with 22 members following a tent revival. Church members met in Fishersburg and Lapel schools until 1891, when they built a sanctuary at the current Lapel site. Church leaders rebuilt the sanctuary in 1917.

In 1969, the church constructed the Smith Hall education wing and gymnasium onto its sanctuary. Smith Hall will remain intact after the sanctuary's demolition. This will allow the Ford Street Childcare Ministry to continue without interruption.

Church members formed a building and planning committee after discovering roof problems at the sanctuary in 2004. Their decision to build a new sanctuary at a new site followed countless hours of meetings, feasibility studies, surveys and congregation votes, according to a news release.

"We had to do what was right for the safety of our people," Helm said.

The church is grateful that Lapel High School is opening up its auditorium for the congregation to use, Helm said.

Ford Street United Methodist Church will continue as an important part of the Lapel community, he said.

"I'd rather move than be in a building that can collapse on my head at any moment."

New program offers education opportunities

For The Herald Bulletin

The English as a New Language (ENL) program is now able to provide students with an ENL license, training educators to assist English language learners in the classroom. Through the federal National Professional Development grant, the ENL program at Anderson University is able to offer ENL licensing and professional development to education students and practitioners.

The ENL program helps educators serve the needs of English language learners, gain cross-cultural understanding and experience hybrid classes with face-to-face and online work.

The program offers courses at master's level which can be used toward M.A. in curriculum and instruction available through the School of Education, courses at undergraduate level for teacher candidates wishing to add ENL certification, and certification opportunities for licensed Indiana teachers who wish to add ENL.

Program director Donna Albrecht said in a press release, "It's unique to have an undergraduate program with a dual license."

Courses include Principles of Language Acquisition, Instructional and Material Design for Teaching English as a New Language, and Differentiating Instruction for the LEP Student in the Content Classroom.

"New teachers often face a challenge in teaching LEP students," said assistant to the director Ryan Weiss. "We give teachers the tools and instruments to overcome these obstacles."

In addition to licensing, the ENL program at AU also offers professional development to content/classroom teachers, ENL teachers, paraprofessionals, volunteers and service organizations working with English language learners.

The ENL Professional Development Academy offers training in Sheltered Instruction approaches, often referring to SIOP (Sheltered Instruction Observation Protocol).

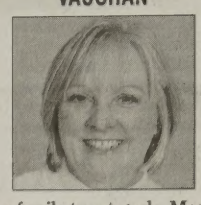
"This method bridges the gap between lower level English proficiency and grade level content standards," said Albrecht. "We help educators bring content standards to students' language levels. We help them adapt lesson plans, material and assessments to meet their needs."

According to a Department of Education report, the ESL population in Anderson has increased from seven students in 1991-1992 to 171 at the end of the 2006-2007 year. Indiana has one of the fastest growth rates of ESL students in the country.

The ENL Professional Development Academy services schools in Anderson, Alexandria, Elwood and St. Mary's and the International School of Indianapolis.

Child abuse prevention is daily focus

NANCY VAUGHAN



"I wanted to do some kind of mission work or work with people, but I didn't know what it was called," Stephanie Janson recalled one afternoon last week. She continued her story from her high school days in Kokomo. There was a job shadow experience and she described her dilemma to a teacher. "It's called social work," replied the teacher.

Thus, Stephanie had a name for her life's work.

Today, Stephanie is one of four case managers for Children's Bureau/Exchange Club Family Resource Center's Any Child program, with a caseload of 14 families that she visits one to two hours each week. Some families are referred to the program by the Department of Child Services (DCS); others are self-referred, assisted by funding from United Way and from community support, including this weekend's Bids for Kids television auction.

Stephanie describes her first experience with the center, as an Anderson University intern, her subsequent work as an employee of DCS, and a calling to spend 18 months in Mississippi helping the victims of Katrina. During that time, she kept in touch with center director Jama Donovan and was ready to go to work upon her return.

Her daily tasks may include supervising a visit between a child and parent who has lost custody, or helping a client navigate forms to rent an apartment, or advocating on the client's behalf with the apartment management, of joining a team meeting with a family and DCS to discuss issues, needs and goals. Of course, there are always reports to complete. Stephanie has the unique advantage of having worked for both DCS and Children's Bureau. "I see DCS as the overseer and my work here as implementation," she said.

Although she enjoys both roles, the work schedule of the nonprofit is more appealing to her at this point in her life. She began as part-time staff, but moved to full time recently. Keeping busy will help her through her husband's deployment next month to Iraq, where he will serve as a medic with the U.S. Army.

Her first task with any assignment is to work with the family to set goals. Most of her work is done in client homes. "I'm on their turf and most of the time, they're not sure they want me there," she noted, but added that she has never been fearful. "I feel if you're open and honest and meet people where they're at, you don't have to be afraid." Her attitude is key to building rapport with families. The other bonus — for everyone — is her wholehearted love for the children. In fact, Stephanie spends a lot of time away from her job with children as the children's minister for her church. She is also an enthusiastic baby sitter for family and friends. "Kids are so fun and carefree," she exclaimed.

Of course, the work is not always fun and games. "The hardest part is seeing parents who aren't driven to better themselves because I see that the kids want to be with them." Poor choices — frequently compounded by substance abuse — and lack of a support structure are the most common contributors to situations requiring intervention on behalf of children. Stephanie sees a lot of people who feel hopeless. She recalled a conversation with a client who made the painful decision to give up her child for adoption. "I really encouraged her because she had done what was best for her child, and she said I was the only person who was at all encouraging."

Throughout the month of April, events call attention to the issue of child abuse and neglect in our communities. The Bids for Kids auction, broadcast Friday evening and all day Saturday on cable Channel 3, calls attention to the issue and raises funds to help support programs such as Any Child, that bring a ray of hope to children in the form of a loving advocate such as Stephanie.

Fund

The group examined the trust fund balances for all 50 states as of Sept. 30 compared with their average monthly benefit payments over the past 12 months. States with only enough cash to pay benefits for three months or less were deemed insolvent.

Indiana had $91 million in the bank, with average monthly benefits of $66 million, the report said.

"It is particularly troubling that so many states are facing insolvency so early in this economic downturn," the report said.

Officials at the Indiana Department of Workforce Development don't argue that the state's trust fund is in trouble, but they point out the report is just a snapshot in time and doesn't take into account money coming in now from employers who had payments due at the end of October.

The current balance of the fund is $58 million.

Rep. Randy Borror, R-Fort Wayne, said it likely will be a contentious topic for lawmakers in January. Although the options seem simple — reduce benefits or raise taxes on businesses — there are many ways within the system to achieve both.

For instance, legislators could limit who is eligible for unemployment rather than cutting the maximum weekly benefit of $390. Or the General Assembly could raise the taxable wage base on which employers pay. Indiana is at the federal minimum of $7,000 while the national average in 2007 was $13,855.

Food

family's food needs, and what the Obamas eat in their hometown of Chicago offers a hint at what might be served at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. At the White House now, Tex-Mex and barbecue are among the favorites of President George W. Bush.

At Bayless' restaurant, Obama and his wife, Michelle, usually begin their meals with tortilla soup and guacamole as starters, followed by something from a changing seasonal menu to reflect the freshest fare.

The Obamas aren't teetotalers, partaking of the restaurant's margaritas and wine.

"They never turn a nose up at anything we suggest to them," said Bayless, whose Frontera Grill was named outstanding restaurant by the James Beard Foundation last year.

Obama's familiarity with finer foods got him in a bit of trouble during the presidential campaign. He was talking to Iowa farmers to show he understood their plight when he mentioned the high cost of a boutique salad green.

"Anybody gone into Whole Foods lately and see what they charge for arugula?" Obama said, referring to a high-end food chain loaded with organic products. "I mean, they're charging a lot of money for this stuff."

Critics latched on to the comment, painting him as elitist.

But it's not just fancy dining the Obamas like. They enjoy takeout from a neighborhood pizza joint and an island-inspired restaurant not far from their home where Michelle Obama fancies the grilled tilapia.

"She enjoys her food but tries to eat healthy as well," said close family friend Sandy Matthews.

The incoming president's taste in food can also be simple. In response to an Associated Press survey of all the primary candidates, Obama listed chili as his favorite food to cook.

But on the campaign trail, he proved himself a picky and healthy eater with an aide-assisted diet managed to prevent Obama from packing on the presidential pounds.

Pie made its way into Obama's stump speech late in the campaign when he began telling an anecdote about stopping at an Ohio diner and talking to the owner about hard economic times while enjoying a slice of coconut cream pie.

"It was tasty pie," Obama would often recall.

New program offers education opportunities

For The Herald Bulletin

The English as a New Language (ENL) program is now able to provide students with an ENL license, training educators to assist English language learners in the classroom. Through the federal National Professional Development grant, the ENL program at Anderson University is able to offer ENL licensing and professional development to education students and practitioners.

The ENL program helps educators serve the needs of English language learners, gain cross-cultural understanding and experience hybrid classes with face-to-face and online work.

The program offers courses at master's level which can be used toward M.A. in curriculum and instruction available through the School of Education, courses at undergraduate level for teacher candidates wishing to add ENL certification, and certification opportunities for licensed Indiana teachers who wish to add ENL.

Program director Donna Albrecht said in a press release, "It's unique to have an undergraduate program with a dual license."

Courses include Principles of Language Acquisition, Instructional and Material Design for Teaching English as a New Language, and Differentiating Instruction for the LEP Student in the Content Classroom.

"New teachers often face a challenge in teaching LEP students," said assistant to the director Ryan Weiss. "We give teachers the tools and instruments to overcome these obstacles."

In addition to licensing, the ENL program at AU also offers professional development to content/classroom teachers, ENL teachers, paraprofessionals, volunteers and service organizations working with English language learners.

The ENL Professional Development Academy offers training in Sheltered Instruction approaches, often referring to SIOP (Sheltered Instruction Observation Protocol).

"This method bridges the gap between lower level English proficiency and grade level content standards," said Albrecht. "We help educators bring content standards to students' language levels. We help them adapt lesson plans, material and assessments to meet their needs."

According to a Department of Education report, the ESL population in Anderson has increased from seven students in 1991-1992 to 171 at the end of the 2006-2007 year. Indiana has one of the fastest growth rates of ESL students in the country.

The ENL Professional Development Academy services schools in Anderson, Alexandria, Elwood and St. Mary's and the International School of Indianapolis.

OUR VIEW

Thumbs up, thumbs down

Thumbs up: To the Indiana Blood Center for being first in implementing donor fingerprint scan identification. Social Security numbers will be removed from the donor records and the images will not be stored on computers that scan the fingerprint. This should alleviate some concerns about security of personal information.

Thumbs up: To the organizers of the Gourmet Sampler, now in its 24th year raising money for the Special Olympics.

Thumbs up: To Rhonda Estes for her efforts to raise money and awareness for the Madison County Humane Society. She hopes to raise $10,000 between April 11 and May 7 in her lockup at the nonprofit shelter.

Thumbs up: To all the teams that played in the Nick Muller Memorial Baseball Tournament, which was won by Pendleton Heights High School in the title game against defending champion Anderson High, 4-2. The eighth annual April tournament, which encountered rain delays and cancellations of the three consolation games, raised funds for the Indiana Organ Procurement Organization, the Nick Muller Memorial Scholarship and the Anderson High School D.O.A.G., which was formed by Josh Muller, Nick's brother, to enlighten youth and adults about the benefits of organ donation. Nick Muller, an Anderson High School baseball player, had expressed his wish to be an organ donor before his untimely death in an automobile crash in 2000.

Thumbs up: To the owners of the Alex Theatre, Terina Ball and Christy Bashum of Elwood, who vow to keep the movie tickets and concessions prices low for families. The "crying room" is still being used for that — where mothers can take noisy children to avoid disrupting the rest of the theater. The movies are second-run, but the timeliness doesn't matter if you haven't yet seen the movie on a big screen. Many of today's youth are missing out on the magic of the big-screen experience because of the cost to take out the whole family. The theater at Alexandria offers that opportunity.

Thumbs up: To Madison County's three community bands at Lapel, Alexandria and Anderson University that offer an outlet for area musicians who play some of our favorite tunes from the past.

Thumbs up: To Highland boys and Pendleton Heights girls for winning their titles in their respective Madison County Track and Field meets held at Madison-Grant High School on April 11.

Thumbs up: To Pendleton Heights High School's girls team for claiming the Madison County Softball Championship, with wins April 11 over Highland in the semifinals and Frankton in the finals.

Thumbs up: To the Anderson University students in the Falls School of Business Students in Free Enterprise (SIFE) who won the regional championship recently in Cincinnati. The team also received top awards for the individual competitions of Business Ethics, Entrepreneurship and Sustainability by ranking in the top 20 in each topic, making this the team's best year. Stacey Jaracz, president of SIFE, voiced pleasure that other teams check out the AU group: "They view us as a model of how they should run their teams. We're proud of that."

Thumbs up: To the Center for Mental Health, which has been providing valuable service to the residents of Madison County for 40 years. The anniversary was celebrated Thursday morning during the Wake Up Breakfast of the Chamber of Commerce for Anderson & Madison County.

"EHH, WHAT'S UP, HIL?"

In praise of criticism in a modern world

KATHLEEN PARKER

Pope Benedict XVI's visit to the U.S. has afforded the American media and others an opportunity to remind us that the Catholic Church is "out of step" with modern times.

That is both a criticism and compliment – praising with faint damnation.

What exactly about modern times would compel a pope to change his institutional mind about the fundamental belief in, say, the dignity of all human life?

The central life issue is, of course, abortion, about which even a majority of American Catholics (58 percent) differ from the church's view. Other related concerns include embryo-destructive research, cloning and assisted suicide.

The Catholic Church persists in opposing all of the above, insisting that life begins at conception, all life has value, no human being has the right to terminate the life of another. Case closed.

And, really, who would insist otherwise? In the abstract, few. In practice, millions.

Though we know that life biologically begins at conception, we've decided to disagree about when that life becomes "human."

And, though we sort of believe that all life has value, our actions suggest that we think imperfect life has less value. Increasingly, Down syndrome babies today are terminated, for instance.

If we quantify human life only according to productivity, then imperfect life inarguably is less valuable. But is it less human? Nazi eugenicists thought so. But measuring productivity requires a detached calculation – and, inevitably, bureaucratic enforcement – that defines inhuman.

This is not, by the way, a judgment of people who have made difficult choices. None of us really knows which path we would take until presented with the intersection that forces such contemplations.

Finally, all agree that no human being has the right to take another's life except in self-defense. Since most abortions are for reasons other than the mother's health, our current practices are possible only if the unborn are considered "not human."

Keeping that definition alive is the trick. Human or not? Who decides?

A majority of Americans are comfortable with the view that a woman, her doctor and her God should decide. But what if there were irrefutable proof that a fetus at conception is fully human? Would we then feel that government has a role in protecting unborn life?

These questions are especially tricky for Catholics. For those who side with the pope, the answer is clear: If life is a gift of the creator, then only the creator can be the ultimate arbiter of conception (though the church does allow for limiting and spacing babies on the basis of informed conscience, just not through artificial means).

To believe in God's autonomy over human life, however, is a hard sell. How does one justify creating more mouths when so many can't be fed? My own Catholic grandmother, the youngest of 11 children, was handed over to the nuns at age 4 when her family could no longer feed her.

And yet, the nuns did feed my grandmother. And she did manage to grow up and marry and create my father, who then created me. So.

Pro-choice arguments are, nonetheless, compelling. Privacy from government intrusion, yes. Women's autonomy over their own bodies, yes. All children wanted, well, of course. But none of those testaments to logic alters the essential truth that life begins when egg and sperm commingle and that every one of us was at that far end of the life continuum before we were able to dabble in ethics and trifle with electronic keyboards.

The question is how we reconcile what is true with what is merely convenient? That we might choose a path other than the pope's is the prerogative of a free people — and no one recognizes that freedom with greater consistency than this pope. No one has to be Catholic.

But to ask Benedict to change the church's rules to suit modern appetites and lifestyles is to ask that he forsake the sanctity of human life for the benefit of earthly delights. Those are not his concerns.

Even for non-Catholics like me, there's something comforting about a stubborn pope in a world of moral relativity. Like a strong father, he ignores his children's pleas for leniency knowing that his rules, though tough, serve a higher purpose.

If Benedict were to relent and compromise the value of human life, what would be left to debate? Perhaps only one's own time to die. And then ...

Who decides?

Is outsourcing also a danger to Japan?

WALTER WILLIAMS

Presidential candidates Hillary Clinton and Barack Obama, pandering to anti-trade activists, suggest that should they become president, they will restrict trade agreements. Before you buy into their promised paradise, there are a few trade questions you might consider.

Suppose you were choosing a country to live in. Which country would you prefer: a country that has the world champing at the bit to put its money into or one where the world is unwilling to invest? Let's look at the numbers.

The United States is the world's largest recipient of foreign direct investment. According to the Economic Report of the President, in 2004, foreigners owned $5.5 trillion in U.S. assets and had $2.3 trillion in sales. They produced $515 billion of goods and services, accounting for 5.7 percent of total U.S. private output, and employed 5.1 million workers, or 4.7 percent of the U.S. workforce in 2004. According to the Congressional Research Service, in 2006 alone, foreign investors spent $184 billion investing in U.S. businesses and real estate, the highest amount foreign investors have spent since 2000. My question to Clinton, Obama and the anti-trade lobby is, would Americans be better off if there were no foreign investment in our country?

According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, between 1996 and 2006, about 15 million jobs were lost and 17 million created each year. That's an annual net creation of 2 million jobs. Roughly 3 percent of the jobs lost were a result of foreign competition. Most were lost because of technology, domestic competition and changes in consumer tastes.

Some of the gain in jobs is a result of "insourcing." Foreign companies, such as Nissan, Honda, Nokia and Novartis, set up plants, hire American workers and pay them wages higher than the national average. According to Dartmouth College professor Matthew Slaughter, "insourced" jobs paid a salary 32 percent higher than the average U.S. salary. So here's my question to anti-traders: If "outsourcing" is harmful to the U.S., it must also be harmful to European countries and Japan; would you advise them to take their jobs back home?

Wal-Mart has become the whipping boy for political demagogues, unions and anti-traders. I suggest that they have the wrong target. The correct target is revealed by answering the question: "Why does Wal-Mart exist and prosper?" Wal-Mart exists and prospers because tens of millions of Americans find Wal-Mart to be a suitable source of goods and services. Clinton, Obama, unions and anti-traders should direct their outrage and condemnation at the tens of millions of Americans who shop at Wal-Mart and keep it in business.

There's great angst over the loss of manufacturing jobs. The number of U.S. manufacturing jobs has fallen, and it's mainly a result of technological innovation, and it's a worldwide phenomenon. Daniel W. Drezner, professor of political science at the University of Chicago, in "The Outsourcing Bogeyman" (Foreign Affairs, May/June 2004), notes that U.S. manufacturing employment between 1995 and 2002 fell by 11 percent. Globally, manufacturing job loss averaged 11 percent. China lost 15 percent of its manufacturing jobs, 4.5 million manufacturing jobs compared with the loss of 3.1 million in the U.S. Job loss is the trend among the top 10 manufacturing countries who produce 75 percent of the world's manufacturing output (the U.S., Japan, Germany, China, Britain, France, Italy, Korea, Canada and Mexico).

But guess what – globally, manufacturing output rose by 30 percent during the same period. According to research by the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis, U.S. manufacturing output increased by 100 percent between 1987 and today. Technological progress and innovation is the primary cause for the decrease in manufacturing jobs. Should we save manufacturing jobs by outlawing labor-saving equipment and technology?

Economist Joseph Schumpeter referred to this process witnessed in market economies as "creative destruction," where technology, innovation and trade destroy some jobs while creating others. While the process works hardships on some people, any attempt to impede the process will make all of us worse off.

Walter E. Williams is a professor of economics at George Mason University. He may be reached by writing to him at Creators Syndicate, 5777 W. Century Blvd., No. 700, Los Angeles, CA 90045.

Pleasant Valley Cemetery

Home Up

aka Pleasant View/Valentine

Green Township

Location: northwest corner of SR 38 and CR 625W

Pleasant Valley Cemetery is located on a corner of land donated in 1857 by William A. Williamson. He and his family n be found here in a family section. The cemetery became the burial ground for the Pleasant Valley Church. This urch began a number of years before the cemetery--in 1841 when it was formed by Elder Donaldson. The first terment was the young daughter of Martha and John Ford; she died March 30, 1858. The second interment was the rds' son, William E., who died September 30, 1858. The parents are here with their children.

This view of Pleasant Valley Cemetery is taken from SR 38 looking northeast.

Lowery Cemetery Listing

Fall Creek Township – Hamilton County, Indiana

Prepared by

Judy Mehaffey

June 21, 2001

Lowery Cemetery

County of Cemetery: Hamilton County, Indiana

Earliest Burial Date Found: 1830

Number of Graves Listed: 206

Nearest Towns: Lowery Cemetery is located about 3.8 miles from Fishers and approximately 5 miles from Noblesville.

Location Description: Intersection 136th Street and Promise Road

Source and details of listing:

In 1949-50 Dr. Earl Brooks recorded all the cemeteries in Fall Creek Township. Many of the stones he recorded have deteriorated and can longer be read. His records are used as the primary source for this listing. In 1984, Patricia B. Gibbs of Noblesville, IN alphabetized and indexed Dr. Brooks' records making them less cumbersome to use. Using this index, I walked the cemetery and added any information not originally listed.

Many of the headstones list only the death date and age at the time of death. In this case, I calculated the birth date and included the result in my list. The cemetery is very well kept and is still in use today.

About FamilySearch Pedigree Resource File:
The Pedigree Resource File is a new lineage linked database of records available on compact disc containing family history records submitted by individuals through FamilySearch Internet Genealogy Service. Family information is organized in family groups and pedigrees and includes submitted notes and sources. Many charts and reports can be printed from this data. Each disc contains about 1.1 million names. With the publication of every five discs, a master index for those discs will be published and packaged with that set of discs. With the publication of every 25 discs, a master index for those discs will also be published and packaged with that volume of discs. Discs may be purchased as sets or volumes.

Please Note:
Submitter information is provided to help in the coordination of personal family history research. Use of this information for any other purpose, including marketing, advertising, or commercial solicitation, is strictly prohibited.

Court decision

Last we knew: Madison County Circuit Court Judge Fredrick Spencer is considering whether to dismiss charges against Rex D. Delph, who is accused of killing his wife and son. Spencer has been considering a defense's motion that the prosecution has not shared evidence collected at the scene in a timely manner.

The latest: Delph's trial, which was expected to begin today, has been delayed.

What's next: A decision is expected today by Spencer on whether or not the charges will be dropped.

Delph

Court decision

Last we knew: Madison County Circuit Court Judge Fredrick Spencer is considering whether to dismiss charges against Rex D. Delph, who is accused of killing his wife and son. Spencer has been considering a defense's motion that the prosecution has not shared evidence collected at the scene in a timely manner.

The latest: Delph's trial, which was expected to begin today, has been delayed.

What's next: A decision is expected today by Spencer on whether or not the charges will be dropped.

IRAQ

Last we knew: The Americans have struggled for 44 months to put in place a democratic and multi-sectarian and multiethnic government that would embrace the Sunni and Kurdish minorities, even if dominated by the Shiite majority.

Latest: Suspected Shiite militiamen dressed as Interior Ministry commandos stormed a Higher Education Ministry office Tuesday and kidnapped dozens of people after clearing the area under the guise of providing security for what they claimed would be a visit by the U.S. ambassador.

What's next: There were varying estimates of the number of people kidnapped, but it appeared that at least 50 were seized – one of the largest mass abductions in Iraq. Authorities said as many as 20 were later released, but said a broadcast report that most hostages were freed appeared to be false. The assault came on a day that saw at least 117 people die in the mounting disorder and violence gripping the country.

ETHANOL PLANT GETS GO-AHEAD; COMMISSIONERS TO REVIEW REQUEST

Planning Commission chairman Bill Maxwell asks a question about an item related to the proposed ethanol plant near Alexandria. The planning commission approved the request for rezoning 253 acres.

Ethanol deserves an opportunity. That was the message sent by the Madison County Planning Commission on Tuesday as it recommended that 253 acres in rural Monroe Township be rezoned for a proposed ethanol production plant. The matter will come before the Madison County Board of Commissioners on Nov. 21.

"We cannot move forward unless this is rezoned," said planning commission member Paul Wilson. "If we don't move forward, the investment of money, the jobs will all go away. I'm confident that if we rezone we can make it work for everybody."

Around 120 people attended the meeting and the crowd spilled out the door of the Commissioners Court at the Madison County Government Center and into the hallway. Dozens of people remained standing for hours as the planning commission heard new testimony from more than 30 speakers.

ATHENA AWARD

A sweet night for visionary recipient

BY MARK OLEJNICZAK

Mary Starkey was named the 2006 Athena award winner for Madison County for being a multi-dimensional woman.

A crowd of close to 200 attended this year's Athena award dinner at the Anderson Country Club Tuesday night. The special guest speaker for this year's Athena gala was Lt. Gov. Becky Skillman.

Starkey was chosen from a list of 16 finalists who have all made their mark in Madison County. She received the highest number of nominations and is viewed by many in the community as a true visionary for her work bringing the $359 million Nestle factory and distribution center to Anderson.

"It was great to just be nominated for Athena," Starkey pointed out. "To be included in a group of women who have accomplished so much in the

Mayor advocates revision of U.S. trade policy

Mayor Kevin Smith said Tuesday he's "betting" a Chinese company will visit Anderson within the next year.

"I can't say we'll receive a visit for sure," he said. "But I'm betting we'll have one within 12 months."

Smith spoke to a small crowd at the City Council Chambers for his year-long, wrap-up speech, an event sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Anderson.

Smith and his trade group focused on attracting lighting and heavy duty equipment manufacturing companies to Anderson. The group left for the $30,000 trip on Nov. 1 and returned on Nov. 9. Smith said he'd like to go back within the next year.

Smith talked of the group's visiting to a company called Yun shing, a company that makes everything from music box parts to

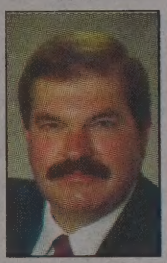
MADISON COUNTY COMMISSIONER SOUTH DISTRICT

Name: Paul F. Wilson
Age: 53
Party Affiliation: Democrat
Office Sought: South District county commissioner



Education: Graduate Pendleton Heights High School; attended Ball State University; graduate Indiana Law Enforcement Academy, including Indiana Certified Chief of Police Administration; certified law enforcement instructor; fire service training, including certification as an emergency medical technician and numerous public administration seminars and workshops.

Occupation: Retired police officer — currently county commissioner

Why should a voter support you?

I have working knowledge of county and municipal government, working knowledge of all parts of Madison County, both rural and urban, an understanding of the duties of a county commissioner and a lifetime in public safety. I believe I have, through my life experiences, the ability to contribute to county government administration. The commissioner's office is charged with many duties, not the least of which is making sure the county's infrastructure is safe. I have spent my whole career working to make the community a safer place, first through law enforcement and now through the commissioner's office. As the county works through difficult economic times, it is imperative to find ways to keep the county's infrastructure safe. All this while keeping in mind both senior citizens who are on a fixed income as well as those young people who will need safe infrastructure for years to come.

What changes will you make in that position, if elected?

I will continue to work to improve the following: Improving the economic situation in this county; maintaining the county infrastructure, including safe roads and bridges; working with state government to prevent any additional state financial restructuring that places additional burdens on the Madison County property tax payer.

What distinguishes you from your opponent?

I do not know my opponent very well. I have listed above some of what I believe to be my attributes and goals. In fairness to my opponent, he should list his own.

Board approves zoning variances

By JUSTIN SCHNEIDER
justin.schneider@heraldbulletin.com

Broin Companies may not conform to the county building code when it creates Ultimate Ethanol LLC, but it will heed the wishes of county officials.

On Tuesday, the Madison County Board of Zoning Appeals unanimously approved five variances for a proposed ethanol plant near Alexandria. Earlier in the day, the Madison County Planning Commission recommended that 253 acres in rural Monroe Township be rezoned from agricultural to general industrial to allow the creation of a $105 million facility.

The plant will not adhere to county guidelines for landscaping, street trees, sidewalks, buffer yard and height requirements. But BZA members made it clear that Broin will play by their rules.

Attorney Ron Fowler, representing residents Ron and Marcia Parker, said his clients are counting on landscaping to shield them from noise and light.

"This will destroy their property by undressing it," Fowler said. "How much will it cost (Broin)? Maybe $8,000, $10,000 or $12,000? The Parkers stand to lose a quarter-million dollar piece of property."

The BZA approved a variance of landscaping inside the site, but with a stipulation that significant wooded areas remain. It also approved relief of sidewalk requirements unless the area becomes significantly developed.

"If the area ever builds up, you are required to run sidewalks down to the corner," said board member Bill Maxwell.

Broin asked the BZA to allow a buffer yard of 30 feet from the road. The board complied, but under the condition that Broin extend its berm — an earthen mound lined with trees — along County Road 100 East.

"I can live with the 30-foot spacing on the trees, but I would like you to extend the berm to the woods with the exception of the entrance," board member William Hobbs said. "I'm not trying to hide your facility, but I don't live out there and these people do."

The BZA also approved relief of at least one street tree every 40 feet and extended its maximum height to 150 feet to accommodate a tower expected to rise 136.5 feet.

Last month, Broin withdrew three other requests for zoning variance.

Plans will now go to Madison County's technical review committee. Rezoning is contingent on approval by the Madison County Board of Commissioners.

Ethanol

On Oct. 4, Broin Companies announced its intention to build a $105 million ethanol production plant near Alexandria. Last month, the planning commission voted to table the matter until its November meeting to allow county officials and citizens to collect more information.

"What we've done, at the request of the board, is increase communication with the neighbors," said Brian Minish, vice president of Ultimate Ethanol, LLC. "We held a community meeting for the immediate neighbors, many of whom signed up for a bus tour to our plant in Caro, Mich."

The issue has divided a community badly in need of economic development, yet wishes to retain its rural character. Many in attendance wore stickers bearing the slogan "Yes, invest," but the loudest applause seemed to follow opponents of the plant.

"All I can see in my future is losing everything I have," said Ron Parker, who lives across County Road 1300 North from the site. "Everyone seems to benefit from this put the Parkers. (Broin gets) the ethanol and makes a lot of money, (landowner) Max Bingham makes a lot of money, the county makes a lot of money, maybe even the city of Alexandria makes a lot of money."

Attorney Ron Fowler, representing the Parkers, said approving the zoning request would go against Madison County's own comprehensive plan.

"The site was never intended to become industrial," Fowler said. "You call this a farm-related industry, but it's not a farm site, it's an industrial site."

Revisions to the site plan have moved two 2-million gallon ethanol tanks closer to Parker's home, but other changes have been made to appease the neighbors.

Broin has altered its site plan to include a 4-foot berm, with 6-foot evergreen trees. The company has yet to reach an agreement on water service, but Minish said three offers from municipal providers (the city of Alexandria, South Madison Utilities and Indiana America Water) are under consideration.

Mary Starkey, director of the Madison County Corporation for Economic Development, called Broin a leader in the ethanol industry with the experience of 29 plants.

"The overriding question is: Do you want economic development in Madison County?" Starkey said. "This is a $105 million investment in the county, it will raise corn prices for the first time since World War II, and it will bring employment to 40 families."

On Nov. 9, 16 area residents accepted an invitation to visit Broin's Michigan Ethanol plant in Caro, Mich. Many related their experiences on Tuesday.

"I work at a stamping plant, so I know noise," said Dan Brown of Alexandria. "The noise consumes you, you can hear your pulse in (the plant)."

But another resident, Theresa Petty, said the plant was far from offensive.

"It smelled like baking bread," Petty said. "The noise was predominant inside the plant, but as you walked away the noise was reduced. Broin is a good company and I think they would be a good addition to our community."

Erin Heupel, environmental engineer for Broin, sought to reassure officials of emission standards.

Last year, she said, Michigan Ethanol emitted 50 tons of regulated contaminants. By comparison a large commercial bakery in St. Paul, Minn. emitted 65 tons and a commercial candy maker in Chicago emitted 75 tons.

"Just because the standard is 100 tons for year doesn't mean that 99.9 tons is what we strive for," she said. "Why would we let ethanol go out into the air? We want to capture it."

Heupel reiterated that water used in the production would not be discharged, although the Alexandria plant would discharge around 200 gallons per minute when the plant is up and running.

Jeremy Van Erman, planning commissioner and building commissioner for the city of Alexandria, said the response to Broin's interest in Madison County will set a precedent and establish a reputation for years to come.

"The whole state is going to be looking at how we deal with industry, how we bring in business," said Van Erman. "If industry comes to town, we need to have a plan in place."

At least one party, Julie Davidson of Elwood, felt some planning commission members should not be making any decision at all.

"It's my duty as an attorney to express what I feel is a conflict of interest," Davidson said. "If a planning commission member has a direct or indirect interest in the matter, he must remove himself from the proceedings."

Planning Commission Attorney Gerald Shine read the state statute regarding conflict of interest. Direct interest is very clear, but "indirect interest" is rather vague and Shine said the board members should use their own discretion.

"If I sell my corn to the nearest elevator and they sell it to Broin, is that an indirect interest?" asked Bill Maxwell. "Even if it's not me selling it to them?"

In the end, no planning commission member precluded themselves from Tuesday's meeting. And when a motion was made and the vote cast at 12:40 p.m., it carried unanimously.

"I couldn't help but relate this to Red Gold," Ken Clark of Alexandria said. "Over the years, they have grown to be one of the leading employers in Madison County. Broin is not going to solve all our problems, but we have to start somewhere."

Bomb threat note found at PHHS

By SHAWN MCGRATH
shawn.mcgrath@heraldbulletin.com

An 18-year-old Pendleton Heights High School student faces preliminary charges of intimidation after he allegedly wrote a bomb threat on a school bathroom mirror Monday.

Pendleton Police Chief Marc Farrer said officers arrested Cody Leffingwell, of the 7000 block of West County Road 1050 South, outside of Ingalls, on Tuesday.

Pendleton Heights Principal Glen Nelson said the note came to administrators' attention shortly after 10:30 a.m. Monday. The message was direct.

"(It said) something to the effect that, 'Your lives are mine. There's a bomb in the tech hall.'"

The school's tech hall is where the technically-oriented classes are taught, such as shop. Between 60 and 70 students and staff were evacuated from the tech hall after the bomb threat was discovered, and Pendleton police were notified, Nelson said.

Madison County Sheriff's deputy Paul Kollros and his explosives-detecting dog, Mika, were called to the school, but no explosives were found. The students and staff were allowed back inside the tech hall area after about a half hour, Nelson said.

Farrer said images from the school's security cameras linked Leffingwell to the threat. The senior likely wrote the note to get out of class, and more arrests could be made. Farrer said Leffingwell cooperated with police and was released.

"He gave us a full confession," Farrer said.

While Leffingwell wasn't formally booked into the Madison County jail, he will be subpoenaed for his initial court appearance, which hasn't been set.

Nelson said Leffingwell has been suspended, and he ultimately could face expulsion, but that hasn't yet been determined.

Nelson said Monday's bomb threat at Pendleton Heights was the first in the five years he's been the school's principal.

"Certainly nothing as serious as this," he said. "I'm just very pleased we were able to deal with it in such a quick manner."

A note was sent home with students and posted on the school's Web site on Monday to tell parents what happened and the school's response.

Intimidation is a D felony punishable by six months to three years behind bars.

fiber optics connections. There, they looked for a corporate partner for retired Remy International engineer Bob Ward, who has a new alternator generator product he'd like to build in Anderson.

Though some economists have said the country isn't ready to invest in the U.S. on a large scale, Smith said Anderson is on the cutting edge.

"I think we're at the front end of a great deal of rapid change," he said.

"I saw a lot of money there and a lot of businesses that want to be global companies," he said.

He advocated a revision of trade policy on a federal level, saying that when China wanted to get nuclear power the U.S. wouldn't sell to them. Instead, the Chinese bought nuclear equipment from France.

"We need to examine that policy if we're truly interested in global business and trade," he said.

While in China, the group visited Shanghai, a financial center, Ningbo, an industrial city, and Hung Zhou, where they laid the groundwork for a sister city relationship.

Smith praised the country's booming growth and focus on environmentalism.

Brooke Tuttle, who retired as economic development director in Columbus, Anderson marketing consultant Greg Winkler, and Continental Design and Engineering Chief Operating Officer Bill Nagengast also went.

New infrastructure is needed to convince companies to invest in the city and support them once they do, Smith said, touting his efforts to pave streets.

FORECAST 8 WEATHER REPORT

Keep the umbrellas handy today. The heaviest rain will fall this afternoon. Temperatures will be in the 40s most of the day. Too warm for any snow. That may change on Thursday, as colder air arrives. Right now this will not be an accumulating snow, but a few snow showers will mix with the light rain on Thursday. Temperatures will start to fall into the 30s. A drier weather pattern arrives for the end of the week, but the November chill continues with highs 5 to 10 degrees cooler than normal and in the 40s.

Nancy Ertel, an RR teacher leader, said Lowe recommended changes to RR because not enough students are being served and not enough students are passing the language portions of the standardized tests.

"But Reading Recovery isn't designed to elevate test scores, it's designed to bring the lowest level readers up to the class average," Ertel said following the meeting. "What Mrs. Lowe is proposing was tried in 1980. It was called Step Up and it didn't increase achievement.

"By Mrs. Lowe's own account, she has no research to support her plan."

The teachers presented the board and Lowe a written alternative to eliminating a program that is already established.

It would allow RR to continue to help the lowest reading level students by taking them from class for half the day. Then, Ertel said, the RR teachers would go into classrooms in teacher teams and work with the entire class to improve reading and address low test scores.

Ertel said the proposal adds to the success of the existing program while addressing the need to increase achievement.

Mosley said she had two children use the existing program in kindergarten and first grade. They now are in the third and sixth grades and doing well.

"Thankfully the program was there. It boosted their self-esteem and educational growth," Mosley said following the meeting. "It doesn't make sense to take something that is working and let it go."

Lowe was unavailable for comment after the meeting due to an executive session addressing the second reason why many members of the public attended — a proposal to offer remedial ISTEP training in the middle schools at the expense of art and music. Currently remedial training occurs at the high school level.

The Middle School Committee which is composed of teachers, parents and administrators examined what can be done to improve academics.

It submitted its plan to Lowe; board members were to receive the plan at the executive session.

Leaked details prompted public turnout and questions from the public.

Caught off guard, board president Keith Millikan postponed comments on the topic until the board had reviewed the Committee's recommendations.

Due to an editing mistake, a letter to the editor published Monday by June Rogers contained an incorrect spelling of nit-picking.

In a story on Saturday about charges against two Pendleton Juvenile Facility officers, they were referred to as Pendleton officers. They are not connected to the Pendleton Police Department.

Information provided to The Herald Bulletin's for Monday's Thumbs up, Thumbs down was incorrect. The Adams Township Fire and Ambulance Building, located at 200 East and Indiana 109, is a 12-year-old building. There are no shingles off of the building, according to the fire chief. As a cost saving measure, some of them are black, some are white.

Bush faces tests abroad as he meets with world leaders

By TOM RAUM
The Associated Press

NEWS ANALYSIS

WASHINGTON — Humbled by elections at home, President Bush is heading into talks with dozens of foreign leaders in Asia and Europe who will be watching for signs of weakness, uncertainty or retrenchment.

Bush's challenge is to demonstrate that U.S. leadership as the world's last superpower is undiminished on the world stage.

"I think he will go vigorous, I think he'll give a powerful performance," said Kurt Campbell, a top Pentagon official in the Clinton administration who now is with the Center for Strategic and International Studies.

Some world leaders, particularly those who resented Bush's cowboy swagger and saw his decision to invade Iraq in 2003 as a dangerous act of unilateralism, might be gloating privately at the president's political misfortunes.

But the United States does not have a parliamentary system, and Bush will remain president for two more years. And other world leaders have been challenged at home, too, especially Iraq ally Tony Blair of Britain and war opponent Jacques Chirac of France, both of whom could commiserate with Bush.

The Democratic capture last week of both the House and the Senate on a tide of voter anger over Iraq diminished the president's authority at home.

That's resulted in "an interesting period here in Washington," Bush told visiting Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Olmert this week. "You might realize the opposition party won, won the Senate and the House. And, what's interesting, is that they're beginning to understand that with victory comes responsibilities."

On the world stage, Bush's misfortunes could marginally embolden Chinese President Hu Jintao and Russian President Vladimir Putin. But, otherwise, it seems unlikely that geopolitical dynamics will be much changed.

"He acknowledges that he took a thumping. But leaders around the world take thumpings all the time," said presidential historian Thomas E. Cronin of Colorado College. The election results also telegraphs to the rest of the world, "including Iraq and Russia, that we can have peaceful elections that alter the makeup of our national government," Cronin said.

Bush was leaving Tuesday night for an eight-day tour of Asia, including stops in Singapore, Indonesia and Vietnam, where he attends a summit of Asian-Pacific nation leaders. At month's end, Bush will travel to the Baltic Sea countries of Latvia and Estonia, once claimed by the Soviet Union, for a NATO summit in Riga, Latvia.

It will be Bush's first trip to Vietnam. During the Vietnam War, he served in the U.S. in the Texas Air National Guard. Now, with the Iraq war dragging on for 3 1/2 years and the U.S. death toll still rising, many of Bush's critics are comparing Iraq to the Vietnamese quagmire.

Bush's plan to arrive in Hanoi with a new pact normalizing trade with Vietnam hit a bump when the lame-duck GOP controlled House failed to approve the measure on an initial vote on Monday. The 228-161 vote was short of the two-thirds majority needed. Still, sponsors were optimistic of getting it passed later in the week through a less demanding process that requires only a majority vote.

Even before the elections, some of the go-it-alone tactics of Bush's first term had already been replaced by great diplomacy, including U.S. efforts to rely on other countries to defuse nuclear tensions with North Korea and Iran.

"Some of the people who used to criticize us for unilateralism are now beginning to criticize us for not taking more decisive individual action," said Stephen Hadley, the president's national security adviser.

Not only is Bush under pressure at home from Democrats and some Republicans to change course on Iraq, but he is encountering calls from some U.S. allies, including most recently Blair, to reach out more to Iran and Syria in hopes promoting broader stability in the region given the changing nature of the battle in Iraq.

community. Many of these women, I work with shoulder to shoulder for business-related issues, or it could be with one of my daughters for a program with the school. I consider so many of the people that were in this room tonight, good friends."

Starkey was very emotional and enjoyed the opportunity to share the Athena award with her family. She believes that she shares the same values as the other women who were nominated, as someone who focuses on her work and family.

Starkey received a trophy, a ring, compliments of Standt's jewelers, and an all-expense paid trip to Chicago to attend the national Athena awards.

"I am impressed by the talent and desire in this room to lead and tackle a good challenge," Skillman said.

Mary Jamerson, president of Myers Autoworld, a sponsor of the event with The Herald Bulletin, was honored to be involved in the festivities and just what the Athena award represents. Jamerson mentioned how important it was to support an event that might ignite more women to be leaders.

"Athena truly represents so many important things from professional leadership to giving back to the community," Jamerson said. "Athena happens to be more geared towards woman, but it is a very significant program that we have that recognizes women that assist our community."

5 killed in plane crash

By DEANNA MARTIN
The Associated Press

ROLLING PRAIRIE — A co-founder of an Iowa marketing company, three of his employees and a pilot were killed when their twin-engine plane crashed in a rural area of northern Indiana, officials said Tuesday.

The Cessna 303 crashed in a field about 10 miles southwest of South Bend, shortly after takeoff from the South Bend Regional Airport Monday about 8 p.m., the Federal Aviation Administration said. Jeff White, spokesman for Two Rivers Marketing in Des Moines, said the company chartered the plane to travel between Ankeny, Iowa, and South Bend for a business trip.

The company identified the victims, all from Iowa, as Tom Dunphy, 41, who helped found the company in 2000; Eric Jacobs, 31, and Josh Trainor, 23, who both worked in information technology; and Leslie O'Bannon, 27, an account executive. Also killed was pilot John M. Trewet, 45, of Iowa, officials said.

All five died on impact, said LaPorte County Chief Deputy Coroner John Sullivan. A dozen deputy coroners on Tuesday scoured the crash site, which was about the size of a football field, looking for remains, he said. The National Transportation Safety Board also was investigating.

Crews were using a crane to pull the wreckage from the field because the spiraling crash sent the plane a couple feet into the ground, officials said.

The cause of the crash has yet to be determined, but fog might have been a factor, Sullivan said.

Neighbors said they heard a noise that rattled windows, but police said no one reported witnessing the crash. The site is the middle of fields separated by rows of trees, with the closest home about 300 yards away.

Resident Cathy Olson said the plane sounded like it was in trouble when it flew over.

"All of a sudden, we heard a big bang," Olson said.

Two Rivers Marketing started with 14 employees but had grown in the past six years to more than 60, the company said.

Dunphy is survived by a wife and three young sons.

Jacobs was the information technology leader of the company and is survived by a wife and four sons. O'Bannon had been with the company four years and is survived by a husband and a daughter. Trainor was an information technology specialist for two years and was engaged to be married.

Man wins $1.5 million malpractice award

The Associated Press

CROWN POINT — A former steelworker has won a $1.5 million malpractice award against a surgeon who operated on his stomach.

Micheal Castro, 54, lost his stomach during a 2000 surgery to repair problems with gastroesophageal reflux, said his attorney, Harold Harper, of Valparaiso.

A Lake County Superior Court jury determined that because of malpractice by his surgeon, Dr. Teoman Demir, Castro was hospitalized for two months and lost his entire stomach, Harper said.

"As a result, he is considered a permanent gastric cripple," Harper said.

Demir performed the surgery at The Community Hospital in Munster, where he remains on staff, said his attorney, Jon Schmoll.

"The undisputed medical evidence in this case showed significant complications following surgery — not as a result of any malpractice on the part of Dr. Demir," Schmoll said.

A nonbinding medical review determined Demir did not commit malpractice, Schmoll said.

Castro's judgment was expected to be reduced to $1.25 million due to a cap by the state Legislature, Harper said.

Castro, a former Gary resident who now lives in Atlanta, would rather have his health than the money, Harper said.

"If he had a choice between the judgment and turning back the clock, he'd turn back the clock, I guarantee you," Harper said.

15 venomous snakes found at home of man bitten by reptile

The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Conservation officers who entered the home of a man who sought treatment for a poisonous snake bite found 15 venomous vipers, including cobras and rattlesnakes, inside.

Michael Fillenwarth, 47, was taken into custody but later released after Monday night's raid on his home due to medical issues related to his snake bite, officials said.

Authorities learned of the snakes after Fillenwarth sought treatment over the weekend for a bite from the highly venomous green mamba, native to Africa.

Sgt. Dean Shadley, an Indiana Conservation Officer, said Fillenwarth did not have the proper permits to keep the snakes, which Shadley described as "extremely poisonous." He is charged with possession of a dangerous reptile without a permit.

Shadley said investigators plan to present information to the Marion County prosecutor that could lead to criminal charges in the case.

Officers confiscated five types of rattlesnakes, three types of cobras, along with gaboon vipers, copperheads, a puff adder, and two green mambas from Fillenwarth's home on Indianapolis' east side. They also seized caged quail Fillenwarth was using as food for the reptiles.

Jim Harrison of the Kentucky Reptile Zoo was contacted to positively identify the snakes, which were taken to a facility run by the Indiana Department of Natural Resources.

Due to medical issues related to his snakebite, Fillenwarth was not jailed Monday night. A summons for his court appearance was to be issued when the investigation is complete and the charges are filed.

Agency tries to find how confidential papers ended up on street

The Associated Press

FORT WAYNE — An agency that works to prevent child abuse was trying to find out how more than 100 pages of confidential documents ended up scattered across two city blocks.

Rachel Tobin-Smith, executive director for Stop Child Abuse and Neglect, said Monday the paperwork found Friday night appeared to accidentally end up on the streets. The documents included agency e-mails among staff workers, case file information with names, addresses and phone numbers and detailed reports about staff workers' visits with children.

"It's an isolated incident," she said. "In my 21 years here, I've never had anything like that happen. We take confidentiality very, very seriously."

Tobin-Smith said the agency was consulting with its attorney to determine how to inform clients whose information was in the paperwork.

me as the best qualified candidate for Madison County Council District 1. As a voter in County Council District 1, I would greatly appreciate your support on Nov. 7.

MADISON COUNTY COUNCIL DISTRICT 2

Name: Buddy E. Patterson
Age: 68
Party Affiliation: Democrat
Office Sought: County Council — District 2
Education: Graduate of Anderson High School
Occupation: Owner/operator Buddy Patterson D.J. Service and

As a newcomer to the election ballot some of the benefits I have to offer worthy of voter support are: a new face, new ideas and a freshness long overdue.

What changes will you make in that position, if elected?

1. I believe that the County Council is in need of better education on county finance, and taxing laws.

2. Budget Committees should be utilized to conduct a more thorough informative analysis for budget hearings. The council should take a more active role in understanding the various county departments, both necessities and waste.

3. Informing the voters; the council needs a media to keep the public informed on the actions of the council and its members.

4. Right and wrong is not always labeled Democrat/Republican; I will cast my vote for the greater good and financial well-being of Madison County.

What distinguishes you from your opponent?

I have the education, background and experience to tackle the difficult decisions that are facing our county. I will work to provide the necessary services while maintaining fiscal responsibility. I will provide honest and trustworthy service to you, the taxpayers. This is about serving you, not about myself.
